ACTIVE PICKETING RESULTS IN ADDITION TO STRIKERS' RANKS

Foreigners Join With English-Speaking People on Strike in Lawrence—Pacific-Mill Official Admits Strike Gaining—Police Marshal Bars Parades—22 Rhode Island Mills Closed by Strike

LAWRENCE, March 28.—More active picketing at the mill gates of several mills in which a wage cut of 20 per cent went into effect Monday, resulted in a considerable addition to the strike ranks this morning. It was admitted at the Acadia mill that conditions were very bad, and at the Pacific and Everett mills, both started operations with considerably reduced forces. Up to today, the strike has been almost entirely of English-speaking workers, but today there were a number of foreigners on the streets. There were no disturbances, however, although strikers from some of the mills marched to the common for a mass meeting and shouted and jeered as they went along. City Marshal Timothy J. O'Brien warned Hen Leger, a "One Big Union" leader, that if he attempted to lead any strike parades he would be stopped. The police say he led such a parade yesterday noon. McMahon to Arrive Friday Organiser John J. Dean of the United Textile Workers of America said this noon that he had received a telegram from President Thomas F. PREDICT RATIFICATION

Leaders Expect Senate to Adopt Naval Limitation Treaty Today

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Prediction that the senate would ratify the naval limitation treaty today by a unanimous vote, was made by administration leaders. Administration leaders also were hopeful that the submarine and poison gas treaty would be approved without an opposing vote before adjournment tonight. Although there were numerous expressions of disappointment on the democratic side yesterday that the limitation treaty did not go further in the direction of both land and sea disarmament, not a single voice was raised in opposition to the pact.

Report Irish Army Convention Discussed Overthrow of Government in Ireland

Debated Proposal to Oust Those Opposed to Republic, But Deferred Action

DUBLIN, March 28.—(By the Associated Press)—The convention on Sunday of revolting members of the Irish republican army debated the question of declaring a military dictatorship, but deferred action thereon, says the correspondent here of the London Star in a despatch to his paper. He gives as his authority a statement issued from the Beggar's Bush barracks this morning, which says the proposal before the convention was to overthrow all governments in Ireland opposed to a republic. According to the correspondent the

DISMISS LIQUOR CASE

Case Charging Larceny of $6480 Worth of Liquor Dismissed Today

The larceny complaint against William H. Reynolds and Herbert C. Lough, who were charged with the theft of $6480 worth of liquor from the Bay State storage in Jackson street on November 5, 1921, was dismissed for lack of prosecution when brought before Judge Thomas J. Enright in district court this morning. This case has caused widespread interest as the liquor is said to be the property of a local fraternal organization. It has been on the docket a number of times and has met with many continuances. While in the midst of an assault and battery case today action was suspended and the liquor case was brought up and quickly dismissed. Atty. J. Joseph Hennessy appeared for the defendant while Hon. Dennis J. Murphy appeared for the prosecution.

In the complaint the liquor is said to be the property of one John H. Farrell and was designated as follows: one barrel of wine of the value of $600; 408 bottles of whiskey, each bottle valued at $10, and 15 cases of gin, each valued at $120 per case.

SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Difference in Opinion Relative to Election of Public School Teachers

Committee Appropriates $500 for Purchase of No-School Signal

Thomas Harkins is Elected Engineer of the New High School

The question of the legality of electing teachers in local public schools without recommendation of the superintendent caused a sharp division of opinion at the meeting of the school committee last night.

Opposition developed the moment Mr. Lambert requested permission to submit to the committee an opinion on the matter secured by him from the city collector, in which it was stated that elections of teachers without an accompanying recommendation of the superintendent have no validity as a matter of fact.

Chairman Riley expressed his feelings on the matter by saying that inasmuch as no individual or sub-committee of the whole had been authorized to secure any such opinion, it had no place in the meeting and, therefore, he would not entertain any motion regarding it.

Mr. Sullivan soon after moved that the superintendent, the chairman and one other member be authorized to seek an opinion on the matter from the law department, but the motion was lost.

FIRE UNCOVERS ANOTHER STILL

A slight blaze in the attic of the house numbered 50 Lewis street this morning resulted in the finding of a 75-gallon still in operation, about 200 gallons of mash and 8 gallons of moonshine. The police were notified by the firemen and later they carried the apparatus and stuff to the police station. A warrant was later sworn for the arrest of the alleged owner of the still, John F. Felartus. The blaze was discovered by someone in the house shortly before 8:30 o'clock and an alarm was sent in from box 125. The members of House 8 in Merrimack street were the first to reach the premises and when they entered the attic of the building from which smoke was issuing, they saw a large copper still on a gas range. The fire was in the ceiling, just over the still, and a few streams from the chemical extinguisher was sufficient to put it out. There was no one in the attic when the blaze was discovered and the police were informed later that the apparatus was owned by Felartus.

Scene of Fire Most Famous Mecca of Religious Pilgrims in North America

QUEBEC, March 28.—Fire today destroyed the Basilica of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, famous for its shrine, but the status of Ste. Anne, with the historical relics to which miraculous cures have been ascribed, were saved.

The flames which started in the sacristy, spread rapidly to the monastery of the Redemptorist Fathers, to whose care the shrine had been entrusted, and then to the Basilica.

Apparatus sent from this city to the most famous mecca of religious pilgrims in North America, was able to do little to check the blaze.

Monastery officials estimated the property damage at $1,200,000. That a greater toll of church relics was not taken was due to the heroic efforts of the brothers who risked their lives in saving what they could from the interior of the Basilica.

SPICY HEARING ON DANCE HALL

Remonstrants Claim Dance Hall on Boulevard Would Corrupt Morals

Many Witnesses Ask Commission Not to Grant License Asked For

Location Where Petitioners Seek License is Branded as "Hell-Hole"

Witnesses Testify to Good Character of Messrs. Bechard and Lirelle

Whether or not the third attempt to establish a dance pavilion on the Pawtucket boulevard is successful will remain undecided for at least a week, according to the editor of the license commission last evening, after nearly two hours had been spent in arguing for and against the petition for a dance hall license signed by Bechard Bros. and Lirelle. The delay is caused by a desire on the part of the commission to listen to the arguments on behalf of the Florence Crittenton Rescue League by James Stuart Murphy.

At last night's hearing the petitioners were represented by J. Joseph Hennessy, who called on many witnesses to testify to their good character and intentions. His efforts were ably countered, however, by several prominent Pawtucket residents, who argued sincerely for the protection of the city.

CITY WILL ACQUIRE FIRST STREET OVAL PROPERTY THIS YEAR

Mayor Approves Recommendations of Board of Park Commissioners and Will Institute Purchase Proceedings at Once—Loan Order to Be Introduced in Council, Covering Oval and Transformation of Anne Street Into Public Park

The city will acquire the oval property in First street this year from the Locks and Canals, as well as the two lots just adjoining, as recommended and urged by the board of park commissioners. Mayor George H. Brown said today that he had approved the recommendations of the board and would immediately institute proceedings to acquire the land. An order will be introduced into the city council, possibly tomorrow night, authorizing a loan of sufficient size to care for both the oval purchase and the transforming of Anne street into a parkway. It has not been definitely decided as to the proper and most economical way of acquiring the First street property, but probably it will be seized by right of eminent domain and the city will pay for it the assessed valuation, plus 25 per cent. This would amount to approximately $30,000.

With the purchase of the oval a project of long-standing will reach culmination and plans for development, either as a park area or a public playground or athletic field may be begun in earnest. Ever since the first suggestion was made that the area would make an admirable place for athletics on a large scale, it has been in the mind that the high school is badly in need of just this sort of field and undoubtedly the local alumni association will take steps to carry out this idea.

Examination For Position of Postmaster at Local Postoffice Will Take Place April 25

Further information in regard to the examination for postmaster at the local postoffice was received today, when a copy of form 2213, hitherto unavailable, came to light. According to the form, the examination will take place on April 25. The details of the examination are described exactly as on the poster previously issued. The examination will be of the open competitive variety, not under the civil service act and rules, but under an executive order issued May 10, 1921, revised July 27, 1921, which provides that such a vacancy as exists in Lowell since Postmaster McLean's resignation shall be filled either by the transfer or promotion of someone in the competitive classified service or by a competitive examination of eligibles. As stated before, candidates are not required to report for examination at any given place, but will be rated on the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated:

1. Education and training..... 25
2. Business experience and fitness..... 75
Total..... 100

Additional qualifications are required for appointment to the local postoffice, since it pays a salary of $4000. The applicant must show at least three years engaged in an occupation in which he has demonstrated ability to conduct the affairs of a business to the extent required of the postmaster of the postoffice for which he is a candidate.

The form indicates that Lowell is not the only city in which examinations for postmaster will be held on April 25. Glendale, California; New Haven, Connecticut; Port Wayne, Indiana; Hutchinson, Kansas; Paterson and Trenton, New Jersey; Cincinnati and Kenton, Ohio; Huntington, Milton and Titusville, Pennsylvania; and Tyler, Texas, are also listed.

Granite Cutters Offered $6.40 a Day

BOSTON, March 28.—An offer of a $6.40 daily wage for a 44-hour week was submitted today to the Granite Cutters' International association of North America by the board of control of the granite industry. Virtually the entire granite industry east of the Mississippi river, employing about 12,000 men, is involved.

"HOOD" RESPONSIBLE FOR ASSAULT CASE

After hearing a witness testify to the effect that he had bought moonshine in a house which resulted in an assault and battery case, tried in court this morning, Judge Thomas J. Enright ordered the man held so that he might tell his story to the liquor inspectors. Appearing as a defense witness in the case charging Mike Kalowicki with assault on Sophie Malinocha and Anthony Darbinaki, William Stodiez said that he twice bought moonshine from the Winter street house on the night the assault is alleged to have taken place. The court took down William's name, address, and other details, and then ordered him to tell his story to the liquor men. The court said that if the house in question was selling moonshine, it would be investigated. As a result of alleged clouting of Sophie and Anthony with a fistiron, Mike was ordered to pay fines of $15, the sum of $25 being assessed for the assault on the man and $10 for the assault on the woman. Sophie appeared in court with a swollen lip and a bruised left eye, while Anthony exhibited a bruise in the back of his head and a cut on the forehead. Mike claimed that on the night of March 22 he twice went to the Winter street house to bring his wife home and that he was told she was not there.

THE LOST NESMITH FUND

Former Solicitor Regan Suggests Way of Rehabilitating Principal of Bequests

Former City Solicitor William D. Regan is of the opinion that any misfortune arising from the so-called disappearance of the principal of the Nesmith fund, some time in the early past, can be eliminated by appealing to the state legislature for the passage of an enabling act, authorizing the city, through loan or taxation, to raise the principal of the bequest, amounting to $25,000, and pay them over to some trustees authorized to receive the same. Mr. Regan says further that in his opinion that when the bequest or loans were accepted by the board of aldermen of that city on December 12, 1876, the board of aldermen had no legal authority to make or attempt to make such a bargain or deal. He suggests then in existence a statute which particularly the various boards and with relation to and the question of the statute should then be considered. Continued to Page 6

BATTLE WITH POLICE

300 Strike Sympathizers and
Battle at Attleboro

ATTLEBORO, March 29.—Patrolman Charles E. Nolan and James Hanley of the town police department had a pitched battle in the woods at South Attleboro shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon with some 300 men and women, believed to be sympathizers with the strike at the Crown mill.

The crowd set upon Patrolman Nolan when he arrested an individual, a man who, he says, threatened him, and in the fight that ensued between the officer and the mob, Nolan lost his prisoner. Nolan also lost his club, and both he and Hanley were roughly treated, Hanley receiving a punch in the stomach that caused him to be sent home. Three shots were fired in the air to frighten the strikers and attract assistance.

Chief of Police E. H. Gingras came with police reserves in answer to the summons of Patrolman Nolan and the police dispersed the crowd with some difficulty. Special Officer Louis Vannasse arrested Andrew Durda on a charge of drunkenness and at the station house it is said that the police found a loaded 32-caliber revolver on the prisoner's person.

The trouble started when Patrolman Nolan saw a half dozen men in a shanty of a lumber yard near the mill. Nolan started to disperse them and one of them told the officer that he would "get him." Nolan started after the man, a foreigner, who ran into a wooded section.

When about 500 yards in the woods the man turned about and cried out, "Now come on." Nolan at first thought it was a challenge to him, but within a few seconds men and women came out of hiding and attacked the policeman.

Patrolman Hanley soon came to the aid of his brother officer, but the strikers so outnumbered the police that Hanley and Nolan were soon getting the worst of things. Both lost their clubs and then one of the policemen fired three shots in the air in an effort to drive off the attackers and call aid. Special Officer Vannasse, who has been doing strike duty, was quickly on the scene, but not until the arrival of Chief Gingras and his men did things quiet down and the crowd disperse.

FREE STATE ENVOYS IN BOSTON SUNDAY

BOSTON, March 29.—A reception committee comprising about 200 leading citizens of Boston has been organized, headed by Judge Thomas A. Donovan, to welcome the delegates from the Irish Free State, who will be here next Sunday and will speak at Faneuil hall at 8 o'clock. Yesterday the following despatch was sent them at New York:

"Dear Mr. Deane, Ambassador Sir John Gavan, Ambassadors Irish Free State:

"The citizens of Boston, representing all elements of the community, extend to you a cordial invitation to come to Boston and tell its people of the marvelous achievement of the founders of the Irish Free State. We have secured Faneuil hall, the cradle of liberty, for next Sunday, April 2, at 8:30 p. m. and wish that we may have the pleasure of welcoming you on this occasion. Answer."

"They replied very cordially that they will respond and meet the citizens of Boston next Sunday."

It is understood from the delegates that they will discuss the economic, social and governmental aspects of the Irish Free State. There will be no controversial matters taken up. They come to America for the first time in 75 years representing a free people. A tremendous crowd will gather at Faneuil hall to welcome them. Besides delivering a talk at Faneuil hall, it is expected that they will also speak to overflow crowds who will throng the streets in front of the hall. A large force of men, selected by the committee, will be on hand to direct the crowd.

NEW SELECTMAN FOR BILLERICA

At a regular meeting of the members of the board of selectmen of Billerica held Monday evening, George C. Crosby was elected a member of the board to succeed Ralph L. Dodge, who recently resigned. The board also appointed Joseph P. Meaney as inspector of public buildings. In the course of the evening the board held a hearing on the following petition presented by Edward F. Dickinson and about 120 other citizens of the town:

"The transportation of pupils between homes and schools in Billerica hinders the question of safety of children on our streets in these days of rapid transit and congestion into more acute concern than formerly."

"Many instances of narrow escapes from accidents have occurred."

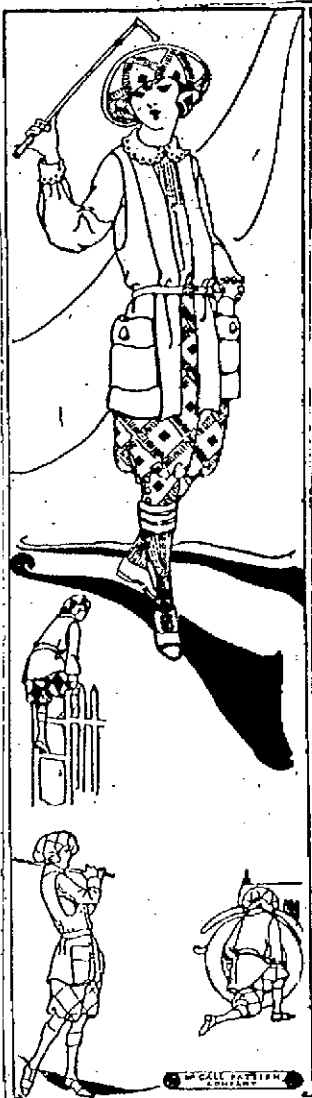

"At road crossings of its line through the town the B. & M. road has watchmen to make for safety of travel; even at the crossing on Salem road, with almost no passing, a flagman is kept; but in Billerica square, with perhaps a thousand times the traffic, there is no one stationed to give protection."

"Why should our regular police officers be on duty daily in the center of the two villages and elsewhere as required?"

"The schools of the town have a corps of efficient teachers, some often working overtime. Our fire department is fully up to date. Its regular men

THE QUESTION IS WILL SHE WEAR THEM

What will American women do with knickerbockers? Every smart shop on Fifth avenue displays them. A good many smart women have been wearing them, with apparent pleasure. But not enough women, the country over, have yet adopted them to establish them firmly as a real vogue. And one wonders why, for there is no garment made which, when worn with smart accessories, is so delightful fully jaunty looking. And it is a fact that when a woman knows the looks jaunty she automatically feels young. That they will, in another season or two, be really popular, is implied in a recent utterance of Gene Stratton-Porter, America's most popular fiction writer. Although not definitely discussing knickerbockers at the time, Mrs. Porter wore knickerbockers herself as she talked.

"Among a world of other tardy realizations the world has come to realize that every woman has two legs and that these legs in all probability are proportionate to the remainder of her frame," said Mrs. Porter.

"There is no longer any curiosity concerning legs; they are absolutely prevalent—as common as arms or heads. And the world has consented that she may cover them with skirts, breeches or Turkish trousers, as she pleases."

As she pleased "Then why does she hesitate to adopt the jaunty, comfortable, eminently sensible, yet ultra-smart knicker?"

Apparently she is still wondering whether or not they make her look too boyish. Will they destroy her feminine appeal? That, one fancies, is the question which gives her pause.

are on duty day and night, for five successive days, with uniforms to mark their public service, and they have pride in it. Other town departments are well conducted. What of our police department?"

"While its regular officers receive regular pay ($31.50 weekly), should they not, like other town officials—and the police of other towns and cities—give full service for this liberal pay—help to make our streets safe for the children and others—and be on duty for law and order eight hours a day?"

"Is it well to wait for some serious accident or crime to stir us to ask for full efficiency in this department that has the safety and protection of our community as its care?"

The speakers in behalf of the petition were Mr. Dickinson, Dr. Charles E. Hosmer, Victor J. Hosmer, Mrs. Edward F. Dickinson, Sydney A. Bull, F. A. Morey and Samuel Earle. At the close of the hearing Chairman Shoridan of the board of selectmen announced that the board would prepare a set of rules and regulations to govern the department.

Carnegie's Son-in-Law Breaks Down From Overwork

BY N.E.A. SERVICE
NEW YORK, March 27.—Andrew Carnegie's son-in-law is sick from overwork.

Roswell Miller, who shares the advantages of the late ironmaster's millions with his wife, Carnegie's only daughter, has taken a $500-a-year job so seriously that he broke down under the strain, finally being stricken with influenza. Now he is at Palm Beach, Fla., with his wife, recuperating and hopes soon to be back at work.

Miller's job is instructing New York university students in the mysteries of mechanical drawing and internal combustion engines. Besides his work in the classroom, he assists in laboratory experiments.

Nothing harmful or injurious enters into its composition. No habit forming or stupefying drugs. Less than 1 per cent alcohol. It can be safely given to infants or the infirm. Composed of wholesome, body-building antiseptics, healing, penetrating oils and extracts obtained from plants, the combined activities of which have a marked effect on the lungs and throat. It has proven far superior to cod liver oil for active results in obstinate and deep-seated coughs and inflammation. Gives great relief to consumptives. Price, 50 cents.

For Raw Sore Throat

At the first sign of a raw, sore throat rub on a little Musterole with your fingers. It goes right to the spot with a gentle tingle, loosens congestion, draws out soreness and pain. Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It has the strength of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister. Nothing like Musterole for croupy children. Keep it handy for instant use. 25c and 50c in jars and tubes; hospital size, $1.

MR. AND MRS. ROSWELL MILLER AND THE CARNEGIE MANSION IN NEW YORK. THE MILLERS NOW ARE DWELLING IN A $250,000 HOME, BUT EXPECT SHORTLY TO MOVE BACK WITH MRS. ANDREW CARNEGIE INTO THIS FAMOUS NEW YORK SHOW PLACE.

choice of his vocation is the inside reason of motives that dictated his decision.

Immediately after his marriage to the girl who was one of the world's heiresses despite the ambition of her father to give away all his wealth for philanthropic purposes before his death, Miller was offered several opportunities for a business career. Charles Schwab, J. Pierpont Morgan and other captains of industry and finance invited him to associate himself with them. But Miller, according to close friends, took this attitude:

"These offers are generous and well meant, but they never were made to Roswell Miller, before his marriage to Margaret Carnegie, and therefore I must believe they would not be made to him now if it were not for this marriage."

Future Embarrassment

"If I were to enter into such associations, the time inevitably would come when I would be embarrassed by passing in some manner on my wife's investments, through influence, advice or otherwise."

Miller never was a fortune hunter. He married Miss Carnegie for love, not for money. Her father, with his great foresight, placed sufficient safeguards around his daughter's inheritance. And I am content to be my wife's husband, without being her business manager."

Students Like Him

"He's a humdinger," says one of his students. "When we see him coming along, we pile on the running board of his car and he's glad to give us a lift. He's surely popular with all the fellows."

Miller is not much older than some of his students, being 27. He is the son of the late president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, who left $700,000 to his wife and three children.

The war interrupted his studies at Princeton. He served in the ambulance service in France and later as an aviator in the navy. After which he resumed his studies, receiving his degree last June.

"I believe if it were not for the civil service we could get along with less than two-thirds of the number of employees under civil service and probably get twice as much work out of them."

Asked by a member to explain just how that might be done, Mr. Daugherty said:

"I suppose the department of justice has as good employees and as faithful who are under the civil service as those in any other department, but they are not as anxious generally to be in place to commence work on the dot as they are to quit work before the dot. I do not speak for the administration, but I am giving you the benefit of my observation and judgment, about which I have no doubt, and I am thoroughly convinced that the civil service is a hindrance to the government. I would rather take the recommendations of a political committee, either democratic or republican; a self-respecting committee for the appointment of a man or woman, than to be compelled to go

Teaching Ambition

Residing, Miller's lifelong ambition has been to teach. "Teaching," he has said, "is one of the greatest services a man can perform. Mr. Carnegie was a great organizer of industry, a great philanthropist, but his greatest work was in the teaching he did indirectly through the establishment of libraries and directly through his own writings."

So he applied for a position at New York university.

No idle goose with the job. He has a fat-top desk in the room of a professor. Each morning he drives to work in a roadster from the $250,000 mansion off Fifth avenue in which the Millers and Mrs. Carnegie live.

Matters pertaining to the narcotic and liquor laws were discussed at a meeting of the Lowell Druggists' as-

ROBBERS FIRE SHOT IN ASHMONT HOLD-UP

BOSTON, March 29.—Samuel Levine, a grocer at 15 Florida place, Ashmont, was held up about 10 o'clock last night in his store by two armed young men who fired one shot. The grocer was imprisoned in his own ice chest while the pair robbed the cash register of $35.

The robbers, each of whom appeared to be 25 years of age, walked into the store and ordered the proprietor to throw up his hands. Levine failed to obey and a shot was fired over his head.

As Levine backed toward the ice chest he was seized by one of the men and thrust inside.

A customer who was in the store was told to keep quiet. The robbers then looted the register and made their escape.

HEAR CHARGES AGAINST OFFICER

Patrolman Tsaffaras Held Last Evening

Principal Witness for Prosecution Said Tsaffaras Borrowed Money for Friend

The long awaited for hearing in which Patrolman Peter Tsaffaras was to face bribe charges, brought against him by police officials, opened last night in the second session court room before a trial board of his superiors consisting of Lieutenants Ryan and Palmer and Sgt. Rigelow. The testimony of five government witnesses was heard after which the hearing was adjourned to Friday night.

Joe Rodas, star witness for the prosecution, said he never saw Officer Tsaffaras take a drink, that he never remembered of Tsaffaras bringing a man to his house to purchase moonshine and that he never gave Tsaffaras money expecting it to shield him from raids. These three issues are the ones on which the trial has been based. The specific charges against Tsaffaras have been set forth as follows: "With receiving $400 from one Joe Rodas, of 58 Elm street, Lowell, who was known to you as being engaged in the illegal manufacture and sale of distilled liquor, while in uniform on the premises of one Joe Rodas of 58 Elm street."

"Introducing to one Joe Rodas of 58 Elm street a customer, who purchased in your presence a 15 gallon jug of moonshine for which the sum of $75 was paid."

Both Attorneys Joseph P. Donahue and Cornelius J. O'Neill objected to having Petrie testify, on the grounds that it was unfair to bring him in before rebuttal. Atty. O'Neill said he wished a statement to be written into the records to the effect that he declared it unfair on the part of the police to introduce Petrie or any member of the investigating board as witnesses. The police superintendent told him, he said, that the first session would be like a grand jury affair and that therefore all evidence submitted to it should be kept secret. Attorney O'Neill was particularly bitter in his denunciation of the police methods.

Deputy Chief Downey, who conducted the case for the government, called Rodas as the first witness. Rodas was on the stand for over an hour and gave all his testimony through an interpreter. After asking a few preliminary questions the following questions and answers were made.

Q—"Where did you first meet Tsaffaras?"
A—"On the street near my house."
Q—"Did Officer Tsaffaras ever come to your house?"
A—"Yes, two or three times."
Q—"Did Tsaffaras ever drink anything there?"
A—"I offered him whiskey and wine at Christmas but he wouldn't drink."
Q—"Did you ever have any money transaction with him?"
A—"Yes, he borrowed money."
Q—"How much?"
A—"Four hundred dollars."
Q—"What for?"
A—"For a friend to start up business."
Q—"Did you ever give him any more money?"
A—"No."
Q—"Did Tsaffaras ever bring anyone to your house?"
A—"No."
Q—"When did you give him the money?"
A—"On October 15, 1921, at 11 o'clock in the morning."
Q—"Who was present?"

A—"Mary Souza, Claudia Rodas and another woman who is not here because she is ill."
Q—"Did you have money yourself or did you send for it?"
A—"I sent my wife for it. Claudia Rodas was holding it for me and he came with it. My wife was present when the money was passed."
Q—"Did Tsaffaras give you a mortgage?"
A—"He was but never did."

Q—"Did Tsaffaras bring a customer to you for moonshine?"
A—"I don't remember that."
Q—"Did Tsaffaras bring a man to your house for the purpose of buying liquor?"
A—"There was a man there last November but I don't know whether he sent him or not."

Q—"What did you give him $400 for?"
A—"For a friend to start up business. The friend came and gave me $200 last week and owes me another hundred."

Donahue Takes Rodas
At this point Deputy Downey turned Rodas over to the defense. Attorney Donahue did the interrogating as follows.

Q—"Are you sure Tsaffaras never introduced a man to you so that you might sell him liquor?"
A—"I don't remember him doing that."
Q—"Did he ever come on your premises to drink liquor while in uniform?"
A—"I don't remember."
Q—"Did he ever drink liquor on your premises?"
A—"I don't remember."
Q—"You were sick weren't you when you last saw him?"
A—"Yes, sick in bed."

Q—"What from?"
A—"An objection was made to this question by the deputy. Attorney Donahue said that he wished to show that when Rodas is alleged to have lent the money that he was sick in bed from the effects of drinking moonshine and that he was so drunk at the time he didn't know what was going on. The question was allowed and Rodas said he didn't know what was the matter only that he felt sick all over. Attorney Donahue resumed.

Q—"Did you ever have a talk with Superintendent MacBrayne about Tsaffaras in Mr. Souza's store?"
A—"I had some conversation, but don't remember just what."

Q—"When?"
A—"About five weeks ago."

Q—"Did the superintendent ever say to you that Tsaffaras was a crook and that he was out to get him?"
A—"Deputy Downey objected to this question and his objection was sustained by the board. Attorney O'Neill suggested at this point that the board might ask Attorney George Toye, who was present, relative to any points in connection with the questioning. Nothing was decided on the matter and the examination went on.

Q—"Do you remember a conversation with MacBrayne?"
A—"Yes."
Q—"Will you please tell the court what it was?"
A—"He asked me whether Tsaffaras borrowed the money or whether it had been given to him. I said he borrowed it."

Q—"It was borrowed?"
A—"Yes."
Q—"Was anything said about anybody being a crook?"
A—"I don't remember."
Q—"Is that all the conversation you ever had with Supt. MacBrayne?"
A—"All I can remember."

Q—"Did you ever have a conversation in MacBrayne's office about the liquor case and that you would be treated lightly in superior court if you went through against Tsaffaras?"
A—"I don't remember."
Q—"Was the statement ever made in your presence that if you went through against Tsaffaras you would be treated lightly in superior court?"
A—"Nobody ever asked me about that."

Q—"Were you arrested and brought into court on November 5, 1921, and did you pay a fine of $100 for keeping liquor?"
A—"Yes."

Q—"Were you brought into court on March 25 and fined $150 and sentenced to four months to the house of correction for keeping liquor?"
A—"Yes."

Answered in English
A conversation here followed in which Donahue tried to make Rodas admit he could talk English. Attorney O'Neill asked: "In what language did you talk with Sgt. Winn?"
A—"English."

Here Deputy Downey took Rodas and asked: "How long ago did you receive that $300?"
A—"Last week."

Q—"When?"
A—"Some day last week."

Mr. Donahue Again
Q—"You say you told the superintendent that you loaned Tsaffaras the money?"
A—"Yes."

This ended the testimony of Rodas. Mary Souza was called to the stand and testified that she was present when Tsaffaras received the money. She told the same story as Rodas relative to the money transaction and added that a man, whom she named as Bill Contus, came with the officer and stood outside the door. She said she never saw the officer bring anybody into the house and that she never saw anybody leave Rodas' house with whiskey.

On cross-examination, she said she heard Tsaffaras say that he wanted to borrow the money for a friend and that Rodas said he was going to lend the officer $400. She averred that she saw Rodas' house with whiskey.

SHE'LL SPREAD LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS IN CANADA

MRS. SIDNEY SMALL

(By N.E.A. Service)
TORONTO, Canada, March 28.—Mrs. Sidney Small, member of the city council of Toronto, and Mrs. Maude Wood Park, president of the national league of women voters, have just completed the organization of Canada's first league.
Mrs. Small is now heading a movement to organize branches in all of the provinces of Canada.

The Lost Nesmith Fund

where is there contained therein an authority for the execution of such a contract or agreement.
As far as can be learned at city hall the Thomas Nesmith fund just naturally disappeared from the city books, but at what time and how and for what purpose, no one seems to know. It would require a most thorough audit to ascertain any facts regarding it and even then, it is problematical whether or not very much would be brought to light.

WILL OPEN NEW STORE IN MAY

About the first of May, Frazer's store, now located at 90 Middlesex street, will open new quarters at 1 (Graham street, corner of Middlesex street. The new quarters are those now occupied by the Canton restaurant and which formerly housed Harris' restaurant and previous to that Bueck's restaurant.

Yesterday by J. W. Frazer, a lease had been secured from the owner, Philip Goldman, whereby work of alteration on the building will be started on April 1. The store will be a modern one in every way, and it is thought probable that the upper part of the building will be devoted to offices, although the plans for that part are not yet complete.

probably arrive early Friday morning. Officials at the Pacific mills stated this morning that although the opening was fairly encouraging, there being about as many at work as was the case yesterday, many have left the mills since that time. One official said: "We have lost heavily today."
His estimate that not many more than 2500 of the 8100 operatives were at work at mid-day.
Officials at the Everett mills stated that conditions were not as satisfactory as they were yesterday.
Officials at each of these mills stated that they would endeavor to keep their plants running for the benefit of those who want to work.

POLICE TO THE RESCUE

Mob Man on Way to Work at Lonsdale, R. I.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 29.—Strike sympathizers are becoming active in the Blackstone valley villages. This morning a band of them mobbed Carl Curtis when on his way to work in the Lincoln Blochery in Lonsdale. They pulled him around and he was on his knees when Chief of Police Axon and some special officers arrived on the scene and escorted Curtis to the blochery. It was said that Curtis was formerly a member in Pawtucket and a delegation of former associates were said to have been among those who met him today.

22 Mills Now Closed

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 29.—The number of mills closed by the textile strike in Rhode Island climbed to 22 today, when the Andrews mill at North Smithfield, shut down, following a walkout of the employees due to a 10 per cent. wage cut.
This plant, which is a branch of the Andrews mill Co. Inc. of Philadelphia, is the first woolen and worsted mill in the state to be affected by the strike. About 200 workers are employed normally.

499 ENDED LIVES IN LONDON IN 1921

LONDON, March 29.—Statistics just issued show that 499 persons committed suicide in London in 1921. If the city's population be taken as 1,500,000, the suicide rate is only one in 3000. Most of those taking their own lives were between 15 and 55 years of age. Only eight were under 20.

Experiments are to be made with the natural fur sands of Alberta, Canada, to determine their suitability as a road-making material.

ALLIED SUPREME COUNCIL TO MEET

Dracut Camps Entered

the looking of four camps in Long Pond, Dracut. They gave their names and ages as Raymond F. Brown, 16, Dracut; Felix S. Durand, 15, of 15 Cambridge road and Lorimer H. O'Brien, 16, of Beaver street. They were arraigned in court and each held in $300 for appearance on Friday. A fourth boy was arrested and booked on the same charge but was released by the complainant, who was convinced he had nothing to do with the case.

The apprehension of the boys is the result of some vigilant work on the part of Patrolman Gilbert W. Sheridan, whose private investigations led to the discovery of the loot. Last Sunday Henry C. Coburn, chief of the Dracut police, received a report from John McKinley that his camp near Long Pond had been broken into. Reports of breaks at three other camps were also reported.

The local police received word of the breaks and Patrolman Sheridan immediately got busy. As part of the loot was said to be three canoes and as he patrols a beat near the water, the officer decided to investigate.
Near Beaver street on the Merrimack river Sheridan noticed some canoes. Upon investigation he found them locked, but they answered to the description of the stolen craft. He found two canoes on the river and later found one on Beaver brook. The boys were rounded up and brought to the station this morning where one of them is said to have admitted his guilt.

The three boys were booked as arrested by Patrolman Sheridan and Chief Coburn. A story they told implicated a fourth boy and he was picked up by Patrolman Sheridan and Bert Cluff, chairman of the Dracut election. He was later released when he proved an alibi.

COOLIDGE PAYS TRIBUTE

Vice President Says Police Commissioner Sacrificed Life in the Public Service.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Vice President Coolidge yesterday paid a tribute to Edwin U. Curtis, late police commissioner of Boston. Mr. Coolidge, who was governor of Massachusetts and associated with Mr. Curtis during the Boston police strike, declared it was not too much to say that Mr. Curtis "sacrificed his life in the public service."

"It is with greatest regret that I learn of the death of Edwin U. Curtis, police commissioner of the city of Boston. He performed a service that not only saved his own city, but one which was world wide in its influence and effect. When it would have been very easy for him to permit the development of a dangerous situation within his force, he was courageous enough to take a stand against it and maintain that stand in spite of every pressure that was brought against him. He had nothing to gain and everything to lose. The people of Boston, even, never understood the great sacrifice that he made in their behalf in the loyal devotion he displayed, to the maintenance of government in accordance with law."

"He was a man of rare ability, of sincere loyalty to his friends and of great loyalty to the men in the police service. He was not only the head of the department, he was the best friend of the men in the department. It is not too much to say that he has sacrificed his life in the public service. It is from the courage and devotion of such men as Edwin U. Curtis that orderly government maintains its supremacy and civilization derives its security."

Officers Shot in Self-Defense

said police were in danger of bodily injury and that the shooting by said officers was done in self-defense."
He further says: "After listening to all of the witnesses who appeared before me and knowing most of them to be respectable and responsible citizens I am of the opinion that the lives of the officers were in danger and that they were obliged to take extreme measures for their own safety."
"Much testimony has been given regarding the conduct of Mayor Robert A. Kenyon of Weymouth street that morning and it is unfortunate that the crowd did not disperse and go home after he read the riot act to them."

"The crowd also was given good sound advice by John J. Thomas, one of the organizers of the United Textile Workers as he testified that he went to where the pickets were standing and advised them that the riot act had been read, explained the danger of their going into the zone over the dead line. Had they taken the advice of Mr. Thomas the chances are that no trouble would have occurred."

The Humane society offers a reward of $5 for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons who tied two kittens together, put them in a paper bag, also tied, and left them to die in a vacant lot off Bowers street.

Few acts brought to the attention of the local agent have caused more indignation than this one. The agent was extremely hot under the collar as he related the incident today. He said that a fine of $250 was provided by law for such an act as this one.

Fortunately for the kittens their cries attracted the attention of a passerby and they were rescued from their paper prison before being starved to death.

GREAT COAL STRIKES

History of Previous Labor Disturbances in Nation's Coal Industry

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 28.—(By the Associated Press.) Great coal strikes, such as the country is now facing, have been few although for seventy-five years the coal industry had been marked by almost numberless state-wide and localized strikes, often involving several thousands of workers.

Price reduced to lowest in history.

All of the big strikes have continued more than a month, the longest having been that of 1902 in the anthracite industry which continued 23 weeks.

The big strikes—five in number—are summarized as follows:

1894—First general strike in the soft coal industry, called by the United Mine Workers of America, the purpose being to restore wage scales that had been decreased during the panic of '93; 100,000 to 150,000 men engaged and militia called out in four states; first attempt at a compromise failed, but second conference of miners and operators ended with adoption of a scale agreement.

1897—July 4th walkout of 150,000 miners, called by D. M. Hatchford, president of the U. M. W. of A. to deplete an overstocked coal market, which union officials feared would result in wage reductions on account of the slow coal trade; strike was called off after 12 weeks' duration, at the end of which the market had been depleted; first great successful strike of the U. M. W. of A.

1900—Anthracite strike in September and October engaged 132,000 and ended with miners getting 10 to 15 per cent. increases in wages.

1902—Great anthracite strike, led by the late John Mitchell, as president of the U. M. W. of A. lasted 23 weeks. May to October; 140,000 men engaged, and finally called off when President Roosevelt appointed a commission that afterward gave the miners a 10 per cent. wage advance, and made their contract for three years, ending April 1, 1905.

1919—Nation-wide soft coal strike in November and December of 335,000 miners called off by union in compliance with a court injunction, obtained by Atty. Gen. Palmer under the wartime Lever fuel control law; commission later appointed by President Wilson gave miners an increase of approximately 27 per cent in wages—their largest single increase.

Unlike the last great strike, the impending one begins with warm weather approaching while the 1919 shut-down came with winter. Stocks now are more ample than then, but the present situation is much like the Fourth of July walkout of 1897. Out of the strikes, both large and small, the workers as a general proposition have won many benefits in increased wages and improved working conditions. But victory has not always been theirs, though the big strike settlements have favored them. The operator successes, however, include wage reductions, denial of increased wages, changed working conditions, and the crushing of two unions—the first national organization of miners, founded in 1860, which perished in a series of strikes at the close of the Civil war, and the Workmen's Benevolent association, an organization of anthracite workers, which was demoralized in 1875 after 15 years' existence.

The first coal strike in the United States occurred in 1859 in the Pennsylvania anthracite field when a British miner named Bates organized a local union and sought to increase wages and better working conditions. His strike failed and Bates was forced to leave the field and for 11 years the workers made no further attempt at organization.

Since Bates' day, many leaders have been developed among the workers and strikes of various sorts for varied purposes have been carried on, the early light being largely centered to small areas, occasionally including an entire state coal field.

School Board Holds Meeting

5 to 4; Mr. Lambert, Mr. Sullivan, Mrs. Pearson and Dr. Slaughter being recorded in favor.

Mr. Sullivan emphatically stated that he felt the question was of sufficient importance to require clarification immediately and he checked up the contentions of Mr. Lambert regarding it. The other committee members held fast, however, and no action resulted.

On motion of Mr. Sullivan, who asked for and received the recommendation of the superintendent, Joseph Duffy was unanimously elected to the position of physical instructor in elementary schools. Mr. Duffy, who had moved and had been elected, said that a motion made at a previous meeting to the effect that Mr. Duffy be chosen permanent athletic coach at the high school be stricken from the books.

No-School Signal

The committee took action toward the acquisition of a no-school signal whistle to be used in place of the present bell system and on motion of Mr. Delaney a sum not to exceed $500 was appropriated to buy a Sterling make whistle, to be placed on one of the school buildings. Mr. Delaney said in explanation of his motion that the city can take a Sterling whistle on trial for 30 days without assuming any obligations regarding purchase, if not satisfactory.

Other members felt that other concerns dealing in the same article should be approached with regard to price and an amendment to that effect was carried with Mr. Delaney voting "no." The business agent will take up the matter at once and present prices at the next board meeting.

High School Engineer

Thomas Harkins was elected engineer of the high school, but only after considerable discussion. He was highly recommended for the place by Henry H. Harris, headmaster of the school, and Mr. Thornton said that his appointment would be entirely satisfactory to the local post of the American Legion, even though Mr. Harkins is not an ex-service man. He is on his six months' leave of absence at present.

"His Bank Speaks Well of Him"

It frequently happens that a man is known to no one quite so well as to his bankers. To them are revealed aspects of character and habits of procedure not always a matter of knowledge even to his business associates.

For this reason recommendation regarding a man's moral and financial worth is often sought from his bankers, who may, through favorable expressions of opinion, prove themselves his strongest allies. If in the course of inquiry recommendations are made by a bank of established character and reputation, the man is doubly endorsed.

In making YOUR banking connection it is important that your bank speak well of you and equally important that the character of your bank, as evidenced by its history and achievements, shall be such as to give weight to its opinion.

Healthy Mother Merry Children Happy Home

TO maintain a happy home the housewife must keep in good health. Her duties are many and various, and it seems as if every other member of the family depended very much on her.

"Where is my hat?" cries the boy.
"What did you do with my coat?" asks the daughter.
"I can't find any handkerchiefs," yells the husband.

The housewife is usually the advisor and general manager of the family.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women to maintain a happy home by keeping them in good health.

Larwill, Ind.—"My back was so bad I could not do my washing. I was always tired out and had no ambition, was nervous and dizzy and everything seemed to worry me and I had awful pains in my right side. I felt badly about four years and could not do my work as it should have been done. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised so much and it did so many people good that I began to take it myself. I am feeling fine now and everyone tells me that they never saw me looking so well. I live on a farm, do all my work, and have three little girls to take care of. I am recommending this medicine to my friends and know it will help them."—Mrs. Elizabeth Long, R. R. No. 3, Box 7, Larwill, Ind.

Cincinnati, O.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, so kept on taking the Vegetable Compound and now I am the mother of a 10 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Chester Petrov, 318 W. Liberty Street, Cincinnati, O.

If a Body Kiss a Body, Can a Body
Get Divorce? Judge Rules No!

The Old Version—

Or leave a kiss but in the cup
And I'll not ask for wine. Johnson

JUDGE FRANK D. HUTCHINS

The New Version—

To give a kiss to some lone male
Cannot make matrimony fail

By N.E.A. Service
KANSAS CITY, Kas., March 27.—
"Is the modern legal opinion that:
"To give a kiss to some lone male Cannot make matrimony fail?"
For such was the ruling handed down recently by Judge Frank D.
Hutchins in a Kansas City divorce hearing.

His new version displaces the one of ancient times:
"Or leave a kiss but in the cup
And I'll not ask for wine."
Nick Hervatin appeared before the judge, seeking separation because his wife had gone to a park and kissed another man.

He introduced as a witness a defective whom he employed to watch his wife. According to this sleuth
Mrs. Hervatin embraced and kissed a man in a public park.

This testimony was not disputed.
And then Judge Hutchins said:
"The fact that the plaintiff's wife kissed another man seems to be established. However, that does not strike me as conclusive proof that she was unfaithful to her husband."
"Kissing these days, is looked upon as a less forceful proof of love than in years gone by."
He suggested that the couple patch up the quarrel.
As a result Kansas City folks are arguing for and against the ruling.
"Mental torture is a cause for divorce in Kansas," says Mrs. Maile Jones. "I certainly would consider promiscuous kissing by the wife as coming under that head."
Judge Thomas J. Seehorn of the Circuit court of Kansas City, Mo., says the motive behind the kiss should influence the judge in the case.

"Some kisses might be innocent," says he, "and others full of guilt."
Mrs. Henry N. Ess, leader among Kansas City clubwomen, sides against the ruling.

"There are certain things one cannot do after marriage," says she.
"One of them is meeting men in a park and kissing them."

Many simply say, "Well—there are kisses—and kisses!"

It has hardly ever been possible heretofore to own a big, handsome the new Chevrolet 173 models that represent not only the latest in the way of improvements, but present in appearance a car that approximates amount one pays for this latest Chev-

"Of the Chevrolet motor nothing new needs be said. It has proved its worth and demonstrated its capabilities to the entire satisfaction of its creators as well as to the thousands of owners who have had experience with it.

"The car itself is, as a whole, not only a thing of power, but a medium of travel that is surely pleasing to the eye, and embodies everything that makes for comfort.

"Make no mistake, the Chevrolet

bers that will tax the factories to the

RUM-RUNNERS REVIVE
OLD ROMANCE STORIES

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Romance of the coast guard service of the early days of the new American republic has been revived by the fleets of liquor smugglers hovering along the country's shores.

Prohibition officials discussing today the problem of rum-running which has become serious along both seaboard declared that the whiskey ships have brought back to the coast guard the duty for which it was originally established.

Created in 1790 "to prevent depredations along the coast" the earliest duty of the coast guard was to war on the pirates who preyed on the merchant shipping in and out of the ports of the new nation and who had their strongholds on the islands adjacent to the southern shores.

Nowadays, officials remarked, the liquor ships following the wake of Captain Kidd and his swashbuckling crews are giving the men of the coast guard the stern chase and sometimes the bloody battles that was the daily portion of their predecessors in the stirring times of the bold black flag.

As an instance of history repeating itself, officials declared, the islands of the Bahamas were once the base for followers of "Jolly Roger" and it has been reported through official channels that one of the families of Bimini, now a fountain head for illicit spirits, is directly descended from a famous freebooter who made the Florida waters a mariners' graveyard two hundred years ago.

Coast guard "seamen" of today, officials maintained, search the waters of the South Atlantic for booting hulls where once their forerunners scanned the seas for a pirate sail or listen at the mouths of Florida rivers for the put-out of the gasoline craft with its contraband cargo where the ears of a newly formed service were attuned to catch the creak of block and tackle or the scrape of oarlocks.

But besides the war on rum-runners in the south officials pointed out the coast guard is kept on the alert along the whole Atlantic coast, off New York and Boston, and on the Pacific in the waters of Puget Sound, where the Canadian smugglers bring across the line imports forbidden by national prohibition.

EXTEND USE OF NAVAL TAX
RADIO TO THE PRESS

WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Harding was said yesterday to believe it desirable to extend the use of the naval radio to the press for the transmission of trans-Pacific dispatches until such time as private facilities are reasonably available.

The executive was described as feeling that congress will work out such an extension and allow the press the privilege of sending its dispatches for Hawaii, the Philippines and other portions of the Orient until private facilities are erected.

Legislation dealing with the proposed extension is now in conference between the two houses of congress. The senate granted an extension for five years while the house limited it to next June 30. Efforts are now being made to reach an agreement.

Chairman Greene of the house conference announced yesterday that the final house bill supporting his contention that "it would be highly impracticable to permit government radio stations to handle press and commercial business for a period of five years."

Outlining his position in a letter to the newspapers in his Massachusetts district, Chairman Greene said:

"It is commonly known by those who have followed radio activities that extensive private radio operations are under way on the Pacific coast and that it is a question of a short time only before large private radio companies will be capable of satisfactorily handling all press business going to and coming from the Orient."

TELL OF KENTUCKY'S
NEED OF EDUCATION

Four boys from the Ganey Creek Community Centre at Middopass, Ky., training to become teachers in a community that is yet only partially touched by the first moving hands of civilization, spoke before the members of Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R., at the Spaulding house yesterday, and told interesting tales of the struggle now going on in the heart of the Kentucky mountains to bring the light of education into the homes and minds of those old folk of the hill country.

The boys are on a trip to Washington in an automobile given them for the purpose by the national community board and on the way, here and there, stop to tell people such as those in Lowell of what is going on in their country in the battle of education, fought out here years and years ago.

It was brought out that at least three million people are living in the Kentucky mountains who have not yet passed the primitive state. Civilization and education slowly are creeping in, but hardly one-half of the population has been touched so far.

TAX IDLE LAND TO MAKE UP DEFICIT

(By N.E.A. Service)
SEATTLE, March 28.—Seattle will vote May 1 on the "Erickson Plan" which would cut street car fare on the many lines from 10 cents to 1 cent, levying a special tax on idle lands in the city to make up the deficit.

Councilman Oliver T. Erickson, the originator, says his plan will mean a better service, adequate financing to retire bonds and means of extension and improvements.

At present with 10-cent fare, the system nets barely enough to meet operating and maintenance costs and pay the interest on indebtedness. Seattle purchased its street car system as a wartime necessity to insure adequate transportation for shipyard workers. The price was $16,000,000.

Price Too High

"The big price paid has made adequate operation a serious problem," says Erickson. "This has given a black eye to many ownership all over the country."

"The plight of the street car system is a detriment to the whole city. The whole city must combine to remedy it."

Erickson's plan therefore puts on property owners the maintenance and operation of the system. Car riders, paying 3-cent fare, would redeem and pay interest on the $15,000,000 bond issue for the purchase, building in addition a $1,500,000 annual fund for extension and improvement.

The campaign over the issue is keen. Opponents declare the plan is confiscatory; that it would take the homes of small property owners.

"We are already paying a high tax in car fares," Erickson retorts. "But two-thirds of Seattle's long are vacant and held for speculation. They bear no share in this burden. Under my plan, owners of this land, now exempt, would have to help and the burden thus would be more evenly distributed."

DENIED CITIZENSHIP

WORCESTER, March 29.—Nine Italian-speaking residents of Worcester, who claimed exemption from service in the United States army during the World war on the ground that they were aliens, were denied United States citizenship in the naturalization session of superior court yesterday by Judge Philip J. O'Connell.

There were 202 applicants before the court, and, rejecting the nine, Judge O'Connell said:

"You didn't want willingly to take up arms and fight for this country three or four years ago, so I guess that you will now have to wait a while longer and prove more thoroughly your loyalty to this country."

DRESS WARM AND
KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. It is not the most dangerous of human afflictions; it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Adv.

She could eat anything—

without indigestion or sleeplessness

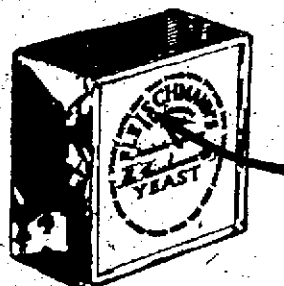

FOR a long time she had been troubled with gas after her evening meal. The distress was most painful after eating potatoes or other starchy foods, of which she was very fond.

Then she started taking two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every night between her evening meal and bedtime. She poured about a half cup of boiling hot water over the yeast cakes, stirred them thoroughly, added a little cold water and drank.

She found she could eat anything and sleep splendidly afterward.

Thousands of men and women are finding that Fleischmann's Yeast corrects stomach and intestinal troubles. It promotes the flow of bile and pancreatic juice. It is rich in the appetite-stimulating vitamin, so that appetite is always kept normal and you are protected from indigestion.

Add 2 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your daily diet. You will find that your whole digestive system is greatly benefited. Place a standing order with your grocer. He will deliver it regularly.

No silk too sheer or fine to launder
this gentle Lux way

NOWADAYS there is a silk for every use. There is crepe de Chine for the tailored suit, chiffon and georgette for the afternoon call. Even sports have claimed their own individual weave.

The sheerest chiffon blouse, the most delicate pastel color, is practical now. For what if they do soil quickly? They can be laundered so perfectly and so easily with Lux.

A strong soap or strong soap flake will destroy the luster and life of silk, and turn it yellow. Hard rubbing will fray and break the delicate threads.

These silk manufacturers say:
"Wash silks in Lux"

Belding Bros. & Co., Silks
H. R. Mallinson & Co., Sport Silks
Emery & Beers Co., Inc., Orgs. Hosiery
Wm. Skinner & Sons, Satins
Louis Roessel & Co., Silks
McCallum Hosiery Co., Silk Stockings
Van Rensselaer Co., Silk Underwear
Max Held, Inc., Fingert Weists

But Lux is just as delicate as the sheerest silk. It cannot injure anything that pure water alone won't harm.

The thin Lux flakes whisk instantly into a rich creamy lather that you can safely trust the daintiest silken garment to. A gentle swishing up and down in the pure suds, and it is fresh again without so much as a twisted thread or a dimming of its beautiful sheen.

Lux is sold everywhere. Get a package from your grocer or department store today.

YOU INHERIT IT

Suppose you go to an antique shop and buy an old Chinese dagger, with ivory handle and an ivory sheath. You clean it, hang it on the wall. Friends come in. Show the Chinese dagger to them. They handle it gingerly. Then, discovering that it doesn't bite, a wave of impulse sweeps through them.

Playfully they pretend to go on the warpath—make flourishes as if about to stab everyone in sight.

Scientists call that a "reversion to type"—a throw-back to barbarous ancestors who wanted to kill with a knife whenever they got their fingers on it.

Occasionally the reversion to type unfortunately occurs when someone is examining a pistol. Then a wretch is hanging beside the front door, with purple streamers attached, and the pistol handler says he didn't know it was loaded.

All of us inherit many primitive emotions from ancestors thousands of years back. These emotions are like furnace fires with the drafts closed by gradual civilization.

These emotions, in super-civilization, will become cold, dead ashes. Now they smolder, some of them rarely bursting into flame in the course of a life-time.

They are the relics that mark man's upward climb.

Behold the spring gardener, happily plunging his fingers into the soil. He is a reversion to type—displaying the mechanical springtime planting habit of ancestors, far back when agriculture was the only form of real civilization.

The city man's backyard garden is an inherited expression of the crop-growing instinct.

What of the man who hates gardening and flower planting? He probably likes to roam in the woods and fish—a throwback to ancestors who lived by fishing and hunting. They were roamers, unlike the soil tillers.

Another type in spring goes crazy on sport. If they could trace their family trees far enough, they'd probably find gladiators and professional soldiers at the roots.

Nature intended all men to be tillers of the soil. Wandering therefrom, we have economic and health problems that result from congestion. From these we revolt in springtime—revert to type—fish, roam, plant, vegetables, trees, grass and flowers.

Springtime awakens all that lies dormant in man's blood and brain. It is the link connecting us with the unknown past.—N.E.A.

CUTTING OFF THE ENGINE

The never-say-die spirit runs through all the marls of trade. William Wrigley, known the world over as a manufacturer of chewing gum, who supplied many a juicy "chew" to our soldiers when they went across the sea to war, has the right idea in a now popular phrase, "Don't cut off the engine!"

The gum maker was riding on a train recently, when a stranger approached.

"Mr. Wrigley," began the man anxiously, "do you know you're wasting a lot of money?" Mr. Wrigley claimed to be the original "man from Missouri."

"Why," continued the stranger, "your product is so well advertised now, you don't need to advertise!"

This might have staggered someone of a different stamp, but not the man whose name is familiar in the marls of trade. His reply was brief and to the point.

"If this train were moving and we were to cut off the engine, the train would coast along a while and then come to a stop, and that's just what my business would do if I cut off the advertising. Advertising is the engine that furnishes the motive power for my business."

Mr. Wrigley is one of the men to whom advertising has brought success. He will bring equal success to others who use it with equal skill. What it has done for Wrigley's gum, it will do for countless other articles that appeal equally to the taste or the fancy of the public.

GERMANY AND BANKRUPTCY

Some British business men and politicians fear that Germany's bankruptcy may be near. In such case, they wonder how would reparations be paid.

Suppose Germany did go bankrupt. What then?

After a trance-like confusion, Germans would go ahead growing crops and running factories. They'd pay their indemnity in goods. What's the difference? That's how they're paying now, by exports, having very little gold.

Keeping Germany at work is more important than her money system.

Money is a hypofix, though a great convenience.

If a nation like Germany went bankrupt by forcible divorce from the gold standard, it would result in someone devising a money system based on units of human productive energy.

An equally balanced exchange of products of human toil would be possible by a system of metering the value of human energy—like metering gas and electricity. It is easier said than done. The real problem, then as now, would be agreeing on relative values.

PRICES AND EXPORTS

All last year, friends of the farmers were shouting from the housetops that means must be found to check the rapid falling-off in exports of things grown on the farms.

The Department of Agriculture now announces that exports of the 22 leading agricultural products gained 27 per cent in quantity in 1921, but decreased 29 per cent in value.

Most of the other basic industries have been going through the same experience.

The so-called collapse of exports is largely a collapse of prices, which bears a valuable lesson in industrial economics. It seems that our manufactured products cannot be disposed of in foreign markets at present prices. Prices in Europe are at a low ebb and the cost of production in these countries is perhaps less than half the cost in this country. This explains in part why our exports are falling off. The foreign nations purchase nothing from us except what they cannot get at a lower price elsewhere.

MOONSHINE AS MONEY

Moonshine liquor has become currency in parts of Texas. One community reports that 40 gallons of moonshine can be exchanged for a Ford car.

History repeats. In 1784 settlers of eastern Tennessee set up their own commonwealth, elected a legislature, called their domain the state of Franklin, and sought admission to the Union. Records dealing with this odd political movement mention that rum was legal tender in those days, one gallon buying a homestead shirt.

Many thrifty ones would trade their whole wardrobe for a gallon of rum today. This reference to the evasion of law in Texas is not offered as a hint to people who like such conditions to migrate there. The enforcement officers will get to Texas in due time, although the settlements are so far apart that it would require a whole army to enforce the law as rigidly as it is enforced in this state.

THE 13 FIREMEN

Why not pay the 13 firemen under some dispute and let's be done with it?

There is every evidence that the men were properly appointed, duly taken from a certified civil service list and in the minds of the fire department officers and the board of undervisors, were needed in the service. The claim that if they were paid, the expenditures of the department would exceed in one month a sum greater than was expended in any one month last year, may be true enough, but has the same careful scrutiny been the rule in other departments? Is not adequate fire protection, in terms of both men and apparatus, a necessity?

As far as can be learned, the men will get their pay some day and if eventually, why not now?

THE NEW PARKWAY

Now that it is a certainty that Anne street, now closed as a thoroughfare, will be converted into a public park and made a part of the present Lucy Larcom park, it seems the proper thing to do to keep right on calling the whole area after Lowell's famous mill girl. To name it High School park might be appropriate and satisfying to the general public, but it would not carry with it quite the same significance or the same amount of cherished traditions.

New York women may light up their faces in public after all. The prohibition order was a slip of the pen, or rather of the shears, for it seems that a clerk in clipping out orders that had been passed by the city government carelessly included the anti-smoke ordinance among them. The police commissioner hastened to correct the false impression and lifted the ban. Women of the metropolis happily sigh again, take out the be-jeweled cigarette cases and nonchalantly speed smoke rings up toward the ceiling, pondering the willie over the threatened acts of mere men.

It is to be hoped that parents of school children will not shy at the new clinic to be established by the board of health, under the supervision of the director of school hygiene, for the purpose of giving Schick tests to pupils to determine immunity from diphtheria. Schick testing has come into popular favor as a simple and effective means of preventing an unnecessary spread of this disease and inasmuch as it is entirely harmless and leaves no disagreeable after-effects, it is to be hoped that parents will co-operate heartily with the health officers in allowing children to present themselves for the test.

It is indeed good news that a group of local business men soon will build a colony of modern one-family houses in a section of the city that presents excellent opportunities for home development. It has been long since there was an abundance of one-family dwellings in Lowell. In fact the reverse has been the rule, with the shortage growing more acute each year. The city welcomes new taxable property, to be sure, but the general public welcomes any announcement which shows a tendency to create attractive homes, obtainable for a fairly moderate sum.

Lawrence will suffer more from mill strikes than Lowell because of the larger number of hands thrown into idleness. It is to be hoped that some means of settling these conflicts will be found other than having each side hold out to force the other into submission. This is ruinous and might be avoided if our government had provided the proper machinery.

The first street oval would be a valuable acquisition to the city for playground purposes and it should be set aside for this purpose as the park board directs.

Men who have nothing else to do can employ their time profitably in planning a vegetable garden.

SEEN AND HEARD

Between the early bird and the early fisherman the early worm is out of luck.

"We will shoot up nothing," say miners. "We will shoot up nothing," say operators. "Don't shoot up prices," say consumers.

They say Rockefeller is rich because he never loses his temper. John is rich because he never loses any thing.

Thought For Today

Every man has his own vocation. There is one direction in which all space is open to him. He has facilities silently inviting him thither to endless exertion. He is like a ship in a river; he runs against obstacles on every side, but one; on that side all obstruction is taken away, and he sweeps, serenely over a deepening channel into an infinite sea.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

A Word a Day

Today's word is expunge. It's pronounced ex-pung-uh, with accent on the last syllable. It means—to strike out, cancel, eliminate, edit, to remove certain words or passages. It comes from Latin "expungere," to prick with dots. It's used like this—"There is much discussion as to whether or not pictures of persons continue to expunge parts of dramas they do not like."

Cash Discount

A train in the west was held up by bandits, who ordered the passengers to give up all their money. One of the passengers was a man from New York, and when his train came to a halt, he drew $300 from his pocket, and taking $5, put it in his pocket. "What do you mean by that?" asked the bandit. "Surely," answered the man, "you don't mind me taking a 2 per cent discount on a cash transaction."

Too Much Backbone

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was entertaining the leaders of the national women's party at her Newport residence. "I met a movie man the other day," she said. "He urged me to help him banish the movie censor, life declared: 'The movies need no censor, madam. They are the very backbone of American art.' The next movie I saw, I said: 'It seemed to me that there was a little too much backbone in evidence.'"

Slight Misunderstanding

A young and nervous candidate for the navy was being examined by a board of admirals and in the course of a test of his general knowledge he was asked this question: "What kind of animals eat grass?" The youth pondered long over the question. "Surely you know the answer to a simple question like that—what kind of animals eat grass?" the admiral repeated. Then a flash of understanding illuminated the lad's face. "O, animals, sir; I thought you said admirals," he replied, in a tone of relief.

Soldier and Sailor Too

Marshal Koch at a dinner, when in Washington, told a war story. "An aged veteran of the Franco-Prussian war," he said, "was talking to a young veteran of the world war. 'Let me brag as they will about modern fighting,' said the old veteran, 'the Franco-Prussian war was the war for me. Hardship! Up to your neck in snow! I tell you, soldieria was soldieria in them days.' 'Ah, but you ought to have seen our trench warfare,' said the young veteran. 'Up to your necks in water! I tell you, soldieria was soldieria' with us."—Washington Star.

Uncertainty

Times have been like a sailing ship in a typhoon, with the mast torn away, the rudder crippled, the crew working frantically at the pumps to counteract leaks that have sprung in the hold. The crew is weary, confused, no one seems to know where to turn, what to do next. That explains widespread uncertainty—the epidemic of "Should I do this, or that, or lose it, or do?" The storm is dying down. Land is in sight. Soon to port for repairs, general overhauling, new coat of paint, new mast, new rudder, then out to sea for another trip, all hands singing. It's a beautiful picture. Also, an inevitable development. No storm can last forever. With this one overcast, uncertainty will be banished and the sun will be restored. It's returning now.

Arabian Song

In the darkness I come;
To thee, I come,
O, listen to my sigh!

For thee I die,
For thee I die, or lose it, I lose it,
My beloved,
O, listen to my cry!

As the whirlwind comes,
As the whirlwind comes,
O, listen to my sigh;
It tells you I am high, Beloved!

My heart throbs for your love,
And all the stars above
Now light my way to thee,
I come, I come, beloved.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The newly formed acquaintance committee of the chamber of commerce, I understand, has a list of names to look it up to carry out the plans now outlined. The members of the committee intend to call upon new concerns and new business men as they come into the city, and after them opportunities for meeting other business men already established here, also, to conduct them to gathering where they may become better acquainted with their new associates.

It is thought that arrangements will be made for noonday lunches at least once a month, such as the Rotary and Ad clubs now hold. Other evening meetings will be arranged, with good speakers. Strangers and others, connected with the chamber will be invited to as many of these meetings as possible, and care will be taken that each visitor makes the acquaintance of everyone present. This is designed to create an excellent spirit of friendship among local business men, however new to the city, they may be, and it is hoped that the committee will be successful in the fulfillment of its pretentious program.

While waiting for a street car at Oakland square the other day my attention was attracted by the Shedd park baseball diamond on the opposite side of Rogers street. On closer inspection the ground seemed to be in excellent condition save for a pool of water in deep center field which promises to disappear with the help of a little sunshine. The same old trouble with the diamond was apparent, now—ever—pools of various sizes scat-

MAIN HOSPITAL SAVED

Nurses' Home at New Mil-

Middleton, Destroyed

DANVERS, March 29.—The Nurses' Home, connected with the new million dollar Essex county tuberculosis hospital at Middleton, was practically destroyed by a fire this morning, entailing an estimated loss of $20,000. Help was sent by the fire departments of Danvers, Middleton, Peabody and Beverly and the combined efforts kept the fire from communicating with the main hospital building, which is just across the driveway. The cause of the fire is unknown. There are some 25 nurses at the home, most of whom were at breakfast when the fire started. In the hospital are 105 patients. Nobody was injured. The fire did not reach the hospital.

torced in profusion about the lined and base lines. This feature has always made the grounds unpopular, even with the boys of the section, since ball playing demands that the diamond itself shall be free from pebbles or other small obstacles which may divert the course of a ground ball. The park department would work a great improvement in this respect by having the ground rolled before the playing season arrives. The superintendent can testify to the reluctance with which permits for the use of the Shedd park diamond have been accepted in the past, and it seems that the main thing which the No ball team wishes to take chances with the Shedd park pebbles if any other diamond is available.

Headmaster Henry H. Harris of the Lowell high school has compiled some interesting figures relative to distinguished men of America, and their education, designed to show that the college man has a distinct advantage over the man who has not.

Of five million men with practically no schooling, but 31 attained distinction; of two million with a high school education, 1245 were successful in gaining prominence, and of one million who graduated from colleges and universities, 1053 made names for themselves. One little father, Mr. Harris, says that but 1 per cent of American men are college graduates, yet of this 1 per cent 55 per cent of our presidents, 88 per cent of our members of congress, 47 per cent of our speakers of the house of representatives, 54 per cent of our vice presidents, 52 per cent of our secretaries of state, 50 per cent of our secretaries of the treasury, 67 per cent of our attorney generals and 69 per cent of our justices of the supreme court have been given to the country. Rather a convincing argument in favor of college training, according to our worthy high school principal.

The death of Miss Elizabeth G. Lawler, principal of the Central Street school, Monday, removes from the sphere of local education an estimable lady of refinement and culture, whose labors in the cause of educating and training the young extended over a long period. One cannot repress the thought on the passing of such an indefatigable member of the staff of the Central Street school, who has been a guiding influence in the lives of many boys and girls, now grown to man's and woman's estate, who, in reflecting on her death, will conjure up in memory's haunts the spectacle of a splendid teacher, keen in the classroom, with a single eye always toward the attainment of desired ends in her pupils' education in the studies we all learned in the primary school. The usages of the alphabet, reading, writing and arithmetic, when properly taught, form the foundation of education in subsequent years. Her passing so suddenly from the realm of teaching, where she gave unselfishly her finest and truest self, will be regretted not only by her former pupils but by the citizens of Lowell generally, who recognize in her long career as a teacher one of genuine accomplishment for the good of our city and its people.

I understand the week of April 24 to 29 has been designated as "Be Kind to Animals" week and will be observed throughout the country. President Harding is a strong supporter of the movement, and has already written a letter of indorsement to Dr. William O. Stillman, president of the American Humane association. I am told that the local society will advertise the matter and will do all in its power to bring the public's attention to the campaign. It almost seems a bit too late for the kind people of our city to be reminded of their duties to animals. Animals should be treated kindly at all times.

Residents of various sections of the city would be pleased if the superior removal of the storm from the Pawtucket bridge, so as to give them an opportunity to get a glimpse of the Pawtucket falls when they are at their best. Last Sunday hundreds of automobiles passed over the bridge and many people were denied the splendid view because of the high guard rails. In order to see the falls, motorists swung into Varnum avenue and at that all they got was a side view of the beautiful flow of water. On pleasant Sundays in the early spring there are always thousands of automobilists and pedestrians who are attracted to the falls, and the removal of the unsightly fence would prove a great benefit to them.

N. E. SOUTHERN M. E. CONFERENCE

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 29.—The 32nd session of the New England Southern conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, got down to real business today when Bishop Edwin Holt, bishop of Boston, called to order. After the roll call, organization was effected and the sacrament of the Lord's supper administered. It was followed by a memorial service and an executive session of the conference.

More Studebaker cars were sold at the Boston Auto show than any other make except Ford.—Adv.

Vaccination Bill Beaten—

House Stands Pat on Soft

Drink Licenses

BOSTON, March 29.—The Massachusetts house of representatives yesterday by a voice vote rejected the bill to provide for the compulsory vaccination of pupils attending private schools.

The bill was opposed by Mr. Hull of Ipswich, Mr. Hennessey of Boston, Mr. Partlett of Brockton, Mr. Rice of New Bedford, Mr. Menzies of Weymouth, Mr. Curtis of Haverhill and Mr. Doyle of New Bedford. Those who spoke in favor included Mr. Keniston of Boston, Mr. Glazier of Hudson and Mr. Frothingham of Lynn.

On the question of concurring with the senate amendments to the bill to license the sale of non-intoxicating beverages, Mr. Makepeace of Malden said that the exemption of dealers in groceries, bakery products, meats, confectionery and ice cream, as proposed by the senate amendments, would defeat the purpose of the bill. The house thereupon refused to concur with any of the amendments.

The house refused, after a short debate, to order to a third reading a bill to provide for compulsory voting.

On motion of Mr. Hull of Leominster the house insisted upon its position on the bill that cities and towns may provide quarters for local posts of veterans of foreign wars and concur in the request for a committee on conference.

Committee Reports:

Municipal finance bill to authorize the city of Boston to spend $300,000 for a bathhouse and bathing beach at Jeffries Point.

Ways and means—Bill to extend to May 1, 1922, the existence of the commission on the necessities of life, with provision for the spending of unexpended balances and such additional sums as may be approved by the governor and council, relative to directing the state department of health to investigate the feasibility of hospitals, for treatment of surgical or non-pulmonary tuberculosis; reference to the next annual session, petition for a memorial in the state house to the members of the state senate and house of representatives who lost their lives in the world war.

RICKARD NOT GUILTY

Big Demonstration as Sports

Promoter is Acquitted of Assault Charge

NEW YORK, March 29.—George L. (Tex) Rickard, sports promoter, who was acquitted of charges of assault and abduction in supreme court here early today, will probably not be called upon to answer to three similar indictments that have been found against him by the grand jury. This was indicated by Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, who conducted the trial of Rickard on accusations made by Sarah Schoenfeld, aged 16.

Max D. Steuer, attorney for Rickard, said the assistant district attorney regarded the case as ended and had promised not to try Rickard on the other indictments if the Schoenfeld case failed.

Seldom has there been such a demonstration in the courtroom as that staged when the jury brought in its verdict freeing Rickard. The sports promoter was almost overwhelmed by his friends, but made his way through the crowd to a telephone and informed Mrs. Rickard of his acquittal.

report of the convention, is vouched for by the regular general headquarters of the Irish republican army in a statement which says the following resolution was offered by Thomas Barry and Frank Barrett:

"Resolved: That matters of immediate concern for the executive will include:

"First: Maintaining Ireland as an independent republic.

"Second: Appointment of a chief of staff who will appoint a general headquarters staff. Appointments can be vetoed by the executive.

"Third: Declaration of dictatorship. For this purpose the executive shall be empowered to secure the services of others, who need not be members of the executive, with a view to ordering the dissolution of all pretended governments in Ireland by the prohibition of parliamentary elections until such time as an election without the threat of war by Great Britain can be held on adult suffrage.

The statement proceeds: "The dictatorship would overthrow the four governments in Ireland opposed to the republic, namely, the Dail Eireann provisional, British and northern governments."

"Finally, it was decided that the resolution should be submitted to the executive for an opinion at the next convention April 9.

The convention empowered the executive to suppress the election if it saw fit, the statement says.

The delegates argued that the question of finance need not trouble the movement, as money could be had for the taking. The Nationalist press could be dealt with by commandeering its machinery or using the sledge.

Spicy Hearing on Dance Hall

tion of the young folks of that and other sections against the establishment of what was designated by at least one of them as "a hell-hole on the boulevard."

Mr. Hennessy opened the argument for the petitioners, saying that the matter before the commission was an old-told tale. His clients had come once more to ask for their rights, but undoubtedly there were still some people who feared that because the commission was asked to grant a license to a dance hall, the city would be a worse place than it was. The question, he argued, was one of vetting up or establishing a dance hall pavilion.

Mr. Bechard, according to counsel, knows what he is doing; he is not asking to do business in a predatory manner. He asks simply for the ordinary privilege of conducting a dance hall. If he violates the rules he is aware of the consequences; no irrevocable right is to be given him, no undying privilege; nothing more than a very ordinary thing, a dance hall privilege.

Speaking of the opposition voiced on other occasions by a neighborly hospital, he said the opposition no longer exists. Only one objection can be made now—an objection on high moral grounds. With the efficient and capable police force in Lowell, he said, the dance halls in this city are better conducted than elsewhere in the commonwealth. The question is whether the police can enforce the law. He does not believe Mr. Bechard will allow any evil-doing on the premises, and if this should be proven otherwise it is in the power of the police and the license commission to take the privilege away. He then showed photos of the projected dance hall to the commissioners.

Mr. Hennessy said that he had a number of witnesses present who had been there before to testify in Mr. Bechard's favor. Chairman Hanson ordered him to produce them.

Witnesses for Bechard

Dr. Pierre Brunelle said that he has known Bechard since boyhood, and knows that he is honest in purpose and intent to do the right thing. He has read about the objections raised on other petitions, and can see reasons for fear on the part of Pawtucketville residents. This fear he believes to be unfounded. Relative to the disturbance and noise which would be created by a dance hall, he said that if he were connected with an institution nearby he might object, lest the noise disturb the patients.

John J. Mullaney, a former license commissioner, said that he had come there at Mr. Richard's request and that he believed the privilege should be granted. He reminded Mr. Hanson of the unpleasantness concerning the Kaslo several years ago, when an injunction was sought by residents of the neighborhood. He and Mr. Hanson, he said, had visited the place several times and found nothing wrong. There has never been a complaint since, said Mr. Mullaney, and even church parties are conducted there.

He thought that the board had need of judgment in refusing a license while the trustees of the hospital had voiced opposition. Now, however, with the dance hall moved farther up the boulevard, he thought there was no difference in the conditions than those which prevail in Lawrence, Amesbury, Haverhill and Providence, where dance halls are located at about the same distance from the city. He expressed the feeling that the construction and licensing of such a place might be an improvement. He said that an investor would take good care of his property and his license, and would not let the trustees of the hospital claim to exist by the remonstrants are found non-existent.

Timothy E. Roy, Ernest J. Dupont, Alfred Sicaud, and Archie Miller, the latter the proprietor of a filling station near the proposed site, testified to the good character of Mr. Bechard, and expressed the opinion that the pavilion would be properly conducted and that the location was a proper one for such an establishment.

Remonstrants Are Heard

William H. Rigby opened for the remonstrants. He said that he came there to register a protest against the granting of the license as a resident of Pawtucketville. A father and a friend of other fathers and mothers, he admitted Mr. Bechard's good character, but said that had nothing to do with the main issue. He asked the commissioners if they knew the locality and asked them to picture it under cover of night. No one could tell more about the boulevard than he, he asserted. He told of improper conduct he had witnessed in broad daylight, and said that if such conditions could exist by daylight one could imagine what was likely to occur during the dark hours of the night. Mr. Bechard cannot prevent it, he can only care for his dance hall and the conduct of his patrons within the building.

Mr. Rigby told of the polluting received by that section of Pawtucketville. But one police officer is assigned to that locality, and one officer to the easterly side. This officer never visits the vicinity of the new site.

On the boulevard last Sunday said Mr. Rigby, he saw two young men in a drunken condition, accosting passing women. They were later placed under arrest. He said that he was no moralist and there were no wings aprouting from his shoulders, but he has a daughter, and he has friends who have daughters, whom he would not like to see visiting what he had previously characterized as a hell-hole on the boulevard. He did not blame Mr. Miller, with a gas tank, for favoring the project; it would be a wonderful thing indeed for Mr. Miller.

He said that the police at the present time cannot control the city dance halls. In reference to one prominently located dance hall he has seen a stream of young men rushing from the building in which the dance hall is situated to a rest room across the street. Since there is an ice cream parlor 25 feet away, he did not think they were going there for ice cream. He believed the boulevard would be one of the finest locations conceivable for bootlegging.

He referred to several notorious incidents which had occurred in the vicinity of the boulevard, and said that it was worthy of note that all were headed in the same direction. Mr. Rigby suggested that Mr. Bechard might do well to stay in his present business. The old dance hall, he supposed, had been cared for by the Lord, since it is shut on the ground.

Undesirable Conditions

Asked by Mr. McGrath if conditions such as he described prevail at the present time, Mr. Rigby said that he would rather answer elsewhere, but pressed by the commissioner he stated emphatically that they did. Asked if he had ever complained to the police, he replied that arrests have been made within a week at his instigation.

Dr. A. G. Dennett, who lives near the boulevard, testified that he goes there frequently on professional visits. He told of observations he had made, and of autos parked in secluded spots at night. The boulevard attracts a rough element, and he did not think a dance hall would improve conditions. Samuel G. Lyons, who has lived for 20 years within a short distance of the boulevard, said that he knew everyone who had spoken in behalf of the project, and knew, also, that none of them would want the dance hall near his own house. They know the conditions. He would not describe these conditions as Mr. Rigby had; his description, he feared, would be less flattering. If a white way could be installed along the boulevard, conditions might be improved, but with the present lack of supervision everything might be all right in the dance hall but conditions on the outside would be lamentable. The police, no matter how many were assigned, could not keep up with things as they occurred. He said that the swimming pool had been detrimental to an extent, but the good it has done counteracts the bad.

History of Boulevard

Joseph M. Wilson, one of Pawtucketville's oldest residents, was the next opposition speaker. He told of the donation of the boulevard to the city by 12 residents of the section, with the exception of one part owned by a man named Green, which was ultimately purchased with funds raised by Commissioner Putnam and Hon. Charles D. Palmer, a former mayor. Wilson was the days of real sport, said Mr.

Wilson. The property was donated for clean sport; it was given for horsemen and the pleasure-riding public. The founders built better than they knew, however, for though given for horses it was used on holidays by thousands of automobiles, and will become, eventually, a part of the projected Daniel Webster highway. Therefore, it should be kept clean. He has no idea that the Bechards and Mr. Liriole are other than reputable men, but he thinks their project detrimental.

At this point he was accused by Mr. Hennessy of looking for sympathy, but Chairman Hanson ruled that he might proceed.

Mr. Wilson resumed, saying that he thought Mr. Hennessy had appealed for sympathy for the petitioners. He thinks the boulevard and its donors are entitled to protection, and there is no question in his mind regarding dance halls; a dance hall is not at least an elevating place, and certainly is not exactly a school of propriety. He believes that the boulevard with the river bathhouse as beautiful as it is, is undeniably opposed to the erection of what he feels is an unthinkable menace.

Lavation Too Secluded

Rev. Arthur G. Lyon said that he represented 99 out of 100 of the mothers and fathers of Pawtucketville. The citizens whom he represented prayed the board not to grant the license. Twice in its wisdom the commission had seen fit to refuse and has had with it the sentiment of the thinking people of Lowell, and will have it once more if the petition is again refused.

He came in the interest of the young people of Lowell. The new site is in a more secluded and worse location than the first. Twice the hearings had been attended by remonstrants who filled the hall. The sentiment is still the same, stronger than ever. If anything, on account of the new location. He had told them that there was no necessity of coming last night.

Mr. Lyon said he was not opposed to dancing. He questioned whether another dance hall was needed, in such an improper place. He said that he represented both Catholics and Protestants to oppose the license, but if the board thinks it would be a good thing to grant it he will stand with them, but he urged them to consider the conditions. It was the profit of a few men balanced against the morals and welfare of the young people.

In reply to a question by Commissioner McGrath, Mr. Lyon said he had often asked for additional police protection, but had received no response. After a few other remarks in rebuttal, the hearing was continued until next Tuesday night.

BOXING

Tell the Lowell fans to let their memories drift back to a few weeks ago when Danny Edwards, of California, blew into Boston as an unknown, and in the course of a few weeks, knocked off a few New England champions, Chick Sugars and Abe Friedman and then they will have some idea of this sensational lightweight. Fugate Norton, who is going to substitute for South Boston Johnny Downes against Phiney Boyle in the main event at the Moody club show tomorrow night, said Jackie Williams in a telephonic conversation with the writer last evening. He added: "Norton is another Edwards."

Williams, who is also manager of Downes, Tommy Robson, Willie Corbett and several others, is very enthusiastic over his latest acquisition and predicts that the Lowell fans will see just as good a fight as the original card.

"Downes," said the popular manager, "is keenly disappointed over his inability to go through with the fight, but he feels he can beat Boyle as he did before and as he is confronted with several big doctors' bills, he would like nothing better than to go to the hospital where he is now recuperating. Against Boyle he had it all figured out that a record turnout and a consequent banner cut of dough would come his way."

Promoter Dodge, who interviewed several Boston experts who had seen Norton in action, and who also went into the records for verification, feels satisfied that he will prove a worthy opponent for Boyle. "I will not add a penny to the bout," he said, "I will gladly pay back those who do not think so. Far enough, isn't it?" concluded the local promoter.

In the meantime Phiney Boyle comes to bat. "I'm sorry Downes can't come for a low limit a licking, but it's one of the breaks of the game, and I am in condition to battle my lightweight in the business. I am in the best condition of my career, thanks to Jackie Leachy, and I am confident of getting away to a good start. Then I will be ready for Downes, Pruzzetti, Humlin or any of them."

In the semi final Vic Rivet and Joe Josephs will meet. The preliminary performers are Danny Murphy vs. Sammy Goldberg and Micky Mullin vs. Eddie Partell.

Chicillo Cardillo writes The Sun in the interest of two of his boys, Willie Gradwell and Red Chapman. He would like to know either or both. Willie Gradwell is a classy lightweight and Chapman is a featherweight. The latter has defeated such boys as Micky Young, Micky Castor, Young Manly, Young Kansas and Al Girard. He is at present matched to meet Cast Iron Gradwell in a ten round Friday night bout at Brockton on Friday night.

Johnny Brown of Newport, who appeared in two thrilling bouts here against Mike Castles, winning the first and losing the second when he was forced to quit because of an injury to his eye, is still on the shelf. He will be out of the game for another few weeks, as a second operation on the injured eye, was found necessary.

Pat McCarthy, who trained with Dan Coughlin of Lowell for two weeks, was in great condition on Monday night when he met and defeated Capt. Bob Roper at Worcester. Roper scored a knockdown in the fourth round, but Pat recovered and from then on carried the fight to his soldier rival.

Tilly Woods of Manchester, who has performed here on many occasions, added another victory to his list when he defeated Woonsocket Joe Gibbs at Worcester the other night.

Joe Beckett and George Cook, foreign heavyweights, will quarrel for parking space on the canvas at London tonight.

Jack Delaney, who was knocked out in a round by Augie Rath, a Jackie more hard game in Joe Stone at Fall River tonight.

Bobby Josephs in recovering slowly but surely from his recent operation for appendicitis. The little fellow bumped into an unlucky vein, but he views his troubles with the same grit that he fights his ring battles.

A telegram to The Sun from Lou Dixie received this morning. At the Arena, A. of Jersey City last night Al Diamond scored a clean cut victory over Tommy Gilmore, former Jersey state amateur champion, and dropped Gilmore in the first round for nine and held an upper hand throughout the bout.

RED SOX WIN OVER PIRATES

Harris, Smith and Pratt Emulate Babe Ruth and Boston Club Wins Series

Senators Come From Behind and Hand Boston Braves 12 to 9 Licking

PITTSBURGH, March 29.—Home runs by Joe Harris, Elmer Smith and Derrill Pratt were too much for the Pittsburgh Nationals at Pine Bluff, Ark., yesterday, and the Boston Americans romped off on the heels of a 12 to 9 score. It was the closing clash of the two teams. Johnny Morrison held the mound for the Pirates for seven innings and not until the seventh was his delivery cracked by the Bostonians.

Russell was rapped for two times in the opener, but tightened and the Pirates were afterward unable to score. Higbee, Carey and Ray Hower singled and Traynor doubled, giving the Pittsburghers their two runs. Joe Harris started the double in the sixth with a drive over contrived fence. Burns singled and Foster's double tied the mark. Blake collected Morrison in the eighth and the fun began. Smith winning the ball over the right field fence. In the ninth, after two walks and a wild pitch, Pratt wanted three with another circuit drive.

Senators Rout Braves
WASHINGTON, March 29.—The Nationals yielded a heavy attack to overcome a seven lead and took the fifth game from the Boston Braves at Tampa, Fla., yesterday, 12 to 9, which gave them the edge in the series. The 14 hits today, and the fun began. Smith winning the ball over the right field fence. In the ninth, after two walks and a wild pitch, Pratt wanted three with another circuit drive.

Zachary, starting for Washington, spotted the Braves a seven run lead in the first inning, but McGuffee, his successor, proved a complete puzzle and held the National leaguers runless until the Nationals scored, scoring in the eighth and winning the game. The four innings Marquard worked, but lambasted the next three Boston pitchers, Gschlager, Cooney and Miller.

Lands Sees Glants Win
CHICAGO, March 29.—The Chicago Americans having received their third round from the world champion Giants are scheduled to perform their pre-season tricks against the St. Louis Cardinals today. The game will be watched by the big "Lefty" Russell for six hits and six runs in four rounds and then continue their slugging and power hitting. The Cardinals have been losing the four innings Marquard worked, but lambasted the next three Boston pitchers, Gschlager, Cooney and Miller.

NATIONALS CERTAIN TO MAKE TROUBLE

PHILLIPS, GOSLIN, PECKINPAUGH, MCGREW

TAMPA, Fla., March 29.—Owner Griffith and Manager Milan of the Washington club are confident of finishing in the first division. It is in feeling, rather than in fact, that Peckinpaugh will add his great production other than the Nationals will be in the select four. Washington finished fourth in the American league last season, just a half game away from St. Louis. While both Griffith and Milan would like to win the pennant, still to be able to better that position at last season would be considered a step in the right direction. Washington is a much better ball club this year than last. This statement is based entirely on the addition of Roger Peckinpaugh. Shortstop is a most vital position. The infield's strength is in a measure based on the calibre of its shortstop. Last season the Washington club lost at least 15 games through inefficiency in that position.

SCHAEFER STILL LEADS IN TITLE CUE BATTLE

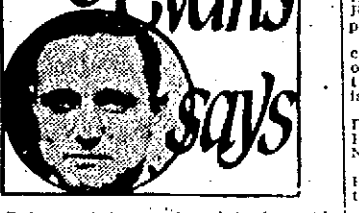

CHICAGO, March 29.—Breaks of the game admittedly will play a big part in deciding tonight the world's 18.2 ball cue championship for which, after two nights' play, Jack Schaefer, champion, leads Willie Hoppe, former champion, 1000 to 252, in a 1500-point match. And the champion, as on last night, will be highly favored in that, since he will find the balls grouped within a hand's spread at the foot of the table for repositioning of his 14th inning run of 68 with which he closed the second block last night. The veteran Hoppe, undiminished by watching spectacular shooting which at one point had him behind nearly 300 points, gave a remarkable display of nerve as well as playing of the type which made him champion for 16 years, and in his last stand at the table last night, actually crept at Hoppe's staunchest supporters admitted that the grouping of the balls for Schaefer's opening shot tonight in the former champion at a great disadvantage.

HARVARD FOOTBALL SQUAD OUT
BOSTON, March 29.—The Harvard football squad, out for spring practice numbers 42 men to date. Captain-elect, Charles Buell, and Henry Brown of last year's varsity appeared yesterday. secured one of the best shortstops in the history of the game. He does everything well. Although not a hard hitter, he is very dangerous in a pinch. It is in feeling, rather than in fact, that Peckinpaugh will add his great production other than the Nationals will be in the select four. Billy Evans says

Babe Ruth has made a lot of trouble in the American league with his home run swats. I have seen many an argument between pitcher and catcher, and pitcher and manager, after Babe has come through with a homer in a pinch. However, it seems that Babe's ability to hit them over the fence has actually made trouble in the National league. According to the wires, Pitcher James E. Connolly, who is one of the leading pitchers in the National league, is the latest member of the "in bad" society. It seems that Haines asked Mickey how to pitch to Ruth. Mickey then, according to the story, Haines pitched just the opposite to his manager's instruction. A home run followed. An argument ensued. That evening Haines was on the way home. Mickey is reported to have said, "We must have discipline." Babe is nothing if not original.

Goslin For Right Field
In the study of last year Goslin had a brief trial with the Nationals and looked great. In spring practice he has continued to play good ball. It is a certainty that he will start in right field with the Nationals, playing the other two outfield positions. None of the other recruits taken south by the Nationals threaten to displace any of the regulars. However, it looks as if a number of worthy substitutes have been picked up. The only unpleasant feature of the training trip to date has been the condition of Walter Johnson. Throughout the training period he has been under the weather. First, it was head cold, then a case of flu or grippie, plus a few other minor ailments. These things have retarded Walter's condition and he has not been in his stride. He may be a bit late in getting started. Since pitching is the Nationals' big strength, it is not surprising that the leading role, Manager Milan is naturally a bit worried over the situation.

The Brooklyn club is one of the leading pitchers in the National league. Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals led the National league in hitting last season. Hornsby is a right hander while Roush hits from the left side of the plate. Grimes is a pitcher who makes a careful study of the batters. That is one of the big reasons for his continued success. His opinion therefore is worthy of attention. The Brooklyn ace says Roush is harder to pitch to than Hornsby. Here is his size-up of the National league's two best hitters: "I can tell almost exactly what the manager plans to do from his position at the plate, but Roush never. "Once Hornsby takes his position at the plate he never changes it. If he grows the plate you know he is trying to hit to right field; if he stands off you know he wants to pull one to left field. "Hornsby always takes a healthy swing. It is a rarity for him to hunt on you. "Knowing these things, I pitch to Hornsby accordingly. If he makes a mistake I don't always fool him. I make a bare hit off my delivery. What I mean is, there is nothing mysterious about Hornsby's intentions when he steps to the plate. "On the other hand, Roush always takes the same position when he steps into the batter's box, but he keeps you guessing as to whether he is going to hit to right field or to left field. Louise Is in Luck—She Looks Just Like Mary Pickford

ONE OF THESE IS MARY PICKFORD AND THE OTHER IS LOUISE DU PRE. WE'RE A BIT CONFUSED, BUT IF WE REMEMBER CORRECTLY, LOUISE IS ON THE LEFT.

BY JAMES V. DEAN
NEW YORK, March 28.—Found—another Mary Pickford! "Mary Pickford" are found almost every day in almost every country, but few of them look like Mary.

No woman's face in the world is so well known as Mary's. In all the ages there probably has been no woman so admired by other women.

In the legion that have claimed resemblance to Miss Pickford, Louise Du Pre is the only one recognized by her as her "double."

Miss Du Pre is a southern girl of 22. Miss Du Pre's understudy in "Pollyanna" now who is to be starred in her own right. She has started a picture called "The Proof of Innocence." It is a story of the art studios of Greenwich Village. That seems hardly a Pickford type of story.

Miss Du Pre is declared by her sponsors to resemble Mary in every feature and to possess all of the latter's physical dimensions except shoe size. It is whispered that Louise's feet are smaller than Mary's. Lese-majesty!

The more important comparison would be along the lines of histrionic and mimetic capability. Mary's great popularity lies more in her ability to act than in her appearance.

Movie Mentality

Richard M. Page recently conducted mentality tests at Hollywood after the manner of the tests used in the army. He announced that motion picture people have a mentality above the average mentality of other professions. That may be so. And it may not. But it is doubtful if he losted the parties responsible for title changes.

Kipling, in One Reel

What promises to be one of the most noteworthy contributions to the screen in many months is a one-reel version of Rudyard Kipling's "Ballad of Plover's Boarding House." William Dean Howells and Henry James characterized that as an unrivaled masterpiece of stark and brutal realism. Putting this epic in one reel is a bit of same condensation on the part of Pathé.

Speaking of Stars

It has been noted here several times that with fewer and bigger pictures being made, films are enjoying more capable casts. Better pictures result. The cast of a new film includes Rosemary Theby, Alice Lake, Wallace and Noah Deery, Gaston Glass, Kenneth Harlan and Hector Sarno. It is "I Am the Law," directed by Edwin Carewe.

At Studio Keyholes

Tom Mix says he has 70 snags on his body. That would be a calamity were it true of some of our leading feminine stars.

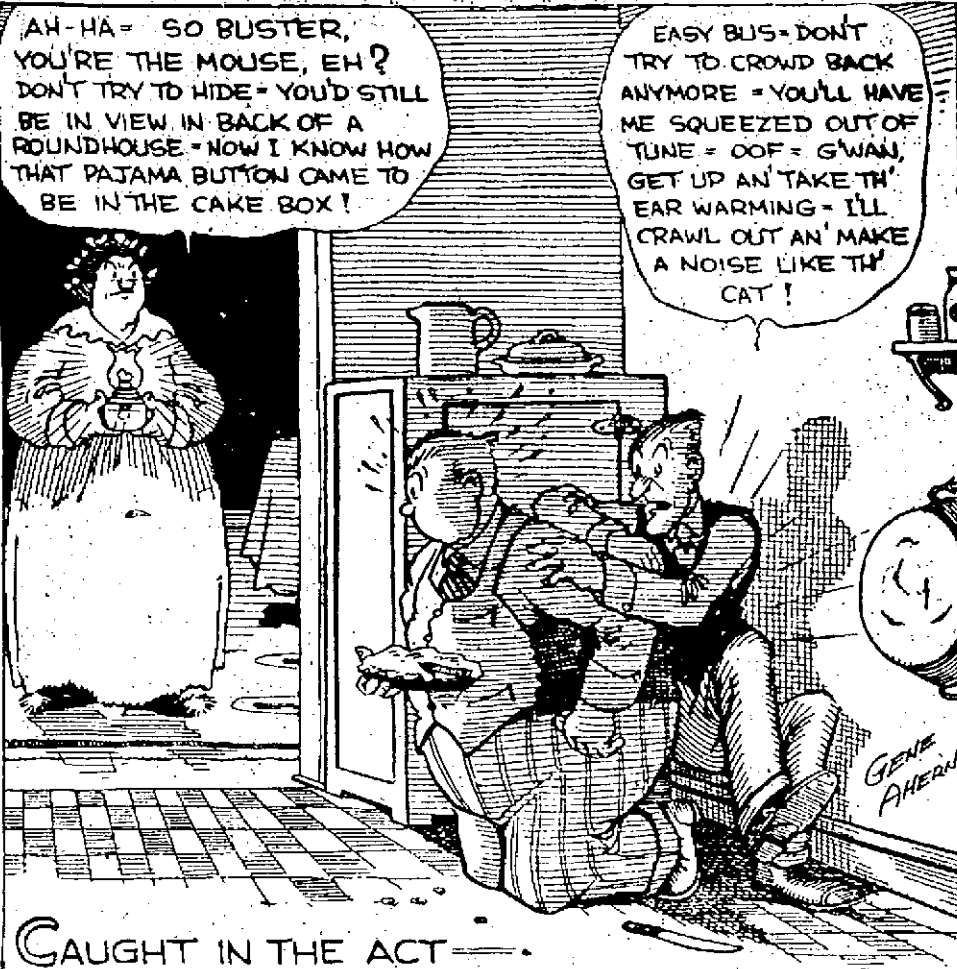

"If Winter Comes" will be filmed in New York by William Fox. Neither director nor cast has yet been chosen.

Priscilla Dean's screen name in "Under Two Flags" will be "Cigarette"—if the reformers don't object.

"The Film" by Booth Tarkington, will be filmed by Universal.

SHOT DEAD IN BERLIN

Two Czarist Officers Charged With Murder and Attempted Assassination

BERLIN, March 28.—(By the Associated Press) Two Czarist officers have been arrested charged with killing Vladimir Nabokoff and attempting to assassinate Prof. Paul N. Milukoff. The men are Peter Schabelski-Brook and three hours to make up. He has to bronze his body and there are 215 pounds of it.

Andree Peyro, French stunt aviator, will take part in Ruth Roland's next serial.

Jarjots Tabowitzki, M. Nabokoff was killed during an attack on M. Milukoff while the latter was addressing a Russian meeting here last night.

The authorities believe other Russian monarchists who were present but succeeded in escaping were implicated in the plot to assassinate M. Milukoff.

Prof. Milukoff was formerly minister of foreign affairs in the Russian provisional government and M. Nabokoff was secretary of state in the first Russian parliamentary cabinet under Prince Lvoff.

M. Milukoff's presence of mind enabled him to escape, as he made a quick forward and downward movement when the first shots were fired. His assailants noticed the stage to renew the attack at short range, but one of the officers was seized by M. Nabokoff and thrown to the floor. His companion came to the rescue and fired the fatal shots into Nabokoff from behind.

Prof. Milukoff meanwhile had succeeded in reaching an ante-room off the stage, while the assassins were seized by the infuriated spectators, who threatened to lynch them.

One of the men who assisted in their capture is Vladimir Nastomoff-Leventon, a Russian journalist employed in Berlin and a brother of the actress Nazimova.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents)

M. P. KEITH'S THEATRE

Toto, the internationally famous clown, is the big feature of this present week's bill at the M. P. Keith theatre. No more interesting and entertaining clowning has been seen in the city since the medium of pantomime and clowning as Toto. He will hear working men, women and children with his work. And he will bring in their music-comedy fun are prize funnys, who shift their styles from time to time, and (Lowland) McLean in a fresh hit keep everybody in good humor. Among the other acts of the week which are worth while are: Pierce & Goff, two girls in a musical turn, Wally Edwards in comedy and dancing; Adonis & Co. in an artistic novelty, and Herber & Dare, premier athletes.

OPERA HOUSE

Strong in dramatic situations that follow one after another in rapid succession and relieved every so often by the injection of good, wholesome humor, the play for the week at the Opera house, "The Girl in the Red Velvet Gown," is a most interesting stage presentation of the story of a girl who is driven to single out any one member of the cast for special, meritorious work. Each and every one is pleasantly assigned, and their individual efforts are most commendable. The story of the play is a little bit of a rebuke to birth control and will surely interest all, particularly the women folk. See it and benefit.

THE STRAND

Today affords the last opportunity for particular picture patrons to see the big Jumbo Oliver Curwood special "The Girl from Porcupine," with Claire Bloney and an all-star cast engaged in its interpretation. It's a superior grade offering and worthy of your consideration. The other feature is Max Linder in his newest and best comedy drama, "Be My Wife."

For the week-end, beginning with matinee on Thursday, the bill will be headed by Allan Dwan's special production, "The Sin of Martha Quest." The sin of this young woman existed only in the mind of her suspicious, tyrannical father, who was so corrupt of mind that he believed the lying evidence of a scoundrel, instead of the pure truth of his own daughter. She had degraded the fair name of Queen Mary Thurman, whose characterizations on the screen are favorably remembered, will portray the role of the young woman and the other characterizations will be in capable hands.

Smiling Floot Gibson is coming in his latest screen success, "Headlin' West," a new kind of a picture for him, and one showing him in a brand new character. You'll like his work and the story is the kind that will appeal to all. It has vigor and romance galore.

RIALTO THEATRE

Today the Thomas H. Ince production, "Fall the Woman" enters upon its third day's showing at the Rialto theatre and from the early indications it looks as though a record crowd will be on hand to see the picture. Produced by a man of great vision, the picture is a glorified by human sacrifice and devotion. It is one of suffering and patience and will go straight with an appeal to the heart. "Theodore Roberts, as the Puritan father of an old New Hampshire household, is one of the strong cast that is seen in the production. On the same program with "Fall the Woman" is a western thriller and a comedy and it goes to round out a program that is classed among the Rialto's best in years. Don't fail to see it.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances will be given at the Merrimack Square theatre this evening of "Poli's Paradise," starring Dorothy Dalton, and many other famous players in Cecil H. De Mille's latest Paramount production. Tomorrow there will be a complete change of program. Features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will include Conway Tearle in "A Wide Open Town," and Clyde Cook in "Her Face Value," and Clyde Cook in "The Tormentor," three of the best attractions that have come to Lowell in many months.

In "A Wide Open Town," Solznick's latest picture starring Conway Tearle, the star is cast in a role which will prove particularly interesting to a large class of people who find that environment is the most important factor in the moulding of character.

The photograph tells the story of a boy, born in poverty and ignorance yet possessed of impulses which are fundamentally good, who gets into a lot of trouble and eventually tries to work out his salvation in the world with only a reform school education as his ammunition. It is while working in a gambling room that a powerful reforming influence in the form of the love of a good pure girl comes into his life. In protecting her name from scandal he is forced to kill one of his gambling associates, firing the death dealing shot in self defense. His establishment among the ranks of the conventionally respectable is accomplished, with the aid of the girl when his innocence of intentional wrongdoing is proved to the satisfaction of the governor of the state who is found to have been a hoodlum in the tenebrous district in which both were born.

A large and notable cast is to be seen in support of the star in "A Wide Open Town." Lovely Fairs Binney, favorite player of both stage and screen, plays the leading supporting role. Here is a charming and sympathetic girl who calls into play all her enviable qualities and the manner in which she acquiesces herself is a tribute both to her art and character. Others in the cast are James Sealey, Harry Tiche, Claude Brooks, Ned Sparks, Daniel Hayer, John Wade, Alice May, Bobby Connelly and Jerry Devine.

A bit of wholesome advice to brides, neatly disguised, is contained in "Her Face Value." The second big feature for the week-end, "Wanda," Hawley is shown as a young wife whose relative lack about her little home so frequently and make themselves so thoroughly at home that her husband is forced to seek the company of his bachelor friends. How she wins him back and at the same time disposes of her relatives makes a delightful bit of entertainment. The "Tormentor" presents Clyde Cook in one of the funniest productions of his career and the Inter-Com will complete the bill. Coming next Monday: Wallace Held in "The World's Champion."

"FOOLISH WIVES" COMING

man who through his enacting of heavy roles of sinister nature has by the very diabolical character of his portrayals given a stronger meaning to the stage name of villain than any actor now before the public, and has given rise to the much bandied statement that he is "the man you will love to hate." The presentation of "Foolish Wives" in New York, Boston and other leading cities has been creative of most enthusiastic reports of its sensational character. Von Stroheim moves in its story to the accompaniment of a strange admixture of comedy and thrills, so impressively in his distastefulness in character. It is a production really deserving the title of spectacle, for there are sensational scenes of startling character entailing tremendous expense, even in these days of prodigally bestowed productions. This is the first showing of this most remarkable photoplay north of Boston, and will undoubtedly create no end of comment among the large number of picture fans hereabouts. Nothing just as big has ever been shown here before. It is a genuine million dollar production. Watch the papers for further information on M. Reed it all, for it will interest you. Besides providing wonderful entertainment it teaches a lesson that can be carried over to many of the so-called "foolish wives." Boston and New York paid $1 prices to see it. Remember it starts its engagement on Sunday next.

STRIKE AND LOCKOUT IN PAWTUCKET MILL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 28.—The 200 employees in the weave shop of the Solway Dyeing and Textile Co., Pawtucket, were out today and the weave shop was closed. The men declared that some of them had struck and the rest had been locked out. The management said that the shop had been closed until Monday.

According to the men, recent changes in the working system in the department have forced them to work harder for less pay than before. This morning, they say, they sent a committee of three to the management to discuss the matter and the committee members were at once discharged. Most of the weavers then struck, they say, and the rest were locked out. The management claimed that they knew of no dissatisfaction among the men. The plant employs 500 hands, but departments outside the weave shop remained in operation.

VERITABLE WINE SALOON RAIDED

BARRE, Vt., March 28.—The Barre police force made a raid last evening, on what was alleged to have been a veritable wine saloon. The local police raided the premises of Alvin Perantoni at No. 4, a Seminary street. One of the largest liquor hauls of the season was made in the place and ten large barrels, containing approximately 500 gallons of wine, were seized. Besides this there were several small bottles filled with the same liquid and a pint of grappa. There were several persons on the premises at the time of the raid, most of whom were boarders at the Perantoni home. Mr. Perantoni was placed under arrest for the alleged sale of intoxicating liquor, but owing to the fact that he was ill in bed at the time of the raid, he cannot be arraigned in court for a few days.

"JOE" SMITH ADDRESSES LOCAL ROTARY CLUB

Joseph Smith, former Lowell man, now a publicity officer of the port of Boston, was the speaker at the Rotary club meeting held in the quarters of the Lowell Boys' club yesterday noon. Prior to Mr. Smith's address an excellent luncheon was served, followed by general jollification.

Mr. Smith was introduced by George F. Wells, secretary-manager of the chamber of commerce. After humorous comment on what had happened at the meeting of the club previous to his address, he began a discussion of the Boston chamber of commerce. He told of its sub-divisions, created to take care of the immense amount of detail with which it has to deal, and spoke gratefully of the co-operation which he had received from members of the various committees.

Little respect for the interstate commerce commission was voiced by the speaker, who said it was "sometimes with the railroad, sometimes against them." He never with business, which, he said, interfered with commerce.

Mr. Smith spoke of the new sources of power, including the project of harnessing Niagara Falls and the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence proposition. He said New England would get nothing out of this, but that Canada would derive the chief benefit. He suggested developing the power engendered by the various streams and waterfalls in New Hampshire.

The speaker said that New England is a unit, and must remain a unit. The railroads favor a long haul for freight for their own benefit, and New Englanders should concentrate their energies on the development of the port of Boston, thus eliminating the long haul and putting New England on the map, where she belongs. He believes the products of New England should be shipped from Boston, and raw materials unloaded from shipping in Boston.

He told of Mayor Curley's project of developing the former army base into a receiving station for imports, and, in general, a public utility. This is now in the hands of the United States shipping board.

Mr. Smith spoke of the benefit to be secured by this plan, if it can be put through. Cotton manufacturers will not have to maintain large cotton storage warehouses, but can get along with a small storage shed, to be replenished, as needed, from the public utility building in Boston. Mr. Smith went into considerable detail regarding this project, making comparisons with the situation on the Great Lakes and elsewhere, and telling of the damage done by the interstate commerce commission's differential.

The relief of the unemployment situation by the Boston public utility project was stressed by the speaker. He said it would give constant increasing employment to old soldiers and other ex-service men.

He told of the improvements already made in shipping from port of Boston. Within a few days, he asserted, direct shipping will be established between Boston and New England back where they used to be and should be today.

Mr. Smith closed his address with humorous comment on city affairs and civic spirit in general. He said that Boston, along with other cities, perhaps, needed about a thousand first class funerals.

According to present plans a half-mile race track will be laid out as well as a motorcycle track. Numerous buildings will also be erected on the premises and it is expected that in the fall an old-fashioned fair, with horse racing, will be conducted in the park. The company plans to expend about $25,000 in improvements.

INCREASE EFFICIENCY OF P. O. DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The postoffice is rapidly completing plans for a decentralization of much of the routine work of the department under a system of state central offices which postal officials believe will greatly increase the efficiency of the service and at the same time effect an important saving in cost. Details of policy, adjustments and service which have heretofore been thrown upon the department in Washington for final disposition, entailing delay and unnecessary expense in administration will under the new plan, be handled by a central office designated to exercise that authority for each state. Such offices already have been designated in several states, he said.

Much Unfinished Cloth Reported on Hand at the Hamilton Mills

It was stated today that there are thousands of yards of unfinished cloth in the plant of the Hamilton Mills, which means that the millers, who are on the job, will be kept busy for at least three months, providing they go through with their work. It is understood that this large quantity of unfinished cloth was allowed to accumulate during the time that all departments of the mill were kept busy on a full time schedule. It seems that at that time the napping department was unable to keep up with the other departments.

The strikers are doing their utmost to induce the nappers who are now working to remain away from the plant and accordingly the number of pickets at the mill has been doubled during the past few days.

Two men carrying with them proper credentials signed by the president of the Lowell Textile council and by members of the strike committee, left the strike headquarters in Central street this morning to solicit funds among the business and professional men of the city. They will accept any donation, large or small, and the donors, who would like to make their contributions in the form of checks, are requested to make the checks payable to Mrs. Annie Reagan, treasurer of the strike committee.

The strike committee has received permission from the managers of the B. F. Keith, Standard, and Rialto theatres to solicit donations in the lobbies of their respective theatres and as a result solicitors will be posted in these places beginning next Saturday.

Permission has also been received from the clerk of the board of selectmen of Clinton to solicit funds in that town and two young women of this city left this morning with collection boxes and will spend today, tomorrow and Friday in Clinton, collecting donations at the mill gates and on the streets.

President John Hanley of the Lowell Textile council stated today that the money being collected in this city and elsewhere is being distributed to the strikers, who have joined unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America since the strike started and those who are on strike and who are not connected with any labor organization, but no money is given out unless each individual case is properly investigated. The strikers, who were fully fledged members of unions prior to the strike, are being cared for with the regular strike fund of their respective organizations.

WATER HIGHER IN MERRIMACK RIVER

The Merrimack river is slowly but steadily rising, according to the locks and canals company's measurements, having risen seven inches at six o'clock and during the last 24 hours and a foot back of the Manchester mills in the same period. Since the flash boards at the dam have given away, the locks and canals engineers consider the records taken in the rear of the mill more accurate.

Thirty Assistant Assessors Employed This Year as Against 20 Last Year

The board of assessors today announced the list of assistant assessors for this year, who will begin work on April 1 and continue until polls and personal property assessments are completed.

The list follows: Michael Bourdon, Harry B. Crockett, John C. Grier, David, John J. Gilley, Edward T. Howard, Alfred Harlow, Thomas Kennedy, Elmer Lavachelle, Henry J. McCloskey, Herbert McKendle, John J. Mulligan, James J. Queenan, John S. Tourke, Jr., William A. Shea, Daniel Wholey, James H. Wynne, George Brennan, Thomas J. Lee, Francis M. Flanagan, William Gilligan, Ralph W. Green, John Hayes, Ralph Markham, Joseph Moriarty, John Hedding, Thomas H. Rogers, Paul Sadlier, Dennis Shea and Thomas Tarnely.

It will be seen that there are 30 assistant assessors this year, last year there were only 20. The assessors feel that the work will be expedited considerably by the addition of 10 more men and inasmuch as Lowell was a little late last year with its reports, it was deemed expedient to add a few to the list this year.

The assessors have not decided yet upon the amount of compensation for the assistants this year, but it will be figured on the basis of so much per name. Last year they were paid at the rate of four cents per name.

The assessors have been notified that Albert B. Fales, director of the division of local taxation of the state tax commissioner's office, will make a visit to Lowell tomorrow for the purpose of holding a conference with the local board on matters of general interest connected with taxation.

FOR FIRE PREVENTION SEEKING ARBITRATION

No Time Like Present to Remove Fire Dangers, Says Fire Chief

Fire Chief Edward F. Saunders today launched a campaign against the family rubbish pile and accumulations of litter in and about dwelling houses, which have been at the root of a number of fires lately.

To date this year there have been 122 fires in the city, against 141 for the same period of last year, but the department head does not believe there is any time like the present to indulge in a thorough house-cleaning.

"It is a venture to say," declared Chief Saunders, "that in countless homes in this community, attics and cellars are choked with stacks of newspapers, dilapidated furniture, cast-off clothing, old toys, rags and a miscellaneous assortment of worthless odds and ends that never will be used, and that can be characterized by no other term than junk."

"People are continually apologizing for the existence of trash piles. They are always on the point of removing them and never quite getting to it, at least in a thorough way. But with spring approaching, there is no better time to start about a complete elimination of these dangerous accumulations, which await the chance spark that usually arrives."

"Upwards of three-quarters of a million dollars in property in annually destroyed by fires due to rubbish and litter," according to figures carefully compiled by the national board of fire underwriters. Our department records prove that Lowell has contributed its share to this alarming national total and all through carelessness. There is no excuse for the rubbish pile; it is easily, cheaply and quickly removed—no expensive fire-fighting equipment is needed, only a little time and effort.

"It may not be amiss," continued the chief, "to speak a word of caution about a practice that at this season is always an additional hazard—the habit of burning over patches of dry grass. It has many times resulted in serious fires and caused loss of life. The children particularly should be forbidden to light the grass in vacant lots and other open spaces, and play around the houses."

"Last year," Chief Saunders concluded, "the city of Lowell had 933 recorded alarms of fires. This year, to date, the number is to keep running behind last year and it is to the interest of every citizen to keep the total down. One of the first steps is to clear away the rubbish from our homes and places of business."

The state board of arbitration and conciliation through one of its agents, Fred M. Knight, is investigating the leather workers' strike in this city, and today Mr. Knight is attempting to induce the American Hite & Leather Co. to meet a committee of employees in conference in an endeavor to bring about a settlement of the grievances, which are the result of the posting of notices in the plant, announcing a 10 per cent. reduction in wages.

Agent Knight got in touch with General Organizer Shea of the National Leather Workers' union, who is in charge of the local strike, over the long distance telephone late yesterday afternoon, and was informed that the strikers of this city are ready and willing to meet any (inasmuch as the bargaining of the strike is to meet their employers and talk business with them).

One of the officials of the strike committee stated today that the union will not go to the company unless requested to do so. "We informed them on the morning of the opening of the strike," he said, "that we were ready at any time to meet them around the table and discuss matters pertaining to the strike," but they have not even replied. Now it is up to them to make the first move."

Information was given out at strike headquarters today to the effect that, in addition to the three carloads of coal which have been on the tracks in the rear of the plant since last week, three more cars loaded with coal and four containing green stock have arrived and are now on the spur tracks of the company. No attempt has been made so far to unload the cars.

It is figured that about 25 per cent of the strikers have secured employment out-of-town and in this city, and more are leaving every day to accept work in Woburn, Peabody, Winchendon and Worcester, where it is said, there is a great demand for experienced leather workers.

A mass meeting of the strikers was held at headquarters in Central street this afternoon and the gathering was addressed by Rev. Mr. Bateman of Peabody, a clergyman who is very much interested in the labor movement.

Board of Arbitration and Conciliation Agent Investigating Tannery Strike

The state board of arbitration and conciliation through one of its agents, Fred M. Knight, is investigating the leather workers' strike in this city, and today Mr. Knight is attempting to induce the American Hite & Leather Co. to meet a committee of employees in conference in an endeavor to bring about a settlement of the grievances, which are the result of the posting of notices in the plant, announcing a 10 per cent. reduction in wages.

Agent Knight got in touch with General Organizer Shea of the National Leather Workers' union, who is in charge of the local strike, over the long distance telephone late yesterday afternoon, and was informed that the strikers of this city are ready and willing to meet any (inasmuch as the bargaining of the strike is to meet their employers and talk business with them).

One of the officials of the strike committee stated today that the union will not go to the company unless requested to do so. "We informed them on the morning of the opening of the strike," he said, "that we were ready at any time to meet them around the table and discuss matters pertaining to the strike," but they have not even replied. Now it is up to them to make the first move."

Information was given out at strike headquarters today to the effect that, in addition to the three carloads of coal which have been on the tracks in the rear of the plant since last week, three more cars loaded with coal and four containing green stock have arrived and are now on the spur tracks of the company. No attempt has been made so far to unload the cars.

It is figured that about 25 per cent of the strikers have secured employment out-of-town and in this city, and more are leaving every day to accept work in Woburn, Peabody, Winchendon and Worcester, where it is said, there is a great demand for experienced leather workers.

A mass meeting of the strikers was held at headquarters in Central street this afternoon and the gathering was addressed by Rev. Mr. Bateman of Peabody, a clergyman who is very much interested in the labor movement.

Foreigners Join With English-Speaking People on Strike in Lawrence—Pacific Mill Official Admits Strike Gaining—Police Marshal Bars Parades—22 Rhode Island Mills Closed by Strike

LAWRENCE, March 29.—More active picketing at the mill gates of seven mills in which a wage cut of 20 per cent went into effect Monday, resulted in a considerable addition to the strike ranks this morning. It was admitted at the Audubon mill that conditions were very bad, and at the Pacific and Everett mills, both started operations with considerably reduced forces. Up to today, the strike has been one almost entirely of English-speaking workers, but today there were a number of foreigners on the streets. There were no disturbances, however, although strikers from some of the mills marched to the common for a mass meeting and shouted and jeered as they went along.

City Marshal Timothy J. O'Brien warned Ben Legere, a "One Big Union" leader, that if he attempted to lead any strike parades he would be stopped. The police say he led such a parade yesterday noon.

DISMISS LIQUOR CASE

Case Charging Larceny of $6480 Worth of Liquor Dismissed Today

The larceny complaint against William H. Reynolds and Herbert C. Lough, who were charged with the theft of $6480 worth of liquor from the Bay State storage in Jackson street on November 5, 1921, was dismissed for lack of prosecution when brought before Judge Thomas J. Enright in district court this morning.

This case has caused widespread interest as the liquor is said to be the property of a local fraternal organization. It has been on the docket a number of times and has met with many continuances.

While in the midst of an assault and battery case today action was suspended and the liquor case was brought up and quickly dismissed. Atty. J. Joseph Hennessy appeared for the defendant while Hon. Dennis J. Murphy appeared for the prosecution.

In the complaint the liquor is said to be the property of one John H. Farrell and was designated as follows: one barrel of wine of the value of $600; 408 bottles of whiskey, each bottle valued at $10, and 15 cases of gin, each valued at $120 per case.

Difference in Opinion Relative to Election of Public School Teachers

Joseph Duffy Unanimously Elected Physical Instructor in Elementary Schools

Thomas Harkins is Elected Engineer of the New High School

The question of the legality of electing teachers in local public schools without recommendation of the superintendent caused a sharp division of opinion at the meeting of the school committee last night. Opposition developed the moment Mr. Lambert requested permission to submit to the committee an opinion on the matter secured by him from the city collector, in which it was stated that elections of teachers without an accompanying recommendation of the superintendent has no validity as a matter of fact.

Chairman Riley expressed his feelings on the matter by saying that inasmuch as no individual or subcommittee of the whole had been authorized to secure any such opinion, it had no place in the meeting and, therefore, he would not entertain any motion regarding it.

Mr. Sullivan soon after moved that the superintendent, the chairman and one other member be authorized to seek an opinion on the matter from the law department, but the motion was lost.

THE LOST NESMITH FUND

Former Solicitor Regan Suggests Way of Rehabilitating Principal of Bequests

Former City Solicitor William D. Regan is of the opinion that any misfortune arising from the so-called disappearance of the principal of the Nesmith fund, some time in the misty past, can be eliminated by appealing to the state legislature for the passage of an enabling act, authorizing the city, through loan or taxation, to raise the principal of the bequest, amounting to $26,000, and pay them over to some trustees authorized to receive the same.

Mr. Regan says further that in his opinion that when the bequests or loans were accepted by the board of aldermen of that city on December 13, 1870, the board of aldermen had no legal authority to make or attempt to make such a bargain or trade. The statutes then in existence specified with particularity the various objects and subjects that a city could contract in and with relation to and an examination of the statutes disclose that no

Apparatus Rushed From Quebec Able to Do Little to Check the Blaze

Brothers Rush Into Blazing Structure to Save Famous Relics

Scene of Fire Most Famous Mecca of Religious Pilgrims in North America

QUEBEC, March 29.—Fire today destroyed the Basilica of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, famous for its shrine, but the statue of Ste. Anne, with the historical relics to which miraculous cures have been ascribed, were saved.

The flames which started in the sacristy, spread rapidly to the monastery of the Redemptorist Fathers, to whose care the shrine had been entrusted, and then to the Basilica.

Apparatus sent from this city to the most famous mecca of religious pilgrims in North America, was able to do little to check the blaze.

Monastery officials estimated the property damage at $1,200,000. That a greater toll of church relics was not taken was due to the heroic efforts of the brothers who risked their lives in saving what they could from the interior of the Basilica.

The fire, believed to have been started by a short circuit in the electric wiring system of the sacristy, in less than an hour drove the fathers from the building.

A call for help despatched to the Quebec fire department brought the chief of the brigade with an engine and a company of men, on a special train.

Meanwhile the flames spread to the monastery and defied the efforts of a

Witnesses Testify to Good Character of Messrs. Bechard and Lirette

Whether or not the third attempt to establish a dance pavilion on the Pawtucket boulevard is successful will remain undecided for at least a week, according to the edict of the license commission last evening, after nearly two hours had been spent in arguing for and against the petition for a dance hall license signed by Bechard Bros. and Lirette. The delay is caused by a desire on the part of the commission to listen to the arguments on behalf of the Florence Citizens' Rescue league by James Stuart Murphy.

At last night's hearing the petitioners were represented by J. Joseph Hennessy, who called on many witnesses to testify to their good character and intentions. His efforts were ably countered, however, by several prominent Pawtucket residents, who argued sincerely for the protection of the community.

Secretary Hughes made the appointments. Senator McCormick of Illinois, was named chairman of the committee, which also includes: Representatives Porter, Pennsylvania; Lathrop, Maryland; Dr. David P. CITY WILL ACQUIRE FIRST STREET OVAL PROPERTY THIS YEAR

Mayor Approves Recommendations of Board of Park Commissioners and Will Institute Purchase Proceedings at Once --- Loan Order to Be Introduced in Council, Covering Oval and Transformation of Anne Street Into Public Park

The city will acquire the oval property in First street this year from the Locke and Canals, as well as the two lots just adjoining, as recommended and urged by the board of park commissioners.

Mayor George H. Brown said today that he had approved the recommendations of the board and would immediately institute proceedings to acquire the land. An order will be introduced into the city council, possibly tomorrow night, authorizing a loan of sufficient size to care for both the oval purchase and the transforming of Anne street into a parkway.

It has not been definitely decided as to the proper and most economical way of acquiring the First street property, but probably it will be seized by right of eminent domain and the city will pay for it the assessed valuation, plus 25 per cent. This would amount to approximately $30,000.

With the purchase of the oval a project of long-standing will reach culmination and plans for development, either as a park area or a public playground or athletic field may be begun in earnest.

Ever since the first suggestion was made that the area would make an admirable place for athletics on a large scale, it has been kept in mind that the high school is badly in need of just this sort of field and undoubtedly the local alumni association will take steps to carry out this idea.

Further information in regard to the examination for postmaster at the local postoffice was secured today when a copy of form 213, hitherto unavailable, came to light. According to the form, the examination will take place on April 25.

The details of the examination are described exactly as on the poster previously issued. The examination will be of the open competitive variety, not under an executive order issued May 10, 1921, revised July 27, 1921, which provides that such a vacancy, as exists in Lowell since Postmaster Mehan's resignation shall be filled either by the transfer or promotion of someone in the competitive classified service or by a competitive examination of eligibles.

As stated before, candidates are not required to report for examination at any given place, but will be rated on the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated:

1. Education and training 20
2. Business experience and fitness 30
Total 100

Additional qualifications are required for appointment to the local postoffice, since it pays a salary of $4000. The applicant must show at least three years engaged in an occupation in which he has demonstrated ability to conduct the affairs of a business to the extent required of the postmaster of the postoffice for which he is a candidate.

The form indicates that Lowell is not the only city in which examinations for postmaster will be held on April 25. Glendale, California; New Haven, Connecticut; Fort Wayne, Indiana; Hutchinson, Kansas; Paterson and Trenton, New Jersey; Cincinnati and Kenton, Ohio; Huntington, Milton and Pittsboro, Pennsylvania; and Taylor, Texas, are also listed.

Wants Legislature to Investigate Strike
BOSTON, March 29.—An order for the appointment of a special joint legislative committee to investigate the Lawrence textile strike was introduced in the Massachusetts house of representatives today by Representative Michael H. Jordan of Lawrence. The order, which was referred to the committee on rules, provides for a committee of two senators and three members of the house who would be instructed to ascertain the wages paid in the cotton mills before the strike and also to determine the ability of the mills to continue those wages. A cut of 20 per cent has been announced.

Granite Cutters Offered $6.40 a Day
BOSTON, March 29.—An offer of a $6.40 daily wage for a 44-hour week was submitted today to the Granite Cutters' International association of North America by the board of control of the granite industry. The proposed agreement would extend to April 1, 1924. The present agreement which carries a daily wage of $8 for a similar working schedule expires next Friday. Virtually the entire granite industry east of the Mississippi river, employing about 12,000 men, is involved.

In a letter to James Duncan of Quincy, international president of the union, the board said the proposals were a "final effort" to arrive at a settlement with the union, and that the reflected "the final conclusions of the employers as a basis upon which business may be secured."

Mr. Duncan said that a vote on acceptance of the proposal was being taken by local unions and that the results of the balloting would be known before midnight Friday.

"The proposals in no way emanate from us," he asserted, "and we have neither approved nor recommended them."

The board of control, representing the International Monumental Granite Producers' association, Inc., the National Building Granite Quarries association, Inc., and the Granite Taving Block Manufacturers' association of the United States, Inc., convened here several days ago in an attempt to frame a working agreement. The rules last fall asked a reduction in working hours from 44 to 40, eliminating Saturday work, with continuance of the $8 wage. The employers returned the proposal, offering in turn a 44-hour week at a daily wage of $6. This offer was rejected by the union last December.

Although the board represents the granite industry of the country, the agreement was said to affect chiefly New England granite centers.

The board announced that it would continue its sessions until the vote of the union locals has been announced. Those attending the sessions are: James M. Boutwell, Montpelier, Vt.; M. P. Hinman, Barre, Vt.; O. S. Swenson, Concord, N. H.; C. Harry Rogers, Rockport; O. R. Smith, Westbury, N. Y.; Edward D. Harbeck, Quincy; David L. McIntosh, Quincy.

BATTLE WITH POLICE

300 Strike Sympathizers and Two Officers in Pitched Battle at Attleboro

ATTLEBORO, March 29.—Patrolman Charles E. Nolan and James Hanley of the town police department had a pitched battle in the woods at South Attleboro shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon with some 300 men and women, believed to be sympathizers with the strike at the Crown mill.

The crowd set upon Patrolman Nolan when he arrested an unidentified man who, he says, threatened him, and in the fight that ensued between the officer and the mob, Nolan lost his prisoner. Nolan also lost his club, and both he and Hanley were severely treated. Hanley receiving a punch in the stomach that caused him to be sent home. Three shots were fired in the air to frighten the strikers and attract assistance.

Chief of Police E. H. Gingras came with police reserves in answer to the summons of Patrolman Nolan and the policemen dispersed the crowd with some difficulty. Special Officer Louis Vanasse arrested Andrew Durdan on a charge of drunkenness and at the station house it is said that the police found a loaded 32-caliber revolver on the prisoner's person.

The trouble started when Patrolman Nolan saw a half dozen men in a party of a number near the mill. Nolan started to disperse them and one of them told the officer that he would "get him." Nolan started after the man, a foreigner, who ran into a wooded section.

When about 500 yards in the woods the man turned about and cried out, "Now come on." Nolan at first thought it was a challenge to him, but within a few seconds men and women came out of hiding and attacked the policeman.

Patrolman Hanley soon came to the aid of his brother officer, but the strikers outnumbered the police that Hanley and Nolan were soon getting the worst of things. Both lost their clubs and then one of the policemen fired three shots in the air in an effort to drive off the attackers and call aid. Special Officer Vanasse, who has been doing strike duty, was quickly on the scene, but not until the arrival of Chief Gingras and his men did things quiet down and the crowd disperse.

Just before the arrival of the police reinforcements, Patrolman Hanley captured the man Patrolman Nolan had under arrest when the disorder broke loose, but he was forced to give him up in the effort to protect himself when the mob piled onto him. One of the assailants directed a vicious blow at Hanley which struck the officer square in the stomach. Hanley doubled up and was beaten considerably before being rescued.

FREE STATE ENVOYS IN BOSTON SUNDAY

BOSTON, March 29.—A reception committee comprising about 200 leading citizens of Boston has been organized, headed by Judge Thomas A. Dowd, to welcome the delegates from the Irish Free State, who will be here next Sunday and will speak at Faneuil hall at 8 o'clock. Yesterday the following despatch was sent them at New York:

"Gen. Pierce Bunsell, Counselor Sean Caoilte, Ambassadors Irish Free State: 'The citizens of Boston, representing all elements of the community, extend to you a cordial invitation to come to Boston and tell its people of the marvelous achievements of the founders of the Irish Free State. We have secured Faneuil hall, the cradle of liberty, for next Sunday, April 2, at 7:30 p. m., and wish that we may have the pleasure of welcoming you on this occasion. Answer.'"

They replied very cordially that they will respond and meet the citizens of Boston next Sunday.

It is understood from the delegates that they will discuss the economic and social and governmental aspects of the Irish Free State. There will be no controversial matters taken up. "They come to America for the first time in 750 years representing a free people. A tremendous crowd will gather at Faneuil hall to welcome them. Besides delivering a talk at Faneuil hall, it is expected that they will also speak to overflow crowds who will throng the hall in front of the hall. A large force of men, selected by the committee, will be on hand to direct the crowds."

NEW SELECTMAN FOR BILLERICA

At a regular meeting of the members of the board of selectmen of Billerica held Monday evening, George C. Crosby was elected a member of the board to succeed Ralph L. Dodge, who recently resigned. The board also appointed Joseph P. Mearns as inspector of public buildings. In the course of the evening the board held a hearing on the following petition presented by Edward P. Dickinson and about 120 other citizens of the town:

"The transportation of pupils between homes and schools in Billerica brings the question of safety of children on our streets in these days of rapid transit and congestion into more acute concern than formerly. 'Many loads of our children are unattended in the square at the Centre, and car loads at Howe high school daily, in the midst of fast driven autos, with no one there in authority to regulate traffic and assure safety. 'Many instances of narrow escapes from accidents have occurred. 'At road crossings of its line through the town the B. & M. road has watchmen to make for safety of travel; even at the crossing on Salem road, with almost no passing, danger is kept; but in Billerica, square, with perhaps a thousand times the traffic, there is no one stationed to give protection. 'Why should not our regular police officers be on duty daily in the centre of the two villages and elsewhere as required?'"

"The schools of the town have a corps of efficient teachers, some often working overtime. Our fire department is fully up to date. Its regular men are on duty day and night, for five successive days, with uniform to mark their public service, and they have pride in it. Other town departments are well conducted. What of our police department? 'While its regular officers receive regular pay ($31.50 a week), should they not like other town officials—and the police of other towns and cities—give full service for this liberal pay—help to make our streets safe for the children and others—and be on duty for law and order eight hours a day? 'Is it well to wait for some serious accident or crime to stir us to ask for full efficiency in this department that has the safety and protection of our community as its care?'"

"The speakers in behalf of the petition were Mr. Dickinson, Dr. Charles E. Hoar, Victor J. Hoar, Mrs. Edward P. Dickinson, Sydney A. Paul, E. A. Morey and Samuel Barlow. At the close of the hearing Chairman Sheridan of the board of selectmen announced that the board would prepare a set of rules and regulations to govern the department."

THE QUESTION IS WILL SHE WEAR THEM

What will American women do with knickerbockers?

Every smart shop on Fifth avenue displays them. A good many smart women have been wearing them, with apparent pleasure.

But not enough women, the country over, have yet adopted them to establish them firmly as a real vogue. And one wonders why, for there is no garment made which, when worn with smart accessories, is so delightful.

fully jaunty looking. And it is a fact that when a woman knows she looks jaunty she automatically feels young. That they will, in another season or two, be really popular, is implied in a recent utterance of Gene Stratton Porter, America's most popular ton Porter. Although not definitely discussing knickerbockers at the time, Mrs. Porter wore knickerbockers herself as she talked.

"Among a world of other tardy realizations the world has come to realize that every woman has two legs and that these legs in all probability are proportionate to the remainder of her frame," said Mrs. Porter. "There is no longer any curiosity concerning legs; they are absolutely prevalent—as common as nose and ears. And the world has consented that she may cover them with skirts, breeches or Turkish trousers, as she pleases."

As she pleases! Then why does she hesitate to adopt the jaunty, comfortable, eminently reasonable, yet ultra-smart knickerbockers?

Apparently she is still wondering whether or not they make her look too boyish. Will they destroy her feminine appeal? That, one fancies, is the question which gives her pause.

MR. AND MRS. ROSWELL MILLER AND THE CARNEGIE MANSION IN NEW YORK. THE MILLERS NOW ARE DWELLING IN A $250,000 HOME, BUT EXPECT SHORTLY TO MOVE BACK WITH MRS. ANDREW CARNEGIE INTO THIS FAMOUS NEW YORK SHOW PLACE.

BY N.E.A. SERVICE
NEW YORK, March 27.—Andrew Carnegie's son-in-law is sick from overwork.

Roswell Miller, who shares the advantages of the late ironmaster's millions with his wife, Carnegie's only daughter, has taken a $2000-a-year job so seriously that he broke down under the strain, finally being stricken with influenza. Now he is at Palm Beach, Fla., with his wife, recuperating and hopes soon to be back at work.

Miller's job is instructing New York university students in the mysteries of mechanical drawing and internal combustion engines. Besides his work in the classroom, he assists in laboratory experiments.

RAPID CIVIL SERVICE

Real Hindrance to Government Efficiency, Says Atty. Gen. Daugherty

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Belief that the civil service is a hindrance to government efficiency was expressed by Atty. Gen. Daugherty testifying before the House Appropriations Committee. "It is probably a gratuitous suggestion, but I believe the civil service is an interference to some extent in the discharge of public business," said the attorney general as quoted in the printed record of the hearing.

"I suppose I have been voting in party platforms and local elections for a great many years. About one-half of the employees in the department of justice are under civil service. While I am attorney general and while the civil service law is in the statutes I will enforce it and observe it as I expect to enforce and observe all laws.

"I believe it is not far from the civil service we could get along with less than two-thirds of the number of employees under civil service and probably get twice as much work out of them."

Asked by a member to explain just how that might be done, Mr. Daugherty said:

"I suppose the department of justice is a good example and as faithful who are under the civil service as those in any other department, but they are not as anxious generally to be in place to competence work on the job as they are to get work before the job. I do not speak for the administration, but I am giving you the benefit of my observation and judgment, about which I have no doubt, and I am thoroughly convinced that the civil service is a hindrance to the government. I would rather take the recommendations of a political committee, either democratic or republican, a self-respecting committee for the appointment of a man or woman; than to be compelled to go through the requirements of the civil service to secure an employee.

"They are hardly as ambitious, hardy as energetic under the civil service as are those not under civil service."

discovered, both before I came here as attorney and since, that civil service employees spend too much time in trying to work out plans to make themselves secure in their position. While this situation cannot be remedied at the present time, still it is worthy of careful study."

NEW SCHOOL BILL REPORTED

the powers and duties of school committees and superintendents of schools. The committee, however, is far from unanimous. Already four of its members have indicated their intention to oppose the bill, and at least one other has reserved the right to vote against it when it comes up for action in the legislative branches.

The original measure, presented on recommendation of the state board of education, was designed to give the school committee complete control over school buildings, including their construction and repair; appointment and discharge of janitors; more direct control over school teachers and their appointment; and other functions now performed by city government, or committees thereof.

From the new draft all of this has been eliminated, except the repair of school buildings, and the control of janitors. In addition, there has been inserted a provision that on all commissions charged with the construction of new buildings, there shall be a representative of the school committee. The complete draft of the new bill is as follows:

Section 1—The school committee of each city and town except Boston shall have the following powers and duties:

(1) It shall have control and supervision of the public schools, and the full custody and care of all public school property.

(2) It shall meet regularly at least once a month during the school year, and, upon due notice, at such other times as may be necessary, and shall cause to be made a permanent record of all votes, orders and proceedings of the committee.

(3) It shall, after receiving nominations from the superintendent of schools, elect the teachers, janitors, attendance officers, and all other employees of the school department, and determine their salaries. In case a teacher or other employee nominated by the superintendent of schools is not elected, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to make further nominations.

(4) It shall pass upon courses of study and textbooks, recommended by the superintendent of schools, but no textbook which has been introduced shall be changed without a two-thirds vote of the committee, notice of such intended change having been given at a previous meeting.

(5) It shall pass upon transportation routes and the discontinuance of the use of any school, after receiving the recommendations of the superintendent of schools.

(6) In towns it shall select sites for new school buildings, provided, that a town may, in town meeting, call upon the school committee for a report on available sites, together with the committee's recommendations thereon, and after consideration thereof, the said town may select sites for new school buildings. who fired one shot. The grocer was imprisoned in his own ice chest while the pair robbed the cash register of $35.

The robbers, each of whom appeared to be 25 years of age, walked into the store and ordered the proprietor to throw up his hands. Levine failed to obey and a shot was fired over his head.

As Levine backed toward the ice chest he was seized by one of the men and thrust inside.

A customer who was in the store was told to keep quiet. The robbers then looted the register and made their escape.

HEAR CHARGES AGAINST OFFICER

Hearing on Charges Against Patrolman Tsaffaras Held Last Evening

Principal Witness for Prosecution Said Tsaffaras Borrowed Money for Friend

The long awaited for hearing in which Patrolman Peter Tsaffaras was to face bribe charges, brought against him by police officials, opened last night in the second session court room before a trial board of his superiors consisting of Lieuts. Ryan and Palmer and Sergt. Bigelow. The testimony of five government witnesses was heard after which the hearing was adjourned to Friday night.

Joe Rodas, star witness for the prosecution, said he never saw Officer Tsaffaras take a drink, that he never remembered of Tsaffaras bringing a man to his house to purchase moonshine and that he never gave Tsaffaras money expecting it to shield him from raids. These three issues are the ones on which the trial has been based. The specific charges against Tsaffaras have been set forth as follows:

"With receiving $400 from one Joe Rodas, 58 Elm street, Lowell, who was known to be a being engaged in the illegal manufacture and sale of distilled liquor.

"Drinking while in uniform on the premises of one Joe Rodas of 58 Elm street.

"Introducing to one Joe Rodas of 58 Elm street a customer, who purchased in his presence a 15 gallon jug of moonshine for which the sum of $75 was paid."

Capt. Petrie on stand.

Of the other four government witnesses only one, Capt. David Petrie, seemed to offer testimony to bear out the charges. Capt. Petrie, who was a member of the investigating board at the preliminary hearing, said that Rodas had stated that he knew Tsaffaras through a Greek family and that Tsaffaras came to his house one night and that he paid $75 for 15 gallons of moonshine, and that Tsaffaras drank in uniform while on the premises. Petrie further stated that Rodas said that he told Tsaffaras that he was a Greek and that the officers would catch him making moonshine but that Tsaffaras said he would tip him off if there was anything doing.

Both Attorneys Joseph P. Donahue and Cornelius J. O'Neill objected to having Petrie testify, on the ground that it was unfair to bring him in before rebuttal. Atty. O'Neill said he wished a statement to be written into the records to the effect that he declared it unfair on the part of the police to introduce Petrie or any member of the investigating board as witnesses. The police superintendent told him, he said, that the first session would be like a Greek and that therefore all evidence submitted to it should be kept secret. Attorney O'Neill was particularly bitter in his denunciation of the police methods.

Deputy Chief Downey, who conducted the case for the government, called Rodas as a witness. Rodas was sworn in and then he was asked to give his testimony through an interpreter. After asking a few preliminary questions the following questions and answers were made.

Q—"Where did you first meet Tsaffaras?"

A—"On the street near my house."

Q—"What did you give him $400 for?"

A—"For a friend to start up in business. The friend came and gave me $300 last week and owes me another hundred."

Donahue Takes Rodas

At this point Deputy Downey turned Rodas over to the defense. Attorney Donahue did the interrogating as follows.

Q—"Are you sure Tsaffaras never introduced a man to you so that you might sell him liquor?"

A—"I don't remember him doing that."

Q—"Did he ever come on your premises and drink liquor while in uniform?"

ing was decided on the matter and the examination went on.

Q—"Do you remember a conversation with MacBrayne?"

A—"Yes."

Q—"Will you please tell the court what it was?"

A—"Nobody ever asked me about that."

A—"Yes."

Q—"Were you brought into court on March 25 and fined $150 and sentenced to four months to the house of correction for keeping liquor?"

A—"Yes."

Answered in English

A conversation here followed in which Donahue tried to make Rodas admit he could talk English. Attorney O'Neill asked: "In what language did you talk with Sgt. Winn?"

A—"English."

A—"Last week."

Q—"When?"

A—"Some day last week."

Mr. Donahue Again

Q—"You say you told the superintendent that you loaned Tsaffaras the money?"

A—"Yes."

This ended the testimony of Rodas. Mary Souza was called to the stand and testified that she was present when Tsaffaras received the money. She told the same story as Rodas relative to the money transaction and added that a man, whom she named as Bill Contas, came with the officer and stood outside the door. She said she never saw the officer bring anybody into the house and that she never saw anybody leave Rodas' house with whiskey.

On cross-examination, she said she heard Tsaffaras say that he wanted to borrow the money for a friend and that Rodas said he was going to lend the officer $100. She averred that she saw Rodas' house with whiskey.

SHE'LL SPREAD LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS IN CANADA

MRS. SIDNEY SMALL

(By N.E.A. Service)
TORONTO, Canada, March 28.—Mrs. Sidney Small, member of the city council of Toronto, and Mrs. Mabel Good Park, president of the national league of women voters, have just completed the organization of Canada's first league.
 Mrs. Small is now heading a movement to organize branches in all of the provinces of Canada.

where is there contained therein an authority for the execution of such a contract or agreement.

As far as can be learned at city hall the Thomas Nesmith fund just naturally disappeared from the city books, but at what time and how and for what purpose, no one seems to know. It would result in a most thorough audit to ascertain any facts regarding it and even then, it is problematical whether or not very much would be brought to light.

Last week City Solicitor Edward J. Tierney stated that he will attempt to find out some facts regarding the disappearance and desire to have the matter settled once and for all.
 About 1870, Thomas Nesmith bequeathed in his will the sum of $25,000 to the city of Lowell upon consideration that the city would pay in perpetuity $1500 a year to his trustees or to the Ministry-at-Large, to be by them or it, expended in certain worthy charities, and a further bequest of $1000 to the pastors and deacons of the High street church of Lowell or their successors in office, requesting that it be loaned to the city of Lowell on the terms proposed, and that said city would pay six per cent. in perpetuity for the benefit of said church and its library. On December 13, 1870, these bequests or loans were accepted by the then board of aldermen of the city.

Said sums were paid over to the city and many years ago were expended for general purposes, though there was annually paid to the beneficiaries above named, the amount stated, that is six per cent. on the principal.

WILL OPEN NEW STORE IN MAY

About the first of May, Franz's store, now located at 90 Middlesex street, will open new quarters at 1 Gorman street, corner of Middlesex street. The new quarters are those now occupied by the Canton restaurant and which formerly housed Harris' restaurant and, previous to that, Burbeck's restaurant.

It was stated yesterday by J. W. Franz that a lease had been secured from the owner, Philip Goldman, whereby work of alteration on the building will be started on April 1. The store will be a modern one in every way, and it is thought probable that the upper part of the building will be devoted to offices, although the plans for that part are not yet complete.

Strikers Make Gains

probably arrive early Friday morning. Officials at the Pacific mills stated this morning that although the opening was fairly encouraging, there being about as many at work as was the case yesterday, many have left the mills since that time. One official said: "We have lost heavily today." He estimated that not many more than 2500 of the 3000 operatives were at work at mid-day.

Officials at the Everett mills stated that conditions were not as satisfactory as they were yesterday.

Officials at each of these mills stated that they would endeavor to keep their plants running for the benefit of those who want to work.

POLICE TO THE RESCUE

Mob Man on Way to Work at Lonsdale, R. I.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 28.—Strike sympathizers are becoming active in the Blackstone valley villages. This morning a band of them mobbed Carl Curtis when on his way to work in the Lincoln Bleachery in Pawtucket. They pulled him around and he was on his knees when Chief of Police Axon and some special officers arrived on the scene and escorted Curtis to the bleachery. It was said that Curtis was formerly a picket in Pawtucket and a delegation of former associates were said to have been among those who met him today.

22 Mills Now Closed.—The number of mills closed by the textile strike in Rhode Island climbed to 22 today, when the Andrews mill at North Smithfield, shut down, following a walkout of the employees due to a 10 per cent. wage cut.

This plant, which is a branch of the Andrews Mill Co. Inc. of Philadelphia, is the first woven and worsted mill in the state to be affected by the strike. About 200 workers are employed normally.

RETAIL JEWELERS MEET IN WORCESTER

Frank Ricard, vice president of the Massachusetts Retail Jewelers' association, is in Worcester attending the eighth annual convention of the organization, which is being held in the Hotel Bancroft. The convention, which is being attended by delegates from all parts of the state, opened yesterday morning and will close with a banquet this evening.

Yesterday's program included addresses by Mayor Peter Sullivan of Worcester, President Albert R. Kerr of Boston, R. S. W. Roberts of Whitinsville, Edwin J. Miller of Milford, Ellis Clifford of Fall River, Maurice J. Karlo of Providence, R. I., and Harry Edward Freund of the National Jewelers' Publicity association.

This morning a business session was held during which reports of officers and local associations were submitted and new business was transacted. This afternoon at 2 o'clock there was an address on "Present Business Conditions" by F. Dwight E. Babcock, general secretary of the Worcester chamber of commerce.

499 ENDED LIVES IN LONDON IN 1921

LONDON, March 28.—Statistics just issued show that 499 persons committed suicide in London in 1921. If the city's population be taken as 4,500,000, the suicide rate is only one in 5000. Most of these taking their own lives were between 45 and 55 years of age. Only eight were under 20.

Experiments are to be made with the natural ray sands of Alberta, Canada, to determine their suitability as a roadbase material.

Dracut Camps Entered

the looking of four camps in Long Pond, Dracut. They gave their names and ages as Raymond F. Brown, 18, Dracut; Felix S. Durand, 15, of 18 Fairland road and Lorimer H. O'Brien, 15, of Beaver street. They were arranged in court and each held in $300 for appearance on Friday. A fourth boy was arrested and booked on the same charge but was released by the complainant, who was convinced he had nothing to do with the case.

The apprehension of the boys is the result of some vigilant work on the part of Patrolman Gilbert W. Sheridan, whose private investigations led to the discovery of the loot. Last Sunday Henry C. Coburn, chief of the Dracut police, received a report from John McKinley that his camp near Long Pond had been broken into. Reports of breaks at three other camps were also reported.

The local police received word of the break and Patrolman Sheridan immediately got busy. As part of the loot was said to be three canoes and as he patrols a beat near the water, the officer decided to investigate.

Next Beaver street on the Merrimack river, Patrolman Sheridan found them locked, but they answered to the description of the stolen craft. He found two canoes on the river and later found one on Beaver brook. The boys were rounded up and brought to the station this morning where one of them is said to have admitted his guilt.

The three boys were booked as arrested by Patrolman Sheridan and Chief Coburn. A story they told implicated a fourth boy and he was brought in by Patrolman Sheridan and Bert A. Cluff, chairman of the Dracut selectmen, who was later released when he proved an alibi.

COOLIDGE PAYS TRIBUTE

Vice President Says Police Commissioner Sacrificed Life in the Public Service

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Vice President Coolidge, yesterday paid a tribute to Edwin U. Curtis, late police commissioner of Boston. Mr. Coolidge, who was governor of Massachusetts and associated with Mr. Curtis during the Boston police strike, declared it was not too much to say that Mr. Curtis "sacrificed his life in the public service." The vice president's statement follows:

"It is with greatest regret that I learn of the death of Edwin U. Curtis, police commissioner of the city of Boston. He performed a service that not only saved his own city, but one which was world wide in its influence and effect. When it would have been very easy for him to permit the development of a dangerous situation within his force, he was courageous enough to take a stand against it and maintain that stand in spite of every pressure that was brought against him. He had nothing to gain and everything to lose. The people of Boston, even, never understood the great sacrifice that he made in their behalf in the loyal devotion he displayed to the maintenance of government in accordance with law.

"He was a man of rare ability, of sincere loyalty to his friends and of great loyalty to the men in the police service. He was not only the head of the department, he was the best friend of the men in the department. It is not too much to say that he has sacrificed his life in the public service. It is from the courage and devotion of such men as Edwin U. Curtis that orderly government maintains its supremacy and civilization derives its security."

said police were in danger of bodily injury, and that the shooting by said officers was done in self-defense." He further says: "After listening to all of the witnesses who appeared before me and knowing most of them to be respectable and responsible citizens, I am of the opinion that the lives of the officers were in danger and that they were obliged to take extreme measures for their own safety."

"Much testimony has been given regarding the conduct of Mayor Robert A. Kenyon of Wenden street that morning and it is unfortunate that the crowd did not disperse and go home after he read the riot act to them."

"The crowd also was given good sound advice by John J. Thomas, one of the organizers of the United Textile Workers as he testified that he went to where the pickets were standing and advised them that the riot act had been read, explained the danger of their going into the zone over the dead line. Had they taken the advice of Mr. Thomas the chances are that no trouble would have occurred."

"There is testimony that Mayor Kenyon did discharge a revolver in the air and there is testimony that Mayor Kenyon gave the order to shoot, but there is also testimony that the mayor did not fire a revolver in the air and that he did not give the order to shoot. The persons that testified that the mayor did not shoot nor give any orders to shoot, are citizens of good standing and in addition to their testimony is the good character of Mayor Kenyon, his having been elected to office many times by the voters of this city, and his always having been known all his life in Pawtucket as a quiet, peaceable, inoffensive man and the mayor's own denial, with the above, satisfied me that the mayor on that morning did not discharge a revolver in the air nor did he give the police officers any order to shoot."

Commenting on the conduct of officers Adams and Flately while in a truck with two prisoners, the coroner says: "From the testimony I am convinced that the officers used unnecessary force while controlling their prisoners from the time they were arrested until they were delivered at the police station at Pawtucket. I would request the chief of police to take official notice of this statement."

The Humane society offers a reward of $5 for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons who tied two kittens together, put them in a paper bag, also tied, and left them to die in a vacant lot off Bowers street.

Few acts brought to the attention of the local agent have caused more indignation than this one. The agent was extremely hot under the collar as he related the incident today. He said that a fine of $250 was provided by law for such an act as this one.

Fortunately for the kittens, their cries attracted the attention of a passerby and they were rescued from their paper prison before being starved to death.

GREAT COAL STRIKES

History of Previous Labor Disturbances in Nation's Coal Industry

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 29.—(By the Associated Press.) Great coal strikes, such as the country is now facing, have been few although for seventy-five years the coal industry had been marked by almost numberless state-wide and localized strikes, often involving several thousands of workers.

Price reduced to lowest in history.

All of the big strikes have continued more than a month, the longest having been that of 1902 in the anthracite industry which continued 22 weeks.

The big strikes—five in number—are summarized as follows:

1894—First general strike in the soft coal industry, called by the United Mine Workers of America, the purpose being to restore wage scales that had been decreased during the panic of '93; 100,000 to 150,000 men engaged, and militia called out in four states; first attempt at a compromise failed, but second conference of miners and operators ended with adoption of a scale agreement.

1897—July 4th walkout of 150,000 miners, called by D. M. Hatchford, president of the U. M. W. of A. to demand an overworked coal market, the union officials feared would result in wage reductions on account of the slow coal trade; strike was called off after 12 weeks' duration, at the end of which the market had been depleted; first great successful strike of the U. M. W. of A.

1900—Anthracite strike in September and October engaged 132,000 and ended with miners getting 10 to 18 per cent. increases in wages.

1902—Great anthracite strike, led by the late John Mitchell, as president of the U. M. W. of A., lasted 23 weeks. May to October; 140,000 men engaged, and finally called off when President Roosevelt appointed a commission that afterward gave the miners a 10 per cent. wage advance, and made their contract for three years, ending April 1, 1906.

1919—Nation-wide soft coal strike in November and December of 335,000 miners called off by union in compliance with a court injunction, obtained by Atty. Gen. Palmer under the wartime Lever fuel control law; commission later appointed by President Wilson gave miners an increase of approximately 37 per cent in wages—their largest single increase.

Unlike the last great strike, the impending one begins with warm weather approaching while the 1919 shut-down came with winter. Stocks now are more ample than then, but the present situation is much like the fourth of July walkout of 1897. Out of the strikes, both large and small, the workers as a general proposition have won benefits in increased wages and improved working conditions. But victory has not always been theirs, though the big strike settlements have favored them. The operator successes, however, include wage reductions, denial of increased wages, charged working conditions, and the crushing of two unions—the first national organization of miners, founded in 1850, which perished in a series of strikes at the close of the Civil war, and the Workmen's Benevolent association, an organization of anthracite workers, which was demoralized in 1875 after 15 years' existence.

The first coal strike in the United States occurred in 1845 in the Pennsylvania anthracite field when a British miner named Bates organized a local union and sought to increase wages and better working conditions. His strike failed and Bates was forced to leave the field and for 11 years the workers made no further attempt at organization.

Since Bates' day, many leaders have been developed among the workers and strikes of various sorts for varied purposes have been carried on, the early fight being largely centered to small areas, occasionally including an entire state coal field.

5 to 4; Mr. Lambert, Mr. Sullivan, Mrs. Pearson and Dr. Slaughter being recorded in favor.

Mr. Sullivan emphatically stated that he felt the question was of sufficient importance to require clarification immediately, and backed up the contention of Mr. Lambert regarding it. The other committee members held fast, however, and no action resulted.

On motion of Mr. Sullivan, who asked for and received the recommendation of the superintendent, Leonard Duffy was unanimously elected to the position of physical instructor in elementary schools. Prior to his election, Mr. Sullivan had moved and it carried, that a motion made at a previous meeting to the effect that Mr. Duffy be chosen permanent athletic coach at the high school be stricken from the books.

No-School Signal

The committee took action toward the negotiation of a no-school signal whistle to be used in place of the present bell system and on motion of Mr. Delaney a sum not to exceed $500 was appropriated to buy a Sterling whistle to be placed on one of the school buildings. Mr. Delaney said in explanation of his motion that the city can take a Sterling whistle on trial for 30 days without assuming any obligations regarding purchase, if not satisfactory.

Other members felt that other concerns dealing in the same article should be approached with regard to price, and an amendment to that effect was carried, with Mr. Delaney voting "no." The business agent will take up the matter at once and present prices at the next board meeting.

High School Engineer

Thomas Harkins was elected engineer of the new high school, but only after considerable discussion. He was highly recommended for the place by Henry H. Harris, headmaster of the school, and Mr. Thornton said that his appointment would be entirely satisfactory to the local post of the American Legion, even though Mr. Harkins is not an ex-service man. He is on a six months' leave of absence at present.

Chairman Riley felt that it was too early a time to elect an engineer, and Mr. Delaney inquired whether there was a certified civil service list for the position, with ex-service men on the list. It was explained that while Mr. Harkins at present is on leave, he is still an employee of the city in another department and his new position would be nothing more than a transfer. Finally he was elected by a unanimous vote.

Commercial Course Altered

Changes in the commercial courses at the high school that will give pupils the right elect certain subjects, instead of having the entire course prescribed, were explained and recommended by Headmaster Harris and received the approval of the board.

On motion of Mrs. Pearson the business agent was authorized to purchase equipment necessary to begin a practice of distributing milk to pupils. She explained that it was hoped to have such a practice in force in all public schools eventually, but favored a start in the elementary and lower grammar grades. Equipment necessary includes bottles and straws.

Physical Education Survey

Dr. Slaughter attempted a motion that would allow Dr. Carl Schröder of the state department of education to make a survey of the courses and methods employed in the department of physical education in local public schools but opposition developed sufficiently to kill it.

Mr. Delaney particularly opposed the motion, saying that he did not think it necessary to call in outside assistance in the matter and added that he did not believe the present supervisor had had sufficient time as yet to perfect his own plans and get them in smooth running order.

Dr. Slaughter said it would not cost a single cent. Mr. Lambert spoke in favor of the idea, saying that he did not believe such a survey would embarrass the present supervisors in their work.

The motion was defeated, six to three, with Dr. Slaughter, Mrs. Pearson and Mr. Lambert voting in favor.

Dr. Slaughter then moved that Donald MacIntyre, present supervisor, be asked to submit a report to the committee of the amount of time being given by each instructor in physical training work and this motion carried unanimously.

Teaching certificates of the first grade were granted to Kenneth L. Oves and a graduate of Technology, and Thomas McSorley, a graduate of Holy Cross college.

"His Bank Speaks Well of Him"

It frequently happens that a man is known to no one quite so well as to his bankers. To them are revealed aspects of character and habits of procedure not always a matter of knowledge even to his business associates.

For this reason, opinion regarding a man's moral and financial worth is often sought from his bankers, who may, through favorable expressions of opinion, prove themselves his strongest allies. If in the course of inquiry recommendations are made by a bank of established character and reputation, the man is doubly endorsed.

In making YOUR banking connection it is important that your bank speak well of you and equally important that the character of your bank, as evidenced by its history and achievements, shall be such as to give weight to its opinion.

TO maintain a happy home the housewife must keep in good health. Her duties are many and various, and it seems as if every other member of the family depended very much on her.

"Where is my hat?" cries the boy.

"What did you do with my coat?" asks the daughter.

"I can't find any handkerchiefs," yells the husband.

The housewife is usually the advisor and general manager of the family.

I was always tired out and had no ambition, was nervous and dizzy and everything seemed to worry me and I had awful pains in my right side. I felt badly about four years and could not do my work as it should have been done. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised so much and it did so many people good that I began to take it myself. I am feeling fine now and everyone tells me that they never saw me looking so well. I live on a farm, do all my work, and have three little girls to take care of. I am recommending this medicine to my friends and know it will help them."—Mrs. HENRIETTA LONG, R. E. Cincinnati, O.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, so kept on taking the Vegetable Compound and now I am the mother of a 19 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHAS. PETERSON, 318 W. Liberty Street, Cincinnati, O.

If a Body Kiss a Body, Can a Body Get Divorce? Judge Rules No!

The Old Version—

Or leave a kiss but in the cup And I'll not ask for wine. Johnson

JUDGE FRANK D. HUTCHINS

The New Version—

To give a kiss to some lone male Cannot make matrimony fail.

By N.E.A. Service
KANSAS CITY, Kas., March 27.—'Tis the modern legal opinion that "To give a kiss to some lone male Cannot make matrimony fail."
For such was the ruling handed down recently by Judge Frank D. Hutchins in a Kansas City divorce hearing.
His new version displaces the one of ancient times.
"Or leave a kiss but in the cup And I'll not ask for wine."
Nick Horvath appeared before the judge, seeking separation because his wife had gone to a park and kissed another man.
He introduced as a witness a detective whom he employed to watch his wife. According to this sleuth Mrs. Horvath embraced and kissed a man in a public park.

This testimony was not disputed. And then Judge Hutchins said: "The fact that the plaintiff's wife kissed another man seems to be established. However, that does not strike me as conclusive proof that she was unfaithful to her husband. "Kissing these days, is looked upon as a love foreplay proof of love than in years gone by."
He suggested that the couple patch up the quarrel.
As a result Kansas City folks are arguing for and against the ruling. "Mental torture is a cause for divorce in Kansas," says Mrs. Maria Jones. "I certainly would consider promiscuous kissing by the wife as coming under that head."
Judge Thomas J. Shehorn of the Circuit court of Kansas City, Mo., cited the motive behind the kiss should influence the judge in the case.

"Some kisses might be innocent," says he, "and others full of guilt."
Mrs. Henry N. Ess, leader among Kansas City clubwomen, sides against the ruling.
"There are certain things one cannot do after marriage," says she. "One of them is meeting men in a park and kissing them."
Many simply say, "Well—there are kisses—and kisses!"

RUM-RUNNERS REVIVE
OLD ROMANCE STORIES

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Romance of the coast guard service, of the early days of the American republic, has been revived by the heels of liquor smugglers hovering along the country's shores. Prohibition officials discussing today the problem of rum-running, which has become serious along both sea-boards declared that the whiskey ships have brought back to the coast guard the duty for which it was originally established. Created in 1790 "to prevent depredations along the coast," the earliest duty of the coast guard was to war on the pirates who preyed on the merchant shipping in and out of the ports of this new nation and who had their strongholds on the islands adjacent to the southern shores. Nowadays, officials remarked, the liquor ships following the wake of Captain Kidd and his swashbuckling crews are giving the men of the coast guard the stern chase and sometimes the bloody battles that was the daily portion of their predecessors in the stirring times of the bold black flag.

As an instance of history repeating itself, officials declared, the wake of the Bahamas, were once the base for followers of "Jolly Roger" and it has been reported through official channels that one of the families of Bimini, now a fountain head for illicit spirits, its directly descended from a famous freebooter who made the Florida waters a mariners' graveyard two hundred years ago.

Coast guard seamen of today, officials maintained, search the waters of the South Atlantic for bootleg hulk where none their forefathers scanned the seas for a pirate sloop or listen at the mouths of Florida rivers for the put-out of the gasoline craft with its contraband cargo where the ears of a newly formed service were attuned to catch the crack of black and tuck of the scrape of oarlocks.

But besides the war on rum-runners in the south officials pointed out the coast guard is kept on the alert along the whole Atlantic coast, off New York and Boston, and on the Pacific in the waters of Puget Sound, where the Canadian smugglers bring across the line imports forbidden by national prohibition.

FRATERNAL NEWS

Capt. Phillips B. Rodden occupied the chair at last evening's meeting of Camp Four, Uniform Rank, I.O.O.F., M.V., which was held in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street. Roland Bezanon was elected second sergeant and William Guilfoyle was inducted into the office of lieutenant. The drawing contest, organized some time ago, was brought to a close, the following numbers being the winners: First, 2993; second, 1827, and third, 2942. It was announced that a meeting of field officers will be held in Boston in May.

Nearly 2500 tons of grapes were used in the Canadian wine industry in 1920.

EXTEND USE OF NAVAL
RADIO TO THE PRESS

WASHINGTON, March 28.—President Harding was said yesterday to believe it desirable to extend the use of the naval radio to the press for the transmission of trans-Pacific dispatches until such time as private facilities are reasonably available.

The executive will work out such an extension and allow the press the privilege of sending its dispatches for Hawaii, the Philippines and other portions of the Orient until private facilities are erected.

Legislation dealing with the proposed extension is now in conference between the two houses of congress. The senate granted an extension for five years while the house limited it to next June 30. Efforts are now being made to reach an agreement.

Chairman Greene of the house conferees announced yesterday that the five house conferees were unanimous in supporting his contention that "it would be highly impracticable to permit government radio stations to handle press and commercial business for a period of five years."

Outlining his position in a letter to the newspapers in his Massachusetts district, Chairman Greene said: "It is commonly known by those who have followed radio activities that extensive private radio operations are under way on the Pacific coast and that it is a question of a short time only before large private radio companies will be capable of satisfactorily handling all press business going to and coming from the Orient."

TELL OF KENTUCKY'S
NEED OF EDUCATION

Four boys from the Caney Creek Community Centre at Pippaspass, Ky., training to become teachers in a community that is yet only partially touched by the fast moving hands of civilization, spoke before the members of Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R., at the Spaulding house yesterday, and told interesting tales of the struggle now going on in the heart of the Kentucky mountains to bring the light of education to the homes and minds of those old folk of the hill country.

The boys are on a trip to Washington in an automobile given them for the purpose by the national community board and on the way, here and there, stop to tell people such as those in Lowell of what is going on in their country in the battle of education, fought out here years and years ago. It was brought out that at least three million people are living in the Kentucky mountains who have not yet passed the primitive state. Civilization and education slowly are creeping in, but hardly one-half of the population has been touched so far.

TAX IDLE LAND TO

(By N.E.A. Service)

SEATTLE, March 28.—Seattle will vote May 1 on the "Erickson Plan" which would cut street car fare on the many lines from 10 cents to 3 cents, levying a special tax on idle lands in the city to make up the deficit.

Councilman Oliver T. Erickson, the originator, says his plan will mean also better service, adequate financing to retire bonds and means of extension and improvements.

At present with 10-cent fare, the system nets barely enough to meet operating and maintenance costs and pay the interest on indebtedness.

Seattle purchased its street car system as a wartime necessity to insure adequate transportation for shipyard workers. The price was $15,000,000.

Price Too High

"The big price paid has made adequate operation a serious problem," says Erickson. "This has given a black eye to many ownership all over the country."

"The plight of the street car system is a detriment to the whole city. The whole city must combine to remedy it."

Erickson's plan therefore puts on property owners the maintenance and operation of the system. Car riders, paying 3-cent fare, would redeem and pay interest on the $15,000,000 bond issue for the purchase, building in addition a $1,500,000 annual fund for extension and depreciation.

The campaign over the issue is keen. Opponents declare the plan is confiscatory; that it would take the homes of small property owners.

"We are already paying a high tax in car fares," Erickson retorts. "But two-thirds of Seattle's lots are vacant and held for speculation. They bear no share in this burden. Under my plan, owners of this land, now exempt, would have to help and the burden thus would be more evenly distributed."

CLAIMED EXEMPTION,
DENIED CITIZENSHIP

WORCESTER, March 28.—Nine Italian-speaking residents of Worcester, who claimed exemption from service in the United States army during the World war on the ground that they were aliens, were denied United States citizenship in the naturalization session of superior court yesterday by Judge Philip J. O'Connell.

There were 22 applicants before the court, and reflecting the nine, Judge O'Connell said:

"You didn't want willingly to take up arms and fight for this country three or four years ago, so I guess that you will now have to wait a while longer and longer more thoroughly your loyalty to this country."

DRESS WARM AND

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Action and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is this function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Adv.

She could eat anything—
without indigestion or sleeplessness

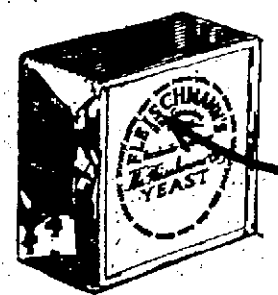

FOR a long time she had been troubled with gas after her evening meal. The distress was most painful after eating potatoes or other starchy foods, of which she was very fond.

Then she started taking two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every night between her evening meal and bedtime. She poured about a half cup of boiling hot water over the yeast cakes, stirred them thoroughly, added a little cold water and drank.

She found she could eat anything and sleep splendidly afterward.

Thousands of men and women are finding that Fleischmann's Yeast corrects stomach and intestinal troubles. It promotes the flow of bile and pancreatic juice. It is rich in the appetite-stimulating vitamin, so that appetite is always kept normal and you are protected from indigestion.

Add 2 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your daily diet. You will find that your whole digestive system is greatly benefited. Place a standing order with your grocer. He will deliver it regularly.

No silk too sheer or fine to launder
this gentle Lux way

NOWADAYS there is a silk for every use. There is crepe de Chine for the tailored suit, chiffon andorgette for the afternoon call. Even sports have claimed their own individual weave.

The sheerest chiffon blouse, the most delicate pastel color, is practical now. For what if they do soil quickly? They can be laundered so perfectly and so easily with Lux.

A strong soap or strong soap flake will destroy the luster and life of silk, and turn it yellow. Hard rubbing will fray and break the delicate threads.

But Lux is just as delicate as the sheerest silk. It cannot injure anything that pure water alone won't harm.

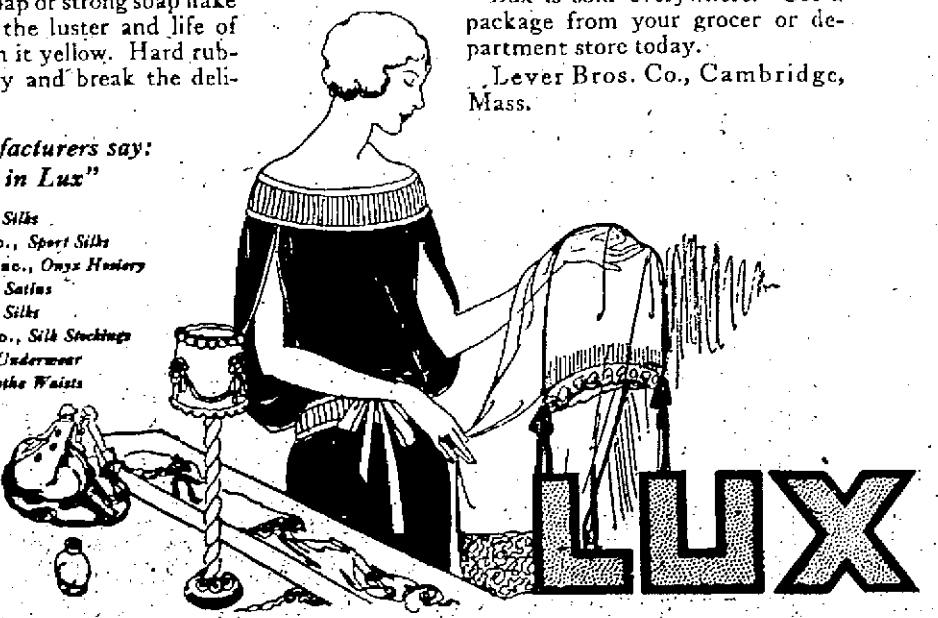

The thin Lux flakes instantly into a rich creamy lather that you can safely trust the daintiest silken garment to. A gentle swishing up and down in the pure suds, and it is fresh again without so much as a twisted thread or a dimming of its beautiful sheen.

Lux is sold everywhere. Get a package from your grocer or department store today.

YOU INHERIT IT

Suppose you go to an antique shop and buy an old Chinese dagger, with ivory handle and an ivory sheath. You clean it, hang it on the wall. Friends come in. Show the Chinese dagger to them. They handle it gingerly. Then, discovering that it doesn't bite, a wave of impulse sweeps through them. Playfully they pretend to go on the warpath—make flourishes as if about to stab everyone in sight. Scientists call that a "reversion to type"—a throw-back to barbarous ancestors who wanted to kill with a knife whenever they got their fingers on it. Occasionally the reversion to type unfortunately occurs when someone is examining a pistol. Then a wretch is hung beside the front door, and the pistol handler says he didn't know it was loaded.

All of us inherit many primitive emotions from ancestors thousands of years back. These emotions are like furnace fires with the drafts closed by gradual civilization. These emotions, in super-civilization, will become cold, dead ashes. Now they smolder, some of them rarely bursting into flame in the course of a life-time.

They are the relics that mark man's upward climb. Behold the spring gardener, happily plunging his fingers into the soil. It is a reversion to type—displaying the mechanical springtime-planning habit of ancestors, far back when agriculture was the only form of real civilization. The city man's backyard garden is an inherited expression of the crop-growing instinct. What of the man who hates gardening and flower planting? He probably likes to roam in the woods and fish—a throwback to ancestors who lived by hunting and hunting. They were rovers, unlike the soil tillers. Another type in spring goes crazy on sport. If they could trace their family trees far enough, they'd probably find gladiators and professional soldiers at the roots. Nature intended all men to be tillers of the soil. Wandering therefrom, we have economic and health problems that result from congestion. From these we revolt in springtime—revert to type—fish, roam, plant vegetables, trees, grass and flowers. Springtime wakes all that lies dormant in man's blood and brain. It is the link connecting us with the unknown past.—N.E.A.

CUTTING OFF THE ENGINE

The never-say-die spirit runs through all the maris of trade. William Wrigley, known the world over as a manufacturer of chewing gum, who supplied many a "chow" to our soldiers when they went across the sea to war, has the right idea in a new popular phrase, "Don't cut off the engine!" The gum maker was riding on a train recently, when a stranger approached. "Mr. Wrigley," began the man anxiously, "do you know you're wasting a lot of money?" Mr. Wrigley claimed to be the original "man from Marsok." "Why," continued the stranger, "your product is so well advertised now, you don't need to advertise!" This might have staggered someone of a different stamp, but not the man whose name is familiar in the maris of trade. His reply was brief and to the point. "If this train were moving and we were to cut off the engine, the train would coast along a while and then come to a stop, and that's just what my business would do if I cut off the advertising. Advertising is the engine that furnishes the motive power for my business."

GERMANY AND BANKRUPTCY

Some British business men and politicians fear that Germany's bankruptcy may be near. In such case, they wonder how would reparations be paid. Suppose Germany did go bankrupt. What then? After a France-like confusion, Germans would go ahead growing crops and running factories. They'd pay their indemnity in goods. What's the difference? That's how they're paying now, by exports, having very little gold. Keeping Germany at work is more important than her money system. Money is a hypothesis, though a great convenience. If a nation like Germany went bankrupt by forcible divorce from the gold standard, it would result in someone devising a money system based on units of human productive energy. An equally balanced exchange of products of human toil would be possible by a system of metering the value of human energy—like metering gas and electricity. It is easier said than done. The real problem, then as now, would be agreeing on relative values.

PRICES AND EXPORTS

All last year, friends of the farmers were shouting from the housetops that means must be found to check the rapid falling-off in exports of things grown on the farms. The Department of Agriculture now announces that exports of the 32 leading agricultural products gained 27 per cent in quantity in 1921, but decreased 39 per cent in value.

Most of the other basic industries have been going through the same experience. The so-called collapse of exports is largely a collapse of prices, which bears a valuable lesson in industrial economics. It seems that our manufactured products cannot be disposed of in foreign markets at present prices. Prices in Europe are at a low ebb and the cost of production in those countries is perhaps less than half the cost in this country. This explains in part why our exports are falling off. The foreign nations purchase nothing from us except what they cannot get at a lower price elsewhere.

MOONSHINE AS MONEY

Moonshine liquor has become currency in parts of Texas. One community reports that 40 gallons of moonshine can be exchanged for a Ford car. History repeats. In 1784 settlers of eastern Tennessee set up their own commonwealth, elected a legislature, called their domain the state of Franklin, and sought admission to the Union. Records dealing with this odd political movement mention that rum was legal tender in those days, one gallon buying a house upon a hill. Many thrifty ones would trade their whole wardrobe for a gallon of rum today. This reference to the evasion of law in Texas is not offered as a hint to people who like such conditions to migrate there. The enforcement officers will get to Texas in due time, although the settlements are so far apart that it would require a whole army to enforce the law as rigidly as it is enforced in this state.

THE 13 FIREMEN

Why not pay the 13 firemen under some dispute and let's be done with it? There is every evidence that the men were properly appointed, duly taken from a certified civil service list and in the minds of the fire department officers and the board of underwriters, were needed in the service. The claim that if they were paid, the expenditures of the department would exceed in one month a sum greater than was expended in any one month last year, may be true enough, but has the same careful scrutiny been the rule in other departments? Is not adequate fire protection, in terms of both men and apparatus, a necessity?

THE NEW PARKWAY

Now that it is a certainty that Ames street, now closed as a thoroughfare, will be converted into a public park and made a part of the present Lucy Larcom park, it seems the proper thing to do to keep right on calling the whole area after Lowell's famous mill girl. To name it High School park might be appropriate and satisfying to the general public, but it would not carry with it quite the same significance or the same amount of cherished traditions. New York women may light up their faces in public after all. The prohibition order was a slip of the pen, or rather of the shears, for it seems that a clerk in clipping out orders that had been passed by the city government carelessly included the anti-smoke ordinance among them. The police commissioner hastened to correct the false impression and lifted the ban. Women of the metropolis happily sigh again, take out the be-jeweled elegant cases and nonchalantly speed smoke rings up toward the ceiling, pondering the while over the threatened acts of mere men.

It is to be hoped that parents of school children will not shy at the new clinic to be established by the board of health, under the supervision of the director of school hygiene, for the purpose of giving Schick tests to pupils to determine immunity from diphtheria. Schick testing has come into popular favor as a simple and effective means of preventing an unnecessary spread of this disease and inasmuch as it is entirely harmless and leaves no disagreeable after-effects, it is to be hoped that parents will co-operate heartily with the health officers in allowing children to present themselves for the test.

It is indeed good news that a group of local business men soon will build a colony of modern one-family houses in a section of the city that presents excellent opportunities for home development. It has been long since there was an abundance of one-family dwellings in Lowell, in fact the ravages have been the ruin, with the shortage growing more acute each year. The city edomies new taxable property, to be sure, but the general public welcomes any announcement which shows a tendency to create attractive homes, obtainable for a fairly moderate sum.

Lawrence will suffer more from mill strikes than Lowell because of the larger number of hands thrown into idleness. It is to be hoped that some means of settling these conflicts will be found other than having each side hold out to force the other into submission. This is ruinous and might be avoided if our government had provided the proper machinery.

The first street oval would be a valuable acquisition to the city for playground purposes and it should be seized for this purpose as the park board directs. Men who have nothing else to do can employ their time profitably in planting a vegetable garden.

SEEN AND HEARD

Between the early bird and the early fisherman the early worm is out of luck.

"We will shoot up nothing," say miners. "We will shoot up nothing," say operators. "Don't shoot up prices," say consumers.

Thought For Today

Every man has his own vocation. There is one direction in which all eyes are turned. He has feet! He is actually trying him thither to endless exertion. He is like a ship in a river; he runs against obstructions on every side but one; on that side all obstructions are taken away, and he sweeps serenely over a deepening channel into an infinite sea.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

A Word a Day

Today's word is expunge. It's pronounced—eks-pung, with accent on the last syllable. It means to strike out, cancel, eliminate, edit, to remove certain words or passages. It comes from—Latin expungere, "to expel with dots." It's used like this—"There is much discussion as to whether mention picture censors shall continue to expunge parts of dramas they do not like."

Cash Discount

A train in the west was held up by bandits, who ordered the passengers to give up all their money. One of the passengers was a man from New York, and when his turn came he reluctantly drew $800 from his pocket, and taking $6, put it in his pocket. "What do you mean by that?" asked the bandit. "Surely," answered the man, "you don't mind me taking a 2 per cent discount on a cash transaction."

Too Much Backbone

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was entertaining the leaders of the national women's party at her Newport residence. "I met a movie man the other day," she said. "He urged me to help him banish the movie censors. He declared: 'The movies need no censor, madam. They have the very backbone of American art.' The last movie I attended, I said, 'it seemed to me that there was a little too much backbone in evidence.'"

Slight Misunderstanding

A young and nervous candidate for the navy was being examined by a board of admirals and in the course of a test of his general knowledge he was asked this question: "What kind of animals eat grass?" The youth pondered long over the question. "Surely you know the answer to a simple question like that—what kind of animals eat grass?" the admiral repeated. Then a flash of understanding illumined the youth's face. "O, animals, sir," he thought you said admiral," he replied, in a tone of relief.

Soldier and Sailor, Too

Marshall Foch at a dinner, when in Washington, told a war story. "An aged veteran of the Franco-Prussian war," he said, "was talking to a young veteran of the world war. 'Let me bring up as they will about modern fighting,' said the old veteran, 'the Franco-Prussian was the war for me. Hardship! Up to your neck in snow! I tell you, soldier, it was soldiering in them days.' 'Ah, but you ought to have seen our trench warfare,' said the young veteran. 'Up to our necks in water! I tell you, soldier, it was soldiering in these times.'—Washington Star.

Uncertainty

Times have been like a sailing ship in a typhoon, with the masts torn away, the rudder crippled, the crew working frantically at the pumps to counteract leaks that have sprung in the hold. The crew is weary, confused, no one seems to know where to turn, what to do next. That explains widespread uncertainty—the epidemic of "Shall I do this, or shall I lose if I do?" The storm is dying down. Land is in sight. Soon to port for repairs, general overhauling, new coat of paint, new mast, new rudder, then out to sea for another trip, all hands singing. It's a beautiful picture. A little further development. No storm can last forever. With this on over, uncertainty will vanish, confidence will be restored. It's returning now.

Arabian Song

In the darkness I come; I come, I come, My beloved, O, listen to my sigh! For thee I die, For thee I sigh, My beloved, O, listen to my cry! My heart throbs for your love, And all the stars above, Now light my way to thee, I come, I come, My beloved.—F. H. CHARTER.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

The newly formed acquaintance committee of the chamber of commerce, I understand, has at last a mighty task if it is to carry out the plans now outlined. The members of the committee intend to call upon new concerns and new business men as they come into the city, and offer them opportunities for meeting other business men already established here, also, to conduct them to gatherings where they may become better acquainted with their new associates. It is thought that arrangements will be made for monthly lunches at least once a month, such as the Rotary and Ad clubs now hold. Other evening meetings will be arranged, with good speakers. Stangers and others not connected with the chamber will be invited to as many of these meetings as possible, and cars will be taken that each visitor makes the acquaintance of everyone present. This is designed to create an excellent spirit of friendship among local business men, however new to the city they may be, and it is hoped that the committee will be successful in the fulfillment of its potent program.

While waiting for a street car at Oakland square the other day my attention was attracted by the Shedd park baseball diamond on the opposite side of a Rogers street. On closer inspection the ground seemed to be in excellent condition save for a pool of water in deep center field which promised to disappear with the help of a little sunshine. The same old trouble with the diamond was apparent, however—pebbles of various sizes scat-

MAIN HOSPITAL SAVED

Nurses' Home at New Mill-lion. Dollar Hospital at Middleton, Destroyed.

DANVERS, March 29.—The Nurses' Home, connected with the new million dollar Essex county tuberculosis hospital at Middleton, Mass., practically destroyed by a fire this morning, causing an estimated loss of $20,000. Help was sent by the fire departments of Danvers, Middleton, Peabody and Beverly and the combined efforts kept the fire from communicating with the main hospital building, which is just across the driveway. The cause of the fire is unknown. There are some 35 nurses at the home, most of whom were at breakfast when the fire started. In the hospital are 106 patients. Nobody was injured. The fire did not reach the hospital.

Headmaster Henry H. Harris of the Lowell high school has compiled some interesting figures relative to distinguished men of America and their education, designed to show that the college man has a distinct advantage over all others, whatever may be said to the contrary. Of five million men with practically no schooling, but 31 attained distinction; of two million with a high school education 1246 were successful in gaining prominence, and of one million who graduated from colleges and universities 6785 made names for themselves. Going a little farther, Mr. Harris says that but 1 per cent of American men are college graduates, yet of this 1 per cent 55 per cent of our presidents, 36 per cent of our members of congress, 41 per cent of our speakers of the house of representatives, 54 per cent of our vice presidents, 62 per cent of our secretaries of state, 50 per cent of our secretaries of the treasury, 67 per cent of our attorney generals and 59 per cent of our justices of the supreme court have been given to the country. Rather a convincing argument in favor of college training, according to our worthy high school principal.

The death of Miss Elizabeth G. Lawler, principal of the Central Street school, Monday, removes from the sphere of local education an estimable figure of refinement and culture whose labors in the cause of educating and training the young extended over a long period. One cannot repress the thought on the passing of such an individual, a mother figure, the city's teaching force that she was the moulding influence. If you will, in the lives of many boys and girls, now grown to man and woman, who, in reflecting on her death, will conjure up in memory's haunts the spectacle of a splendid teacher, keen in the class room, with a single eye always on the student, and in the home, a devoted mother, a perfect perfection in the studies we all learned in the primary school. The usages of the alphabet, reading, writing and arithmetic, and the fundamentals of an education in subsequent years. Her passing so suddenly from the realm of teaching, where she gave herself wholly her finest and best, will be regretted not only by her former pupils but by the citizens of Lowell generally, who recognize in her long career as a teacher one of genuine greatness and of the good of our city and its people.

I understand the week of April 21 to 29 has been designated as "Be Kind to Animals" week and will be observed throughout the country. President Harding is a strong supporter of the movement and has already written a letter of indorsement to Dr. William O. Stillman, president of the American Humane association. I am told that the local society will advertise the matter and will do all in its power to bring the public's attention to the cause. It is almost a pity that the committee to even have to have a week to remind people of their duties to animals. Animals should be treated kindly at all times.

Residents of various sections of the city would be pleased if the superintendent of streets had the storm guards removed from the Pawtucket bridge, so as to give them an opportunity to get a glimpse of the Pawtucket falls when they are at their best. Last Sunday hundreds of automobiles passed over the bridge and many people enjoyed the splendid view because of the early storm guards. In order to see the falls, motorists swung into Varnum avenue and at that all they got was a side view of the beautiful flow of water. On pleasant Sunday in the early spring there are always thousands of automobilists and pedestrians who are attracted to the falls and the removal of the storm guards would prove of great benefit to them.

Vaccination Bill Beaten—House Stands Pat on Soft Drink Licenses

BOSTON, March 29.—The Massachusetts house of representatives yesterday by a voice vote rejected the bill to provide for the compulsory vaccination of pupils attending private schools.

The bill was opposed by Mr. Hull of Ipswich, Mr. Hennessey of Boston, Mr. Bartlett of Brockton, Mr. Rice of Newton, Mr. Mumford of Woburn, Mr. Curtis of Haverhill and Mr. Doyle of New Bedford. Those who spoke in favor included Mr. Keniston of Boston, Mr. Glazier of Hudson and Mr. Frothingham of Lynn. On the question of concurring with the senate amendments to the bill to license the sale of non-intoxicating beverages, Mr. Maloney of Malden said that the exemption of dealers in groceries, bakery products, meats, confectionery and ice cream, as proposed by the senate amendments, would defeat the purpose of the bill. The house thereupon refused to concur with any of the amendments. The house refused, after a short debate, to order to a third reading a bill to provide for compulsory voting. On motion of Mr. Hull of Ipswich the house insisted upon its position on the bill that cities and towns may provide quarters for local posts of veterans of foreign wars and concurred in the request for a committee on conference.

Committee reports: Municipal finance—Bill to authorize the city of Boston to spend $300,000 for a bathhouse and bathing bench at Jetties Point. Ways and means—Bill to extend to May 1, 1922, the existence of the commission on the necessities of life, with provision for the spending of unexpended balances and such additional sums as may be approved by the governor and council; resolve directing the state department of health to investigate the feasibility of hospitals for treatment of surgical or non-pulmonary tuberculosis; "reference to the next annual session; petition for a memorial to the state house to the members of the 101st and 104th infantry regiments who lost their lives in the world war.

RICKARD NOT GUILTY

Big Demonstration as Sports Promoter is Acquitted of Assault Charge.

NEW YORK, March 29.—George L. (Tex) Rickard, sports promoter, who was acquitted of charges of assault and abduction in supreme court here early today, will probably not be called upon to answer to three similar indictments that have been found against him by the grand jury. This was indicated by Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, who conducted the trial of Rickard on accusations made by Sarah Schoenfeld, aged 15. Max D. Steuer, attorney for Rickard, said the assistant district attorney regarded the case as ended and had promised not to try Rickard on the report of the convention, is vouched for by the regular general headquarters of the Irish republican army in a statement which says the following resolution was offered by Thomas Barry and Frank Barrett:

MRS. LYONS, UNION LEADER, DEAD

LYNN, March 29.—Mrs. Julia A. Lyons, 2178 Union st., a lifelong resident of Lynn and credited with being the first woman business agent of a labor union in this country; died at Lynn hospital yesterday following a week's illness. Mrs. Lyons was born in Lynn 55 years ago, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Dymann, said to be the first Irish family to settle in Lynn. She had been employed as a shoemaker for more than 40 years. Mrs. Lyons served on the executive board of the Siltsters' Local 57, of which she was a prominent member. In March, 1913, she assisted in organizing shoe unions in Haverhill. She was instrumental in obtaining an increase in wages and better working hours for unions of which she was head. Mrs. Lyons leaves a niece, Mrs. Nora Diversi, 12 Newhall st., Lynn.

"Resolved: That matters of immediate concern for the executive will include:

"First: Maintaining Ireland as an independent republic.

"Second: Appointment of a chief of staff who will appoint a general headquarters staff. Appointments can be vetoed by the executive.

"Third: Declaration of dictatorship. For this purpose the executive shall be empowered to secure the services of others, who need not be members of the executive, with a view to ordering the dissolution of all pretended governments in Ireland by the prohibition of parliamentary elections until such time as an election without the threat of war by Great Britain can be held on adult suffrage."

The statement proceeds: "The dictatorship would overthrow the four governments in Ireland opposed to the republic, namely, the Dail Eireann provisional, British and northern governments."

Finally it was decided that the resolution should be submitted to the executive for an opinion at the next convention April 8.

The convention empowered the executive to suppress the election if it saw fit, the statement says.

The delegates argued that the question of finance need not trouble the movement, as money could be had for the taking. The Nationalist press could be dealt with by commandeering its machinery or using the sledge.

Spicy Hearing on Dance Hall

tion of the young folks of that and other sections against the establishment of what was designated by at least one of them as "a hell-hole on the boulevard."

Mr. Hennessy opened the argument for the petitioners by saying that the matter before the commission was an off-told tale. His clients had come once more to ask for their rights, but undoubtedly there were some who were so afraid that because the commission was asked to grant a license it-fame would come upon the section. The question, he argued, was one of setting up or establishing a dance hall pavilion.

Mr. Bechard, according to counsel, knows what he is doing; he is not asking to do business in a predatory manner. He asks simply for the ordinary privilege of conducting a dance hall. If he violates the rules he is aware of the consequences; no irrevocable right is to be given him, no undying privilege; nothing more than a temporary right to do a thing, a dance hall privilege.

Speaking of the opposition voiced on other occasions by a neighboring hospital, he said the opposition no longer exists. Only one objection can be made now—an objection on high moral grounds. With the officers and capable police force in Lowell, he said, the dance halls in this city are better conducted than elsewhere in the commonwealth. The question is whether the police can enforce the law. He does not believe Mr. Bechard will allow any evil-doing on the premises, and if this should be proven otherwise it is in the power of the police and the license commission to take the privilege away. He then showed photos of the projected dance hall to the commissioners.

Mr. Hennessy said that he had a number of witnesses present who had been there before to testify in Mr. Bechard's favor. Chairman Hanson ordered him to produce them.

Witnesses for Bechard

Dr. Pierre Brunelle said that he has known Bechard since boyhood and knows that he is honest in purpose and intends to do the right thing. He has read about the objections raised on other petitions, and can see reasons for fear on the part of Pawtucketville residents. This fear he believes to be unfounded. Relative to the disturbance and noise which would be created by a dance hall, he said that if he were connected with an institution nearby he might object, lest the noise disturb the patients.

John J. Mullaney, a former license commissioner, said that he had come there at Mr. Richard's request and that he believed the privilege should be granted. He reminded Mr. Bechard of the unpleasantness concerning the Casino several years ago, when an injunction was sought by residents of the neighborhood. He and Mr. Hanson, he said, had visited the place several times and found nothing wrong. There has never been a complaint since, said Mr. Mullaney, and even church parties are conducted there.

He thought that the board had used good judgment in refusing a license while the trustees of the hospitals had voted opposition. Now, however, with the dance hall moved farther up the boulevard, he thought there was no difference in the conditions than those which prevail in Lawrence, Amesbury, Haverhill and Providence, where dance halls are located at about the same distance from the city. He expressed the feeling that the construction and opening of such a hall might be an improvement. He said that an investor would take good care of his property and his license, and should be granted the license if the conditions claimed to exist by the remonstrants are found non-existent.

Timothy E. Roy, Ernest J. Dupont, Alfred St. John, Archie Miller, the latter the proprietor of a filling station near the proposed site, testified to the good character of Mr. Bechard, and expressed the opinion that the pavilion would be properly conducted and that the location was a proper one for such an establishment.

Remonstrants Are Heard

William H. Rigby opened for the remonstrants. He said that he came there to register a protest against the granting of the license as a resident of Pawtucketville, a father and a friend of other fathers and mothers. He admitted Mr. Bechard's good character, but said that had nothing to do with the main issue. He asked the commissioners if they knew the locality and asked them to picture it under cover of night. No one could tell more about the boulevard than he, he asserted. He told of improper conduct he had witnessed in broad daylight, and said that if such conditions could exist by daylight one could imagine what was likely to occur during the dark hours of the night. Mr. Bechard cannot prevent it; he can only care for his dance hall and the conduct of his patrons within the building.

Mr. Rigby told of the policing received by that section of Pawtucketville. But one police officer is assigned to that locality, and one of the easterly side. This officer never visits the vicinity of the new site.

On the boulevard last Sunday, said Mr. Rigby, he saw two young men in a drunken condition, accosting passing women. They were later placed under arrest. He said that he had seen a stream of young men rushing from a building in which the dance hall is situated to a resort across the street. Since there is an ice cream parlor 25 feet away, he did not think they were going there for ice cream. He believed the boulevard would be one of the finest locations conceivable for bootlegging.

He referred to several notorious incidents which had occurred in the vicinity of the boulevard, and said that it was worthy of note that all were headed in the same direction. Mr. Rigby suggested that Mr. Bechard might do well to stay in his present business. The old dance hall, he supposed, had been cared for by the Lord, since it is flat on the ground.

Unfavorable Conditions

Asked by Mr. McGrath if conditions such as he described prevail at the present time, Mr. Rigby said that he would rather answer elsewhere, but pressed by the commissioner he stated emphatically that they did. Asked if he had ever complained to the police, he replied that arrests have been made within a week at his instigation.

Dr. A. G. Bennett, who lives near the boulevard, testified that he goes there frequently on professional visits. He told of observations he had made, and of autos parked in secluded spots at night. The boulevard attracts a rough element, and he did not think a dance hall would improve conditions. Samuel G. Lyons, who has lived for 30 years within a short distance of the boulevard, said that he knew everyone who had spoken in behalf of the project, and knew, also, that none of them would want the dance hall near his own house. They know the conditions. He would not describe these conditions as Mr. Rigby had; his description, he feared, would be less flattering. If a white way could be installed along the boulevard, conditions might be improved, but with the present lack of supervision everything might be all right in the dance hall but conditions on the outside would be lamentable. The police, no matter how many were assigned, could not keep up with things as they occurred. He said that the swimming pool had been detrimental to an extent, but the good it has done counteracts the bad.

History of Boulevard

Joseph M. Wilson, one of Pawtucketville's oldest residents, was the next opposition speaker. He told of the donation of the boulevard to the city by 12 residents of the section, with the exception of one part owned by a man named Green, which was ultimately purchased with funds raised by Commissioner Tutnam and Hon. Charles D. Palmer, a former mayor. Those were the days of real sport, said Mr.

Wilson. The property was donated for clean sport; it was given for horsemen and the pleasure-riding public. The founders builded better than they knew, however, for though given for horses it was used on holidays by thousands of automobiles, and will become, eventually, a part of the projected Daniel Webster highway. Therefore, it should be kept clean. He has no idea that the Bechards and Mr. Little are other than reputable men, but he thinks their project detrimental.

At this point he was accused by Mr. Hennessy of looking for sympathy, but Chairman Hanson ruled that he might proceed.

Mr. Wilson resumed, saying that he thought Mr. Hennessy had appealed for sympathy for the petitioners. He thinks the boulevard and its donors are entitled to protection, and there is no question in his mind regarding dance halls; a dance hall is not at least an elevating place, and certainly is not exactly a school of propriety. He believes that the boulevard with the river bathhouse is beautiful as it is, and is unalterably opposed to the erection of what he feels is an unthinkable menace.

Location Too Secluded

Rev. Arthur G. Lyon said that he represented 95 per cent. of the mothers and fathers of Pawtucketville. The citizens whom he represented prayed the board not to grant the license. Twice in its wisdom the commission had seen fit to refuse and has had with it the sentiment of the thinking people of Lowell, and will have it once more if the petition is again refused.

He came in the interest of the young people of Lowell. The new site is in a more secluded and worse location than the first. Twice the hearings had been attended by remonstrants who filled the hall. The sentiment is still the same, stronger than ever. If anything, on account of the new location, he had told them that there was no necessity of coming last night.

Mr. Lyon said he was not opposed to dancing. He questioned whether another dance hall was needed. In such an improper place, then even if anything, on account of the new location, he had told them that there was no necessity of coming last night. He represented both Catholics and Protestants to oppose the license, but if the board thinks it would be a good thing to grant it he will stand with them, but he urged them to consider the conditions. It was the profit of a few men balanced against the morals and welfare of the young people.

In reply to a question by Commissioner McGrath, Mr. Lyon said he had often asked for additional police protection, but had received no response.

After a few other remarks in rebuttal, the hearing was continued until next Tuesday night.

SOVIET ENVOYS AT RIGA

Delegates to Genoa Conference Arrive in Good Spirits—Soldiers on Guard

RIGA, March 29.—(By the Associated Press)—Members of the Russian soviet delegation to the Genoa conference, all apparently in excellent spirits, arrived here this morning. Soldiers and police were on guard at the depot.

George Chicherin, the soviet foreign minister and head of the delegation in the absence of Premier Lunin, was among the first to alight on the platform and greet Latvian officials. He paced the platform for exercise and talked to the correspondents for a few moments without making any announcements of importance and then went into breakfast.

The soviet party traveled on a train of eight cars hauled by two wood-burning locomotives. They were accompanied from the frontier by 24

Latvian soldiers riding in a coach attached to the rear of the train. Despite the efforts made to keep the time of the delegation's arrival secret, reports of plots against the soviet representatives a considerable crowd had assembled outside the station.

The delegates occupied broad gauge sleepers, larger than Pullmans and heated by electricity. One coach was filled with baggage, among which were several wardrobe trunks. In contrast with M. Chicherin in frock coat and black cravat and several well-groomed secretaries accompanying him, the couriers and other helpers were dressed in leather coats, leather trousers and boots and fur caps. In the eagerness of the crowd to see the delegates, some of the more agile of those outside climbed to the tops of the sheds and fences overlooking the platform.

After breakfast the delegates and secretaries scattered about the town, many of them seeking shops to make purchases.

NEWARK, N. J., March 29.—Mrs. Thomas Tsoukas today started back to her home in Worcester, Mass., happy in the possession of her three little children found last night in a Newark boarding house.

LABOR HEAD COMMENTS ON CORONER'S FINDING

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 29.—Commenting on Coroner Vance's report on the C'Assincoquest today, John H. Payne, director of the strike in the Blackstone valley in the absence of Thomas F. McMahon, said:

"If the mayor's edicts or the instant obedience to an order issued to the police by a petty officer was of more importance than the protection of human life, then the act was justified. But if we can go to the end with as clear a conscience as we have now, letting the burden and blame rest where it is, we will be satisfied that we have fought a clean fight, and a good one."

courageous little band of volunteer fire fighters.

Seeing that the great building was in danger, the brothers decided to remove everything of value. Rev. Brother Bunnell, at the risk of his life, succeeded in carrying out the precious relics and the statue of St. Anne.

The firemen could not reach with a stream of water. In a few moments the structure was ablaze from end to end.

Two 100 Foot Towers Fall

In an incredibly short time, the two 100-foot towers comprising the facade of the cathedral crashed. The Quebec firemen on their arrival did their utmost to save the structure, but they were handicapped by the fact that the local water works could not supply enough water for their engines. They were compelled to lay a line of hose 2000 feet long to the bank of the St. Lawrence river, which was at low tide when the flames were at their height.

Whole Village in Terror

The whole village for a time was in terror. At one time it seemed as if destruction faced the little community which lives for the most part from selling souvenirs to pilgrims during the summer. Just as the villagers had abandoned hope, the wind turned.

The only part of the entire group of buildings connected with the basilica which was saved was the old chapel, which housed the shrine before the church was erected. The statue of St. Anne will be removed to the chapel and the reconstruction of the basilica.

St. Anne de Beaupre, the most famous shrine in the new world, each year has attracted hundreds of the lame, halt and blind, who flocked there from all parts of Canada and the United States to be cured by the shrine's chief afflictions. Every household in the village that could offer shelter leased all his spare rooms at exorbitant prices and some times the throng of unfortunates was so dense that the church had to be thrown open at night.

St. Anne de Beaupre, a village of a few thousand inhabitants, is located a few miles from this city. In addition to the thousands of pilgrims who annually visited the shrine, there flocked to the village thousands of tourists to gaze upon the famous pile of crutches cast aside by those who declared themselves miraculously cured.

The village was founded by Breton mariners about 1620. The present church of St. Anne was opened for public worship in 1870 and by papal proclamation, made a basilica in 1887. In the church are relics of St. Anne and a famous statue of the saint, with the virgin, mounted on an onyx column.

The original church, constructed in 1655, and the 11th divine edifice built in Canada, threatened to turn into a mass of ruins and in 1878 was taken down and re-erected near the new church. Near it is a well to which miraculous healing powers are ascribed.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 29.—The only striking exception to the higher range of prices at the opening of today's stock market, was American Ice. That issue declined two points, presumably on the failure of the directors to increase the rate of dividend. Bull pools continued their recent activities in selected shares. Union Pacific, which added 2 1/2 points to yesterday's substantial gain and Studebaker, Harvester, Crucible, American Car, Electric Storage Battery and Mexican Petroleum, were higher by 1 to 1 1/2 points. Rails were generally better on short covering. Northern Pacific gained one point. Market Street Railway prior offered at a gain of 2 1/2 points was strongest of the utilities.

The 5 per cent. money rate of the final hour had little adverse effect on the general list. Rails, oils and shipwrecks were then at the day's best prices. The closing was strong.

They were returned by parcel post, with a note from the thief saying: "I was broke and hungry and had to steal your bag. I will return the $23 as soon as I get a job." The signature was "A stranger."

"HOCH" RESPONSIBLE FOR ASSAULT CASE

After hearing a witness testify to the effect that he had bought moonshine in a house which resulted in an assault and battery case, tried in court this morning, Judge Thomas J. Barlett ordered the man held so that he might tell his story to the liquor inspectors. Appearing as a defense witness in the case charging Mike Kalowinski with assault on Sophie Malincha and Anthony Barbuski, William Stolz said that he twice bought moonshine in the West End street house where the assault is alleged to have taken place.

The court took down William's name, address, and other details, and then ordered him to tell his story to the liquor men. The court said that if the house in question was selling moonshine it would be investigated.

As a result of alleged clouting of Sophie and Anthony with a flat-iron, Mike was ordered to pay fines of $75, the sum of $25 being assessed for the assault on the man and $50 for the assault on the woman.

Sophie appeared in court with a swollen lip and a bruised left eye, while Anthony exhibited a bruise in the head as his souvenir of the fracas.

Mike claimed that on the night of March 22 he twice went to the Winter street house to bring his wife home and that he was told she was not there. He denied hitting anyone with a flat-iron, but the court found him guilty.

Nothing BUT MIRACLE CAN AVERT STRIKE

NEW YORK, March 29.—(By the Associated Press)—Casting aside as a "remote possibility" the prospect of settling their differences in time to avert the general strike for April 1, members of the anthracite sub-committee on wage contract negotiations today glided themselves for a long hard struggle over the miners' demands.

"Nothing but a miracle—the immediate acceptance of each and every one of our demands—can avert the strike now," said Thomas Kennedy, district president of the United Mine Workers.

"Under the present circumstances, it is probable that the suspension will go into effect April 1, according to the miners' program," said S. D. Warriner, vice president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Co.

Although sanguine of the ultimate success of the negotiations, now in progress, the six other members of the anthracite sub-committee, composed of union chiefs and mine operators, were convinced that the mines would be evacuated Saturday.

INC. FAILS

BOSTON, March 29.—The Dalghe Felt Co., Inc., of Oxford, as a result of a vote by its stockholders, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today. Against assets of $410,623, were set liabilities of $440,647. The latter $300,000 were due to the bank. As an indication of the cause of the company's embarrassment, debts due on open accounts were said to amount to $207,653. The principal unsecured creditors are the American Woolen company, with a claim of $15,000, and Falmouth Brothers of Boston, $15,672. The Merchants National bank of Worcester with claims aggregating $228,258 and H. F. Bernis, with a claim for $31,650 are among the secured creditors.

FIRE UNCOVERS

ANOTHER STILL

A slight blaze in the attic of the house numbered 50 Lewis street this morning resulted in the finding of a 75-gallon still in operation, about 300 gallons of mash and 8 gallons of moonshine. The police were notified by the firemen and later they carried the apparatus and stuff to the police station. A warrant was later sworn for the arrest of the alleged owner of the still, John F. Felatus.

The blaze was discovered by someone in the house shortly before 8.30 o'clock and an alarm was sent in from box 125. The members of Hose 8 in Merrimack street were the first to reach the premises and when they entered the attic of the building from which smoke was issuing, they saw a large copper still on a gas range. The fire was in the ceiling, just over the still, and a few streams from the chemical extinguisher was sufficient to put it out. No one was hurt in the fire.

When the blaze was discovered and the police were informed later that the apparatus was owned by Felatus.

EQUESTRIAN STATUE

OF ROOSEVELT STARTED

ORD AND, Oregon, March 23—tion for Theodore Roosevelt as and citizen prompted Dr. Henry

McCoy, a Portland physician, who

McCoy as a cowboy in North

Idaho, to donate to the city of Portland an equestrian statue of the former and an equestrian statue is now being made by Plimster Proctor, noted sculptor. It is expected to be finished some time this coming summer and President Warren G. Harding has been asked to officiate at the unveiling. If the statue is finished at the time the president makes his proposed western

When Roosevelt lived at Medora, Dr.

Coe was at Medora, and they met as hunters. Dr. Coe had some hunting

and Roosevelt used to visit the Mandan region where the hunting was better than around Medora. In later years Dr. Coe visited with Roosevelt

making a western trip, and relates that when they reached Medora Roosevelt

The statue is of heroic size, being 15 feet high above the base. An architect is to be engaged to design the base which will be about 10 feet high.

A site for the statue has been chosen in a centrally located park.
